GREEK LEFTISTS BOMBARDED BY BRITISH SHIPS

Shells Start Fire in ELAS Stronghold.

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. 7 (AP).—British warships, planes, tanks and riflemen today blasted at centers of Greek leftist resistance around the Acropolis and near Piraeus, the port of Athens five miles southwest of the city.

A British destroyer and two motor launches joined the fray and the royal navy announced their guns set a fire at a leftist [ELAS] strongpoint near the harbor.

Beaufighter planes strafed communist centers on the slopes of Mount Hymettus, southeast of Athens. Smoke could be seen rising from the suburb of Kaissariani, communist stronghold and working class district east of the Acropolis where British paratroopers were cleaning up. Considerable leftist fire has been directed from this area.

Tanks Pound Stronghold.

Artillery fire resounded in Athens as British Sherman tanks pounded another leftist stronghold in the quarter behind the modern stadium and field guns threw shells almost pointblank into improvised strong points.

Snipers' bullets still whizzed thru the streets, the fifth day of fighting.

Maj. Gen. R. M. Scobie, commander of British forces in Greece, whose ultimatum to the ELAS to quit the Athens area was spurned, said the clearing out of the leftists was progressing steadily, altho fighting had broken out between the ELAS and Greek nationalists in Thrace. The ELAS is the armed auxiliary of the EAM, National Liberation front party.

Leftists in Pillboxes.

Altho progress was reported in most areas by Scobie, he said that in some cases "stiff resistance" was encountered as the ELAS forces had occupied many German-constructed pillboxes and well built houses.

Scobie also said the ELAS troops had taken up entrenched positions on the outskirts of Athens and Piraeus and had mortar shelled a barrack area held by Greek forces. A small detachment of royal marines was landed in Piraeus to help infantry and tanks clear the navy house area, Scobie's bulletin said.

The British commander said a German officer had been captured while leading a detachment of ELAS troops.

Ultimatum Expires.

Scobie's ultimatum to the ELAS expired last midnight, and soon after dawn today British Spitfires and two-engined Beaufighters plunged down on a park east of Hadrian's gate and the Temple of Zeus and raked ELAS mortar positions. Flames spurted from a wooded hillside in the park.

Thirty-five ELAS officers and 400 ELAS troops have been taken prisoner by the British to date. There has been no official figure issued yet on British casualties tho correspondents know of four dead and six injured. Wild-shooting Greek civil police have accounted for at least two British casualties.

Premier Assails Leftists.

While Premier George Papandreou, whose government the British are supporting, said that the ELAS was "plunging Greece into civil war," the ELAS issued a bulletin charging that Papandreou had failed to punish traitors and had kept pro-Germans in the government service since the liberation.

Papandreou reiterated promises to hold a plebiscite on Greece's form of government, but the ELAS, reciting their grievances in their bulletin addressed to the British command, contended the British attitude "is contrary to the Atlantic charter and Teheran agreements, as this constitutes intervention in Greece's internal affairs."

2 U. S. Armies Closing In on Saarbrucken

PARIS, Dec. 7 (AP).—The outer defense works of Germany's arsenal of Saarbrucken shook today from United States 3d army tank assaults on the outpost of Forbach—three and a half miles southwest, and 7th army attacks on the Saar basin along a 35 mile front.

The 3d army, forging ahead despite mud and rain, welded its Saarlautern bridgehead solidly with one on the south, while a third bridgehead on the north was extended into the woods of Pachtener-Buchwald, cutting across the railway from Saarlautern to the fortress of Merzig.

This wedge into the Siegfried line defenses, hammered out by the 90th division, was eight miles inside Germany—the deepest penetration into the reich by 3d army forces.

[The American broadcasting station in Europe, heard in New York, said the 3d was 15 miles inside Germany at this point.]

7th Seizes Town.

Advance forces of the 7th army, coming up on the 3d's right flank, entered Enchenberg, seven miles from the Saar border southeast of Saarbrucken and close to the old Maginot line fortifications.

The 1st army sent patrols stabbing to the Roer river in three new attacks on the stream's defenses amid indications the Germans may be preparing to fall back almost to the Rhine for a new stand.

Lt. Gen. Patton's tanks in a two and a half mile advance probed into Forbach, rail city and Siegfried line outpost, and kept Saarbrucken's factories under artillery fire for the eighth consecutive day.

The 90th division pushed a mile into the forests less than three miles northwest of Saarlautern.

The 5th division, tightening the ring about Saarbrucken, was four and a half miles west of the city after entering Furstenhausen. Another task force was in Grand Roselle, six miles southwest of Saarbrucken.

Mop Up Sarreguemines.

Eight miles southeast of Saarbrucken the 35th infantry division mopped up the portion of Sarreguemines on the west bank of the Saar. The 26th infantry division, which crossed the Saar farther south, was advancing up the eastern bank and captured Etting, seven miles from Sarreguemines. It was in position to outflank the portion of Sarreguemines on that side of the river.

American tanks knocked out 10 of 40 German tanks which spearheaded a counterblow in wooded country east of Etting.

Elements of the 7th army seized high ground overlooking Lemberg, only three miles from the southern Maginot fort town of Bitche and eight and a half miles from the Saar

CANADIAN PREMIER WINS HOUSE VOTE OF CONFIDENCE ON DRAFT

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 8 [Friday] (AP).—Prime Minister King won an overwhelming vote of confidence early today on his new policy of partial conscription after appealing to all factions of Canada to unite to hasten the end of the war.

The vote, 143 to 70, brought to a close a 12-day special session of parliament assembled in the gravest governmental crisis in Canada's modern history.

The conscription issue, which has been political dynamite in the dominion ever since 1917, now apparently has been laid to rest for several months and probably for the duration of the war.

The vote was the culmination of discussion of a government order-in-council to send 16,000 home defense army troops overseas.

Immediately after the vote the house adjourned to Jan. 31. Earlier resolutions favoring all-out conscription and no conscription at all were defeated.

Auer Brands Russian Club 'Un-American'

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 7 [Special].—Mischa Auer, 39, naturalized Russian born movie comedian, tonight denounced as "un-American" the Russian-American club of Los Angeles, which has expelled him as vice president for statements he made in speeches for Gov. Dewey in the Presidential campaign.

Mischa Auer.

The actor said he accepted his expulsion as a tribute to his own Americanism and challenged the club to "remove the word 'American' from its name."

The board of trustees of the club charged in a letter that he had "indulged in malicious attacks against his own motherland, Russia, and against the democratic traditions of America." The board said that, while the actor had every right to support any candidate he pleased, the club had "decided by unanimous vote to support President Roosevelt for a fourth term."

Can't Face Both Ways.

"It is hard for me to understand how anybody could at the same time attack both the communism of Russia and the democratic traditions of America," Auer asserted. "That would be facing both ways, indeed."

Auer said, in becoming an American citizen he had foresworn "allegiance to the ideals of the present Russian government and accepted the American principles of government by the majority with careful regard for the rights of the minority."

Tribute to Americanism.

"In view of these circumstances, the Russian-American club seems to have now forfeited the right to attach the word 'American' to its title. After the un-American action it has taken, I accept the expulsion as a tribute to my Americanism."

The actor said his sympathies are with the Russian people, but that he is "against communizing America, and I want others to leave the American way of life alone."

Auer, the son of a Russian aristocrat, has experienced the Red terror in Russia. When he was 12, the Red revolution separated him from his mother and he became a member of a band of parentless children who roamed Siberia. His famed grandfather, Violinist Leopold Auer, cabled him money and he came to the United States in 1920. The actor, whose family name was Ounskowski, took the name Auer when his grandfather adopted him.

The Russian-American club of Los Angeles was organized more than a year ago as a "non-profit, non-political, cultural and charitable organization." It invited stage and screen stars to offer their services to raise funds for medical aid to Russia.

Dr. Alexis Kall, president, denied that Auer had been removed because of his political affiliations, attributing his expulsion to "attacks on the motherland."

NUBBINS UNDERGOES AN OPERATION AND GETS ALONG 'NICELY'

Denver, Colo., Dec. 7 (AP).—Forest [Nubbins] Hoffman, 3, is "getting along nicely," a urologist reported tonight after performing a serious bladder operation on the Cheyenne, Wyo., boy.

Nubbins is the lad who was given a Christmas party de luxe Nov. 19 because his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Hoffman, feared he would not live until Dec. 25. Sympathetic persons from over the United States sent more than 200 presents. He was brought here three weeks ago.

"If no complications develop, the boy can go home next week," said the Denver specialist. "His recovery now depends upon whether those damaged kidneys will start functioning."

Court Forbids Union to Curb DeMille on Air

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 7 [Special].—Producer Cecil B. de Mille today was granted a Superior court order temporarily restraining officials of the AFL American Federation of Radio Artists from interfering with his radio program or ousting him from the union over his refusal to pay a $1 union levy for political purposes.

The veteran film executive and radio drama producer had complained that the union ordered him suspended, effective Dec. 11, because of his failure to pay the assessment demanded to raise a campaign fund to oppose a proposal to amend the state constitution to guarantee employment without union coercion.

Judge Emmet Wilson granted the temporary restraining order and ordered union officials to appear Dec. 15 and show cause why it should not be made a preliminary injunction.

Gets $98,200 a Year.

The present order not only forbids union leaders to put De Mille out of the union and off the air, but also prohibits them from effecting a situation where others of the union's members might not cooperate with him in his weekly radio show, which he told the court pays him $98,200 a year.

De Mille predicated his complaint in part on the contention the union is without power under its by-laws or constitution to levy an assessment to oppose a proposition on which California voters were soon to ballot. In refusing to pay the $1 De Mille declared his belief that no organization as such has the right "to make up a voter's mind for him."

He Favors Unionism.

The producer protested that the union's move to oust him and bar him from the air makes it appear to the public and his radio audience that he "has committed acts detrimental to unions," whereas this is not only false, but he is, in fact, in favor of unionism.

He said he is seeking no monetary damages, but only an order to stop the union from acting against him. He asked, and was granted, a provision in the court order that he be kept on the union's good standing list until such time as the court can pass on the issues involved.

U. S. 77TH DIVISION CUTS LEYTE LINE; 19 SHIPS SUNK; 4,000 OF ENEMY LOST

Super Forts Bomb Iwo, 750 Miles North of Saipan.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8 [Friday] (AP).—Super Fortresses, striking from bases on Saipan Island in the Marianas, bombed Japanese installations on Iwo Island in the Bonin Islands today. The attack was carried out by B-29s of Brig. Gen. H. S. Hansell's 21st bomber command.

A bulletin said details of the attack will be announced when more information is available. The big bombers flew approximately 750 miles to the north of their bases to strike at the Jap stronghold.

B-29 Base Bombed.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7 (AP).—One Super Fortress was destroyed and two others were damaged Wednesday in the strongest counter-raid the Japanese have made on the B-29 base on Saipan, the navy announced today.

About 10 "Betty" bombers made the attack on the base from which the American sky giants are attacking Tokyo, said Adm. Nimitz. Six of the enemy bombers were shot down by anti-aircraft fire. One American was killed, one seriously wounded, and a number were slightly wounded.

Adm. Nimitz also announced that three Super Fortresses had been lost in a big Super Fortress attack on aircraft plants at Mukden and Dairen, Manchuria, earlier today. A previous bulletin had reported the loss of only one plane.

The B-29s, however, destroyed 26 enemy fighters, probably brought down 13, and damaged 24 in the blow at Manchuria.

Good Bombing Results.

The attack, made in daylight, resulted in "unobserved to excellent bombing results," the bulletin said. Visual bombing was carried out at most of the targets.

The raid, carried on by the 20th bomber command based in China, encountered "weak to strong" air opposition, while anti-aircraft fire was meager to moderate and inadequate.

The Japanese have important steel works and shipbuilding yards in Manchuria as well as many other war industries. A big manufacturing town, Mukden has a population approaching 3,000,000.

Tokyo Also Bombed.

TWENTY-FIRST BOMBER COMMAND HDQ., Saipan, Dec. 7 (AP).—Two Super Fortress bombers on weather reconnaissance flights last night and today paid the fifth and sixth visits to Tokyo since Nov. 24.

The first plane in the raids today was commanded by Lt. Col. Robert K. Morgan of Asheville, N. C., who led the first B-29 raid on Tokyo Nov. 24.

Tokyo last night was brilliantly lighted. "Just like flying over New York," said Morgan, recently promoted from major. He was able to bomb visually.

Photos Show Good Results.

The second B-29, "Little Gem," commanded by Capt. J. T. A. Archer of Brownwood, Tex., bombed thru an overcast. But Archer said photographs thru clouds showed the best precision instrument bombing results yet obtained on Tokyo.

Both planes hit approximately the same target area—the Y-shaped industrial heart of Tokyo, bounded by the waterfront and by the Sumida river to the west and Ara river on the east.

"This is the most highly incendiary area of the Japanese capital and contains the gas works and other prime targets," Morgan said. "We aimed at the most brilliantly lighted district. The bombardier saw our bombs burst right on that triangular area.

Morgan's crew included Sgt. Sherwood Wrizshall, 1239 Hood, Chicago; Archer's crew included Staff Sgt. Martin J. Sepe, 3021 W. Lexington st., Chicago.

Five large fires and two smaller ones were visible as far out as the plane crew could see land, said the tail gunner, Sgt. Donald T. Black of Rushville, Mo.

TRIBUNE WRITER ON ROCKET SHIP VIEWS INVASION

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD U. S. ROCKET SHIP 73, Off Ormoc, Dec. 7.—The Japanese, caught off balance this morning when our amphibious "mosquito fleet" put a division of American infantrymen ashore on the outskirts of Ormoc, this afternoon are attempting retribution in the air.

Lt. Carroll.

On and off for five hours Jap planes have been falling like flies, as never before in the Southwest Pacific. A few moments ago from our rocket ship we counted nine planes crashing into the water in less than 60 seconds.

Some of the planes are getting thru. One bracketed his bombs on both sides of a destroyer to our right. Another hit an APD [obsolete destroyer remodeled to carry troops]. It is smoking badly. A third hit a destroyer. There was a flash of flame and it is sinking.

Leads Convoy Home.

Right now black bursts of ack-ack are fading into the sky and our rocket ship, a veteran of 14 landings, is leading the convoy home.

Our skipper, Lt. [j. g.] Donald Carroll, 1911 S. 50th ct., Cicero, Ill., just made an announcement. "Let's go down to chow," he said.

Our large convoy of small amphibious craft had come into the central Philippine water without attack. During the landing we did all the shooting.

We were in Ormoc harbor as dawn broke. At 6:40 a. m. destroyers began their bombardment.

At 7 our rocket ship and three others, with a flotilla of Higgins boats following closely, passed thru the destroyer screen.

Rockets Fly to Shore.

When less than a mile from the beach the skipper bent over a small box of levers and pressed one. Imagine the sound of ripping linen magnified 1,000 times and you have what we heard when the first rockets plumed from the ship. Up, like a kid's 4th of July rocket, they went, then arched and plummeted on the beach. Thru clouds of smoke and powder and dust, the Higgins boats churned into the beach. We watched the men run onto the sand.

"Let 'em have it now," the skipper said, and all our gunners opened fire to protect the flank.

On the beach a landing party set off smoke pots to conceal the large landing ships as they ground into the shore. By the time the smoke lifted we could see troops walking casually to an asphalt highway 400 yards inland.

It was just about that time that the first planes hit. The Lightnings and Japs mixed in a dogfight even Hollywood couldn't duplicate.

Long past noon, in the galley, the cook, Henry Kapilnaki, 2314 N. Campbell av., Chicago Ill., sent the steward up to announce dinner was ready, if we wanted it. I hope we have ice cream. There must be some pay-off in this business.

Armada Beats Foe's Fleet in Race to Ormoc Bay.

BY FRANK L. KLUCKHOHN.
[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

ADVANCED HDQ., Leyte, Dec. 8 [Friday].—The United States navy lifted the army from the mud of Leyte and carried a strong force around the island thru Surigao strait, landing it three miles south of Ormoc yesterday morning to split the Japanese forces in two and seal off Ormoc bay.

Units of the 77th division, victors at Guam, swarmed ashore at dawn against light opposition following a 20 minute bombardment by numerous destroyers and rocket ships. Last night they were pushing north toward Ormoc, Gen. MacArthur announced, fighting to smash the split Japanese forces.

Trap Thousands of Japs.

As the result of the landing, thousands of Japanese troops are trapped between the 77th and the 7th division on the southern end of the Ormoc corridor, which is driving northward. Many more thousands of Japanese are cut off in the valley corridor to the north where the 10th corps is bringing pressure.

Tuesday night the Japanese, in what was described as a desperate attempt at diversion, dropped 200 paratroops on the eastern side of Leyte Island about 20 miles south of Tacloban. They were wiped out after doing some damage to the air field.

The landing at Ormoc set off a mighty day long battle, for two Japanese convoys were only several hours away heading toward Ormoc bay.

American fighters in swarms attacked and sank all 13 ships in the first convoy, drowning an estimated 4,000 Japanese. Later they found another convoy of six small ships and sank all of them, making 19 ships sunk.

Japanese planes ferociously attacked the returning American convoy. A destroyer and a small transport were lost, but fighter pilots shot down 52 Japanese planes and naval anti-aircraft fire accounted for another ten.

Six Destroyers Sunk.

There was a dramatic race between the American convoy and the Japanese convoy, consisting of four good sized transports, two freighter-transports, six escorting destroyers, an done destroyer escort. The Japanese convoy had strong fighter cover.

United States fighters went after the Japanese ships as they pushed southward. By noon one destroyer was afire and the others were hit, but still they kept on. By dusk, it was officially asserted, all rested on the bottom of the sea.

Pilots described burning and settling vessels, and corpses literally covering the sea as their machine guns rattled endlessly.

2 U. S. Warships Sunk.

The American convoy had landed the troops in two hours, with the 77th hitting the beaches in small boats in their first action in the Philippines. Then LCIs went in followed by LSMs, with big LSTs disgorging equipment.

The Japanese planes continued their day long bore-in until ack-ack crews aboard the ships were exhausted from constant firing.

One American destroyer was hit by an aerial torpedo and started to go down, but the entire crew was taken off in a brilliant example of seamanship. Another torpedo gave a mortal wound to a small, empty troop carrier, whose crew also successfully was transferred. Five American planes were destroyed, but every pilot was saved.

Planes Fill the Air.

Planes rocketing down in flames and pilots floating seaward in parachutes filled the air. American fighters circled their downcoming pilots so the Japanese could not machine gun them.

The actual landing occurred on good shoreline, with the road leading to Ormoc only about 200 yards behind it. There are two rivers near by which proved no obstacles, nor did the Japanese heavily occupy the caves and ravines in the coral cliffs behind the road.

Lt. Gen. Kreuger's conception of this surprise move which caught the Japanese flatfooted was excellent. Two days ago, despite the mud, the 10th corps in the south put heavy pressure, following night long artillery barrages, upon both ends of the enemy line.

Ground Losses Small.

This drew in, as it was supposed to do, Japanese reserves. Steady pressure—with heavier American attacks—followed yesterday. Then the landing, against opposition which caused practically no ground losses, occurred. A three pronged drive upon Ormoc town now is proceeding.

Rear Adm. A. D. Struble commanded the landing operations. Maj. Gen. Andrew D. Bruce of Temple, Tex., commands the 77th division.

In preparation for the all out drive, the American troops had to be supplied by small landing craft and aircraft, while the troops themselves had to be moved in small split detachments over mountains.

CAVALRY RIDES THE WAVES

WITH THE 7TH DIVISION ON LEYTE, Philippines, Dec. 5 [Delayed]—(AP).—Cavalrymen converted into amphibious tankmen flanked Japanese positions on west Leyte today from the sea and shot up Balogo village and hill positions behind the enemy line below Ormoc.

Lt. Col. O'Neill K. Kane, leader of the group, reported that some of his men saw Japanese in full flight.

Three days were used in getting the amphibious tanks around the lower horn of Leyte to the flanking position—a distance of more than 125 miles.

After landing the "sea cavalry" drove 50 yards inland on the north side of Balogo, where they rained artillery fire on the reverse slopes of a hill which infantrymen of Col. Curtis O'Sullivan of Napa, Cal., were storming from the other side.

Longest Amphibious Trip.

Col. Kane, widely known horseman, led his men in from the sea at dawn just north of Tabgas, 10 miles down the coast from Ormoc, and fired more than 3,000 rounds of machine gun and artillery ammunition into the village and hills.

The cavalrymen caught the Japanese completely off guard and drew meager mortar and machine gun fire.

Evanstonian Is Struck.

The amphibious tank of Lt. Robert Doty, Evanston, Ill., stuck in the sand while ashore. His buddies pulled him out while under mortar fire.

Maj. John Collier, 1317 Greenleaf av., Chicago, Ill., said hardly a house in the village of Balogo was spared.

Among those participating in the flanking movement was Lt. Frank T. Roglitz of Lake Mills, Wis.

JAP CHUTIST VERSION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Japanese paratroops were dropped Wednesday on American air bases at Burauen, San Pablo, Dulag, and Tacloban on Leyte, Tokyo radio reported yesterday.

The broadcast said the "air commando units" then "began a grand scale offensive in these areas against the enemy forces who were found in a confused state by an extremely systematized method of operation."

The broadcast added that units dropped on Tacloban and Dulag, the allies' main air bases on Leyte, "are at this moment in the process of destroying the enemy ground facilities."

Split Jap Forces on Leyte

MacArthur's Story of Battle

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Philippines, Dec. 8 [Friday]—(AP).—The text of Gen. MacArthur's bulletin on the new invasion of Leyte follows:

"The 77th division of the 24th corps has landed in Ormoc harbor in the enemy's rear. In an amphibious operation, with air and naval support, the troops went ashore three miles south of Ormoc and are rapidly advancing northward.

"The movement caught the enemy unawares on the west with his reserves already largely committed to meet our converging attacks from the north, east, and south. His ground resistance to the landing was in consequence negligible, and we had practically no ground losses.

"By this maneuver we have seized the center of the Yamashita line from the rear and have split the enemy's forces in two, isolating those in the valley to the north from those along the coast to the south. Both segments are now caught between our columns which are pressing in from all fronts.

Japs Land Parachutists.

"In a desperate attempt at diversion, the enemy landed parachute troops during the night in the vicinity of San Pablo. Approximately 200 men were dropped, the majority of whom have been killed. Some sabotage damage was accomplished, but the effort was a feeble one and promptly was rendered abortive.

"Immediately after our own landing, an enemy reënforcement convoy of 13 vessels, consisting of four large transports of from 7,000 to 8,000 tons each, two freighter transports of 2,500 tons each, and seven destroyers and destroyer escorts, was discovered approaching from the north with strong air cover.

"Our air forces immediately attacked and our own convoy in turn was set upon by the enemy's aircraft. A desperate melee resulted in which all 13 vessels in the enemy's convoy were sunk without unloading. The transports were heavily packed with troops and 4,000 were estimated as lost.

2 U. S. Ships Sunk.

"We had one destroyer and one small transport hard hit by aerial torpedoes and after transferring the crews, abandoned the ships and sank them.

"Fifty-two enemy planes were shot down by our fighters and 10 by navy anti-aircraft. We lost five planes but rescued the pilots.

"At the close of the day our air force, making a final sweep of the area, spotted and sank six small craft loaded with troops along the northwest coast of Leyte.

"These operations took place on Dec. 7, the third anniversary of the beginning of the war."

18 YANKS KILLED WHEN V BOMB HITS HOSPITAL

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Dec. 7 (AP).—A V bomb which exploded recently in the courtyard of an American army hospital in Belgium killed 18 American military personnel and eight Belgian civilians and wounded 50 members of the medical corps, it was disclosed today. The victims included doctors, nurses, enlisted personnel and patients. Four ambulances in the courtyard were demolished and a three story wing of the hospital was destroyed. Fire destroyed the pharmacy, where oxygen tanks and alcohol exploded.

[The first accounts of the bomb-hit, received Nov. 29, said 12 persons were killed but did not identify them as Americans. There were 1,150 patients in the hospital.]

AUTO WHEEL AND TIRE STOLEN. Herman Karvitz, 4940 East End av., reported to police yesterday that thieves opened the trunk of his car, parked in front of his home, and stole his spare wheel and tire.

A FIGHTING BOY SOBS AT GRAVE OF HIS BROTHER

GUAM, Nov. 19 [Delayed]—(AP).—The kid was crying. Unashamed he let tears roll down his tanned cheeks. He stood bareheaded, then dropped to his knees, sobbing.

Not far away other American service men, his comrades in the war, carried on with their jobs.

But his interest was not in the war—not until he gets another chance to make the Japanese pay for his grief.

His eyes were fixed firmly on a rough white wooden cross. Occasionally he glanced toward a white chapel; his lips moved.

It was at his brother's grave that this young fighting man— his name doesn't matter—bared his grief.

There, in a little American military cemetery on a Guam hilltop, friends say he spends his free time.

He wasn't alone. Near-by stood another American soldier, bareheaded before a grave. Then this second boy reached into his pocket and drew out a letter.

Reads Letter Aloud.

He opened the envelope and began to read—aloud. A letter to a buddy who lay beneath the ground, one of the American boys who died to regain this western Pacific island base captured by the Japanese early in the war.

Scores of similar incidents may be found in the carefully kept burial grounds established immediately after islands are won—while fighting still continues inland.

Markers are identical in all of the cemeteries—white crosses glistening in ordered rows. Each bears the name, rank, and serial number of a dead American boy.

But pals add their own little memorials. Most favored are the mess kits from which the dead boys ate. Their friends scratch upon the kits simple words of tribute, then fasten them at the base of the cross.

Navy Guards of Honor.

There is little basic difference in these cemeteries except their location—near the beaches on low-lying atolls; in the hills on larger islands. An exception is in navy cemeteries where in many cases guards of honor are posted even while fighting continues only miles away.

But there are differences in the memorials already erected at many sites to all men in a cemetery.

Symbolic of all—of the war, of the sacrifices, of the loss of bases and their recapture from the Japanese is the memorial at a cemetery on a Guam hilltop. There, beneath a white belfry hangs a massive church bell. An inscription explains the bell was taken by the Japanese from a church for use as an air raid alarm, was recaptured, and now hangs as a permanent memorial to the men who died here in battle.

GIGANTIC QUAKE STRIKES 'IN OR NEAR JAPAN'

Tremors Register All Over Globe.

A violent earthquake, believed by some observers in various parts of the world to have centered in Japan or off the southern coast of Japan, yesterday was termed a tremor of gigantic, globe shaking proportions by Chicago seismologists. They recorded it here as continuing thru late Wednesday night into the early hours of yesterday morning.

The initial shock of the disturbance, according to William F. Schmidt, seismograph tender and technician in the department of geology at the University of Chicago, was registered there at 11:49 p. m. Wednesday. Schmidt estimated the origin of the tremor, which he said continued for 2½ hours, to be approximately 6,400 miles west of Chicago. This would place its source, he said he "hoped," in the direction of Japan and possibly centering in the Jap home islands.

'Greatest in Intensity.'

"The quake, he declared, was the "greatest in intensity for the distance involved" ever registered on the university seismograph.

Even if the quake missed Japan proper and was centered off its coast, that country still is in great peril from a tidal wave which usually follows great upheavals in the earth's crust, he added.

At Loyola university, the Rev. Alphonse Schmitt, S. J., estimated the source of the tremor at approximately 5,900 miles from Chicago.

First impact of the tremor was registered on his apparatus at 11:50 p. m. Wednesday, and continued for two hours thereafter, Father Schmitt disclosed. He described the disturbance as one of major proportions and asserted that if it centered in the populated areas of Japan the results must have been catastrophic.

Heard for Six Hours.

At Bromwich observatory just outside of London, England, seismologists yesterday reported the tremors to be continuing six hours after the initial shock recorded there at 4:48 a. m. Greenwich time [11:48 p. m. Chicago time].

J. J. Shaw, veteran Bromwich seismologist, said that wind tremors made it difficult to trace the direction, but he expressed the belief it was possibly in Japan, the Aleutians, or the Kuriles. He described the quake as "one of the greatest I have ever recorded" and said that force of the tremor had thrown parts of the registering apparatus off their bearings.

The "earth shaker" was described as two "extremely violent" earthquakes by the Rev. Joseph J. Lynch, seismologist at Fordham university, New York City.

Five London Firms to Quit Manufacture of Bombers

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 7.—Five London automobile firms, which have turned out hundreds of Halifax bombers since 1940, will halt aircraft production in the spring, it was announced today. Improvement of the war situation and low operational losses are said to be the reasons for the stop of production.

FIGHT IN VOSGES CALLED ONE OF WAR'S TOUGHEST

36th Division Overcomes Best Prepared Line.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE 36TH DIVISION IN THE ALSATIAN PLAIN, France, Dec. 7.—While the more spectacular allied advances have been made thru the Belfort and Saverne gaps and up to the Rhine river in recent weeks, this veteran American infantry division, while out of the limelight, has performed just as important a task. In this period it has slugged its way thru some of the most difficult terrain in the Vosges mountains, scaling hill defenses, clearing passes of road blocks and mines, capturing 2,900 Germans, and killing and wounding more than that number at the cost of considerable casualties to itself.

The 36th, commanded by Maj. Gen. John Dahlquist, was the first division to cross the upper Moselle river and enter the Vosges, and it was the last to reach the plain of Alsace. It was the last only because its job was so formidable and because it was running up against the enemy's best prepared position on the Vosges crest line.

Fought at Salerno.

The 36th, the pride of Texas, [it was originally formed from that state's national guard but replacements now make it representative of nearly every state in the Union], has been thru tough fighting all the way from Salerno in Italy and has been in action continuously since Aug. 15, D-day in southern France. Today is its 115th day without rest except for a few battalions which have had brief respites.

Ste. Marie aux Mines was taken Nov. 24 after a brisk battle. All the rest of the way thru the mountains the Germans defended strongly. Yank combat engineers removed mines and hacked and swung trees from the road under harassing machine gun and mortar fire while infantrymen went up the steep slopes to knock out the enemy positions. It was Vosges fighting at its bitterest—over rugged, wooded country in almost continual rain.

But at last the 36th battered its way into the plain at St. Hippolyte and Rodern. That hasn't meant any surcease for since the break-out the division has been under fire from German long range guns, some of them emplaced in the Colmar region.

Spied On by "Neighbor."

Capt. Bernard B. Stone, 3918 Grand av., Chicago, was involved in one of the many exciting incidents in the fight thru the pass. He set up his mortars on a hill position near a small town, but every time he ordered his men to open up they caught barrages from the Germans.

Stone chose a new site. Then with infantrymen assisting he searched thru the immediate area. In a deserted house he found a German field radio. The house was only two buildings away from where Stone had had his command post and the departed enemy spotter had been calling down the fire from almost on top of Stone's mortars.

Another Chicagoan, Pvt. John F. Yoksas, 6843 S. Campbell av., and Pvt. Edgar K. Sundby, Milwaukee, Wis., contributed their bit to the division's Vosges record by bringing in 10 Polish soldiers. The latter had been forced into the German army but had deserted and hid in a mountain town for three months waiting for the Americans to arrive.

border. In this drive they occupied the near-by village of St. Louis-les-Bitche.

Farther east, a strong German counter-attack paced by heavy artillery bombardment drove the Americans from the northeast half of Mertzwiller. A German counter-attack near Niederbronn, seven miles south of that Palatinate border, was repulsed.

The Germans anchored their stand around the French Maginot fortifications and were believed to be manning from 35 to 40 miles of the line.

The last bits of Alsace appeared to be slipping from German grasp as the 7th army drove to within four miles north of Colmar, last Alsatian city in enemy hands, after capturing four towns and villages, including Ostheim.

The Germans counter-attacked this push apparently to protect their withdrawals across the Rhine, but they were giving way to the southwest in the Vosges.

The French army reached Thann, 10 miles northwest of Mulhouse, where street fighting broke out. Eight miles east of Mulhouse, the enemy was strongly resisting French attempts to advance beyond newly captured Niffer on the west bank of the Rhine.

1st Army Advances Slowly.

The gap on the Rhine plain between the 7th and the French 1st army was narrowed to 23 miles and enemy trucks and men jammed the temporary Rhine bridge at Breisach, pulling back into Germany and the Siegfried line.

In the north, the last of the 1st army's three attacks broke at 3 a. m. today. All were progressing slowly but steadily against stubborn resistance.

Lt. Gen. Hodges' patrols reached the Roer for the first time near Bergstein, seven miles south of the river fortress of Duren. Headquarters said the Yanks in the Hurtgen forest sector had repulsed German attempts to recapture Bergstein.

The first attack was made yesterday east of Inden, five miles northwest of Duren, and by nightfall had advanced 450 yards to the outskirts of Pier, within a mile of the Roer, under enemy artillery fire. One hundred prisoners were captured.

Activity along the 9th army front to the north, as well as the British-Canadian sectors in eastern Holland, was limited to patrols.

Lt. Gen. Bradley, recapitulating the allied winter offensive, said his 12th army group of the 1st, 3d, and 9th armies had occupied nearly 700 square miles of the reich. The front inside Germany now is 210 curving miles in length. Prisoners in the current campaign total 44,500, which swells the group's total since D-day to 400,000.

9TH ARMY RIPS SUICIDE FORCE IN A NAZI STADIUM

Foe Holds Out 5 Days West of Roer.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. 9TH ARMY IN GERMANY, Dec. 7.—Fighting raged today around a Nazi sports palace on the outskirts of Julich west of the Roer river, where a German suicide garrison has been holding out against American bombers, artillery, and infantry for the last five days.

The enemy has a self-propelled gun dug in the center of a running track within the arena's fortress-like walls and has transformed an empty swimming pool into a bunker with timbers and sandbags across the top.

The swimming pool yesterday was a target of Thunderbolt dive bombers. Returning pilots reported several direct hits and said they could see enemy soldiers hurled into the air by the bomb explosions.

Tunnels Under Concrete.

The several hundred defenders have the added protection of underground passages leading to the stadium seats. Such tunnels, under many feet of concrete, are familiar to American sports fans. This Julich sports center is comparable in many ways to an American college's football stadium seating about 50,000.

The German stadium probably was built with American money. Almost all German towns of moderate size have their own sports arena, where Nazi youth and women paraded, drilled, and strutted to the delight of Nazi officials in pre-war years. Nearly all were built in the years 1922 to 1923, when American loans were being provided for great construction programs thruout Germany.

Defended by Engineers.

The arenas were built, along with public buildings, libraries, and bridges, from funds of American investors. They were built well, too. The thick concrete walls of Julich stadium show little damage from the artillery and air bombardment.

The Nazi defenders are engineers, top ranking troops second only to paratroopers and remembered for their unyielding defense of Cassino, Italy.

The strength of the Julich structure has enabled the Germans to hold back Lt. Gen. Simpson's forces from the west bank of the Roer at this point. It is one of the few remaining resistance pockets on this side of the river on the 9th army front.

CHURCH WILL BE REOPENED, GERMANS TOLD

LONDON, Dec. 7 (AP).—The German people were promised freedom of worship by Gen. Eisenhower today, but he warned them they would forfeit this right if they allowed religious gatherings to be used for political purposes.

"The churches will be cleared of all National Socialist [Nazi] influences," the supreme commander said in a message broadcast by the American broadcasting station in Europe.

"National Socialists who have usurped office within a religious community will be relieved of their posts.

"Places' of worship will be reopened and remain open. It will be for the German people to see that the sanctity of religious service is safeguarded and that this fundamental right of every human being is not misused."

In addition, he said, the German people would again be granted the right of free ownership.

RUSSIANS CLEAR SOUTH SHORE OF HUNGARIAN LAKE

Seize 50 Villages in Push Toward Austria.

LONDON, Dec. 8 [Friday]—(AP).—Russian troops completely cleared the south bank of Lake Balaton in western Hungary yesterday, advancing to within 41 miles of Austria and cutting rail communications between Budapest and axis fronts in Croatia and northern Italy.

Hurling the enemy back on a 135 mile front and advancing up to nine miles, the 3d Ukraine army drove to within 67 miles of Zagreb, capital of the axis puppet Croat government in northern Yugoslavia, and to within 22 miles of Budapest in an encircling movement along the west bank of the Danube.

Unofficial Moscow dispatches said these units already had swept around the southwestern end of Lake Balaton and were within 35 to 40 miles of Austria and 110 miles from Vienna.

Berlin Reports New Drive.

Berlin said that another soviet army, in a new drive from Hatvan, had broken thru German lines on a 10 mile front and reached points only 19 miles northeast of Budapest. Hungarian government officials were reported leaving the capital and moving to the reich.

In the advance up the west bank of the Danube one soviet column gained eight miles and stormed thru Adony, 22 miles south of Budapest. Berlin said that other Russian forces, crossing the Danube via Csepel Island just south of the capital, had captured Ercsi, only 13 miles from Budapest, and were fanning out from their bridgehead.

Seize 110 Villages.

Other units, striking on a 34 mile front between Adony and the northeastern corner of Lake Balaton, captured 60 hamlets. The lake is 48 miles long and averages five miles in width, but at one point near the center is less than a mile wide. On a 53 mile front between the southwestern end of the lake and the Drava river frontier with Yugoslavia other units moving toward Zagreb and the Austrian frontier captured 50 villages.

The midnight bulletin said that the 3d Ukraine army killed 1,400 enemy troops during the day and captured 1,030.

"The battle for Budapest now ranks as the principal storm center of military operations on all fronts, east, west, and south," said a Berlin military spokesman.

"They are attempting to thrust along the eastern bank of the Danube in order to penetrate into Budapest from the north," said one German broadcast. Others said the Russians had not yet reached the Danube above Budapest, but had penetrated German lines to "a considerable depth" on a 10 mile front north of Hatvan.

YANKS DISCOVER 1,700 LIVING IN GERMAN CAVE

Defied Nazis to Bury Them Alive.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

WITH THE AMERICAN 3D ARMY IN GERMANY, Dec. 7.—A community of 1,700 German civilians who refused to join the general exodus to the interior of Germany has been discovered. It is in a huge cave on the estate of Franz von Papen, German diplomat, where eight villages have been merged into one primitive community.

Heinrich Himmler's Volkssturm [people's army] had threatened to dynamite the mouth of the cave, but was prevented from doing so by the American 90th division's rapid advance into the Saar valley. Now the settlement, which is in Siersburg mountain, eight miles northwest of Saarlautern, is functioning in what were Von Papen's mushroom cellars.

Ruled by Mayors.

With their burgomeisters, spiritual advisor, and municipal machinery necessary to regulate their limited civil affairs, these people are living under conditions which have few precedents. The cave is more than half a mile long, with lateral winding passageways dimly lighted by occasional carbide lanterns.

Each family has been alloted space for household equipment. Several persons who have favorite horses, cows, or goats, keep the animals with them rather than quarter them in the community corral.

There are 90 cows, 68 goats, 11 horses, and 40 chickens. There is a large community kitchen and a spacious abattoir. There are beds of straw and iron bedsteads.

The inhabitants find it difficult to attend to their household duties in their restricted space and to arrange what is left of their possessions into something resembling a home, but the aromatic odor of coffee brewing or the scent of a highly seasoned stew from the kitchen helps the illusion.

Born in Darkness.

In one "home" up a dark, sweaty corridor, a young mother was found nursing the child born to her 28 days ago in this world of darkness.

In other homes were many older folk who preferred to sleep most of the day rather than face the reality of a world which had crashed around them.

Many expressed a desire to be left alone with their memories of a Germany that most of the others never knew. There was a sort of respectful detachment by which these remnants of another generation were left to their reveries while the problems of the day were delegated to the young.

ROBBER FIRES AT VICTIM.

John Marszalek, 4448 S. Troy st., reported to police last night he had been fired on by a young gunman who held him up in a garage at the rear of his home. The bullet missed Marszalek and the gunman fled without attempting to rob him.

R. A. F. BLASTS COLOGNE IN AIR WAR RENEWAL

LONDON, Dec. 7 (AP). — Bad weather interrupted the allied air attack on Germany from British bases today, but soon after dark tonight a force of R. A. F. Mosquitos blasted the industrial city of Cologne with two ton blockbusters.

This assault was a continuation of the great aerial campaign to seal off enemy men and supplies from the fighting front—an effort which sent 14,000 planes against 13 of the reich's cities in the 72 hours preceding today.

Smoke and flames still rose from Berlin, Osnabruck, Giessen, Oberhausen, Munster, Soest, and Karlsruhe, and the big Leuna synthetic oil plant at Merseburg, as well as other transportation centers in the almost unbroken three-day offensive. R. A. F. Mosquitos staged the 172d low-up to Tuesday's daylight attack by some 1,000 United States planes in which 91 enemy interceptors were shot down. Revised figures put American losses at nine fighters, in place of 22.

Rejects Plan to Feed London with Goats' Milk

3,000 G.I.s WILL HELP PATCH UP BLITZED LONDON

Ike Asks for Privilege; Army to Foot Bill.

LONDON, Dec. 7 (AP).—American soldiers many of whose comrades were killed in a recent V-bomb attack on southern England, will help patch up blitzed London to provide temporary winter cover for thousands of homeless, it was announced today.

Gen. Eisenhower has assigned 3,000 American army engineers and other men skilled in building trades to join British Tommies and civilian laborers in repairing the 700,000 bomb-damaged London homes that can still be made habitable and to erect temporary huts.

Eisenhower asked that Americans share in mending London. The expenses of the troops will be borne by the United States army.

News Cheered in Commons.

Cheers greeted the first announcement of the offer of American aid in the house of commons by Duncan Sandys, minister of works. He said: "We wish to express our warm thanks for this very welcome aid and for the feelings of friendship and sympathy which have inspired it."

Sandys, who was under fire in commons for the progress of the housing program, said that he hoped before Christmas there would be relatively few occupied homes with leaky roofs.

The announcement of American aid came while the housing debate reached a heated pitch in commons, and it was the biggest news of the day for London newspapers.

Yanks Begin Work Tuesday.

The first contingent of doughboys will begin work on Tuesday, but scores have pitched in as volunteers, some giving up part of their furloughs to clear wreckage.

Flying bombs continue to fall on southern England, another attack being launched tonight. At least two the missiles were shot down by anti-aircraft fire.

One-third of Britain's civilian craftsmen, almost 130,000, are repairing blasted homes in the government's $140,000,000 winter building program.

For thousands of bombed out Londoners, living in crowded homes of relatives and friends or sleeping nights in subways and shelters, the stepped up drive to fix their homes came as a real Christmas present.

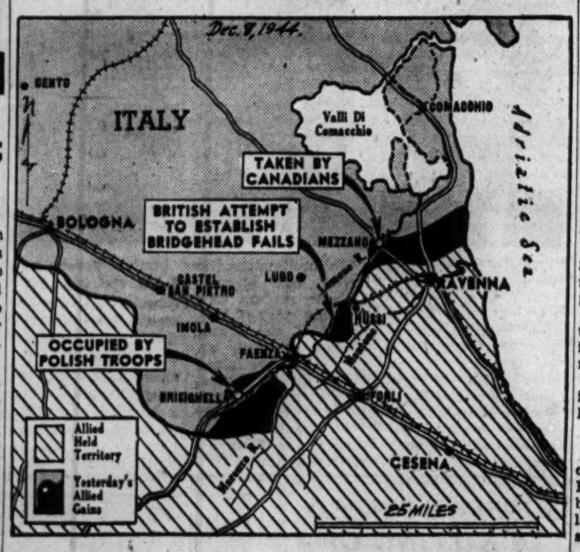
Another welcome change for a brighter Christmas came, too, in an announcement by Herbert Morrison, home secretary, that, beginning Saturday, it would no longer be mandatory to switch from dim-out to black-out with the sounding of the air alert.

BONOMI TO HEAD CABINET AGAIN; GETS RED O. K.

ROME, Dec. 7 (AP).—Premier Ivanoe Bonomi, assured of the support of the Communists and three other parties, said tonight he would form a new cabinet. On the 12th day of the government crisis, the Communists agreed to participate with the Liberals, Christian-Democrats, and Labor-Democrats in a new cabinet.

"Since the four parties have succeeded in agreeing on a program, the Communists have decided to participate in the Bonomi government," said Palmiro Togliatti, Communist leader who was minister without portfolio in the previous government.

Allies Extend Gains in Italy



CANADIAN FORCE PUSHES 6 MILES PAST RAVENNA

ROME, Italy, Dec. 7 (AP).—Canadian troops, who captured the Adriatic city of Ravenna two days ago, advanced six miles northwest up the Ravenna-Ferrara highway and seized Mezzano, a railway junction on the Lamone river, it was announced today.

With Mezzano's capture, the Nazis were deprived of a main supply route between ports along the Adriatic and their troops in northern Italy.

The allied announcement said enemy resistance east of the Lamone river was virtually at an end from north of Ravenna to south of Faenza. In the latter area British forces strengthened their bridgehead across the stream and Poles seized the town of Brisighella. An attempt by the British to establish a bridgehead across the Lamone just west of Russi, about midway between Ravenna and Faenza, was beaten off by the Nazis.

JAPS WITHIN 53 MILES OF CHINA KWEIYANG BASE

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 7 (AP).—The Japanese drive in Kweichow province is within 53 miles of the provincial capital, Kweiyang, it was disclosed today. Simultaneous thrusts led toward Kunming.

Extent of the Japanese gains in Kweichow was disclosed by an American bulletin announcing that P-51 Mustangs had bombed and set afire the town of Tuyun, northern terminus of the Kweichow-Kwangsi railway, 53 miles southeast of Kweiyang, in one of a series of attacks on advancing Japanese columns.

The Chinese command made no mention of Tuyun, but announced that Chinese troops had recaptured Sanho, a village northeast of Japanese held Tushan, 75 miles from Kweiyang.

The rapidity of the Japanese advance in Kweichow province trapped many thousands, but thousands of others fleeing now are strung out along the roads. Large numbers are arriving in Chungking, which is now more overcrowded than ever.

Nationalist Newspaper Suspended by Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Dec. 7 (AP).—The nationalist newspaper Cabildo was closed for eight days by a government order today. The reason was not announced.

BLONDE LEADS TRIBESMEN IN SCOUTING JAPS

NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 7 (AP).—Censorship was lifted today on the singular story of "the queen of the Nagas," a blond Englishwoman who scouted the Japanese while sharing the rough life of a tribe of aborigines who once cultivated a hobby of head hunting.

She is Ursula V. Graham Bower, 30, daughter of J. G. Bower, a submarine officer and one of Britain's pioneer airmen.

About six years ago she went into the hills with the intention of writing a book about the Nagas tribesmen of the India-Burma frontier.

When war came she went scouting the Japanese in addition to her literary chores.

Tribe Hates Burmans.

The Nagas were helpful, partly because they were well treated by the British and Americans, but mainly because they hate the Burma population of the rich Irrawaddy valley, some of them pro-Japanese.

The story is that when the Japanese approached to within 25 miles of the hilltop where Miss Bower lived she was urged to flee. But she asked the British for rifles to arm her Naga friends and announced she was going into the bush to find out what was happening.

She often turned up with vital information about the location of the enemy. She helped to organize a screen of observation posts and trained the Nagas to signal with their bamboo drums and send runners with information to British outposts.

Scouted Jap Advance.

The peak of her service came last spring when she helped to scout advance movements of the Japanese pressing thru the Naga hills toward a railroad which was taking American supplies to Gen. Stilwell and the Chinese.

Reporters have known of her activities for months, but none was permitted to write about her while she was active as a scout.

While no explanation was given for today's release, the supposition is that the fighting has been carried beyond the Naga hills deeper into Burma. Presumably, she is back writing her book.

COL. McCORMICK LAUDS WORK OF WAR REPORTERS

Their Task Harder than Fighters', He Asserts.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

As one who has been a war correspondent as well as a soldier, Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, said last night that the war correspondent has the harder job because he incurs danger voluntarily.

Col. McCormick paid tribute to 23 war correspondents of THE TRIBUNE at the 26th annual banquet of the newspaper's advertising department in the Drake hotel. One of the correspondents, Harold P. Smith, just returned from the Philippines, was present.

Chesser M. Campbell, advertising manager, introduced Col. McCormick before 300 staff members and guests after stating that despite the handicaps of newsprint rationing THE TRIBUNE has strengthened its competitive position since a year ago.

Recalls Civil War Writer.

THE TRIBUNE has been famous for its war correspondents ever since the work of George Upton in the Civil war, Col. McCormick said. He recalled some of his experiences as one of the nine Tribune war correspondents of World War I.

A soldier usually does the things he must, while the war correspondent courts danger without command, he said.

"My view of war correspondents is that it is their duty to incur as much danger as is necessary to get the story," Col. McCormick said.

"They have to incur danger commensurate with the importance of the story. When Clay Gowran flew over Japan on the second bombing raid, I thought he showed fine courage and newspaper judgment."

He mentioned that he had sent $1,000 to Gowran, and remarked that one other reporter on the same dangerous mission received from his New York editor a telegram of congratulations concluding, "Sorry I wasn't with you."

"You Work for World's Best."

Turning toward Smith at the speakers' table, Col. McCormick said:

"There's no doubt about it—you are the best crowd of war correspondents in the world—but one reason is that you work for the best newspaper in the world."

Larry Rue, a war correspondent for THE TRIBUNE in both world wars, and now covering Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters in France, is perhaps "the toughest of them all," Col. McCormick declared.

"But he is no tougher than Harry Walsh [Tribune guard], who was attacked on three sides, fought for the company's pay roll, and after he was wounded and the bandits escaped, still followed them in his wounded condition."

"I have said it is harder to be a war correspondent than to be a soldier. I have been both. I have also been a homebody, and that is the toughest of all.

The Homebodies' Task.

The task of the "homebodies" he described as:

"To carry on the battle for our nation, under these circumstances, against the extraordinary combination of unnatural allies in politics who lack nothing in intelligence, brutality, and bestiality;

"To carry on this battle successfully; to carry on in the undramatic work which makes THE TRIBUNE a place for those overseas to come back to from their glory."

17 FEARED DEAD IN ARMY PLANE CRASH IN OMAHA

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 7.—Seventeen persons were reported killed here today when a two engine army transport plane bound for Oklahoma City's Tinker field crashed and burned as it was taking off at the Omaha municipal airport.

Airport Manager William R. Milner said 17 persons were aboard the craft, but the investigating officer from the Lincoln, Neb., army air field said the plane carried "an unidentified number" of persons. He declined further comment until the investigation is completed.

Maj. Dick Martin, public relations officer at Tinker field, said he was informed the plane was carrying ferry pilots to Tinker field, but stated the ship was not originally based there nor was it carrying personnel from Tinker field.

Staff Sgt. Forest Foreman of New York City said he rode the plane from Kansas City to Omaha and that he understood the plane was to pick up army personnel here and return them to Oklahoma City.

Hoosier Pilot Missing.

Tampa, Fla., Dec. 7 (AP).—Three airmen were known dead and six others are missing in the crash of a heavy bomber in Tampa Bay, the Drew field public relations office announced today. The missing included 2d Lt. George T. Hadley Jr., Clinton, Ind., co-pilot, and Robert A. Demeulenaere, Canterline, Mich.

Wife Kills Rail Conductor After Telling of Threat

Perley Miles, 49, a conductor for the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern railroad, was shot and killed by his wife, Frances, 47, in their home, 3301 Union st., Steger, yesterday. Her son by a previous marriage, Stanley Cointin of Beecher, Will county, said she phoned him that Miles had threatened to kill her. Cointin said he started for the Miles home and was approaching the house when he heard a shotgun fired. Miles was dead when Cointin got inside, he said.

WIFE AND DAUGHTER SOUGHT.

Racine av. police yesterday were trying to find the divorced wife and daughter of Henry Sobeski, 57, of 937 Milwaukee av., who was found dead of heart disease Wednesday in his home. Five days ago the police granted Sobeski's request for an armed guard while he deposited money and war bonds totalling $6,425.

Chicago Tribune Correspondents Brave Danger to Cover World War Developments

(Story in adjoining column.)

Seymour Korman is in Alsace, back again with the 7th army, with which he did some of his most distinguished reporting in Italy last year. He has had close escapes from death in Africa, Sicily, and Italy. W-G-N listeners have thrilled to his front line broadcasts.

Bearded Jack Thompson is one of the nation's best known war correspondents. Holder of the Purple Heart, he was the first newsman to jump with a paratroop unit, and he has covered the African, Sicilian, Italian, Norman, and French campaigns, and now the battle of Germany.

Robert Cromie had his baptism of fire on the bloody beaches of Guadalcanal in the fall of 1942, but his greatest stories were those of American heroism in the jungles of New Guinea and a first hand account of a bomber raid on Rabaul. He is writing from 3d army headquarters.

Clay Gowran's travels are a 2½ year record: Central and South America, the West Indies, Guadalcanal, New Georgia, home again, India, Japan [in a B-29 bomber], Italy, southern France, and now Greece. And all he asked for in 1942 was "a little more active" duty.

E. R. Noderer, chief of the London bureau, has covered this global war in almost all its theaters; the German invasion of Norway, the Low Countries, and France; and with the allies in Egypt, Iran, India, Burma, Singapore, Australia, New Guinea, and New Zealand, distinguishing himself for bravery.

Harold Smith, naval veteran of World War I., has made 10 combat landings in the Pacific in a little more than a year. He has been in the thick of it at Makin atoll in the Gilberts, at Bougainville, Roi, Eniwetok, Guam, Saipan, and Palau, and finally on Leyte.

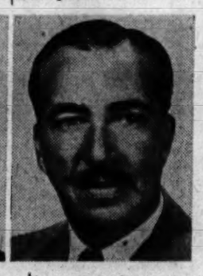
Tom Morrow, whose versatility as reporter, writer, and executive made him one of the most valuable men of THE TRIBUNE's Chicago staff, is having his first taste of war aboard a carrier in the Pacific. His initial dispatches brought Chicagoans news of their sons.

Walter Simmons, the writer who brought Tribune readers the thrilling story of Maj. Joe Foss, the Flying Marine, is newly arrived on Leyte Island in the Philippines, where he has begun to write stirringly first hand of the scenes Joe Foss described to him in 1943.

Arthur Veysey has faced the Japs with American troops on many a blazing Pacific front, but his humorous and touching stories of G. I. Joe in the jungle have made him a favorite with Tribune readers. They call him the G. I. Joe reporter of the Pacific.

Alex Small was viewing war as early as 1936, in Spain, where he almost faced a firing squad. After that he covered the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia, the invasion of Poland and France, headed The Tribune Berlin bureau, and was interned, then went to Africa and India. He is on leave now.

The Jugoslav firing squad was loading rifles for Sam Brewer when fellow newspaper men arrived and told the Slavs he was not a spy. This was in 1941. Afterward, Brewer covered the British campaigns in Africa. He now is reporting on the Balkan powder keg, from Bucharest, Romania.



Stanley Johnston, the only American correspondent at the battle of the Coral sea, gave the world the stirring story of the gallant carrier Lexington's last hours. Lately Johnston has covered assignments in Mexico and Central and South America.

Larry Rue, with THE TRIBUNE since the last war, covers Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters, but readers remember most vividly his stories of the 1940-'41 bomb blitz of London. Before heading the London bureau, Rue reported the news in Europe, Asia, and Africa.

William Strand's career led him thru the city hall and the federal building, Chicago, to the national capital in Washington, then to Africa, Sicily, Italy, England, and now to cover the drive for Berlin. His story of the allied bombing of Monte Cassino monastery was a classic.

David Darrah, chief of the Paris bureau, joined THE TRIBUNE in 1919, was expelled from Italy by Mussolini, headed the London bureau, then covered the Petain regime at Vichy until the Nazis put him in a concentration camp, where he stayed more than a year before being exchanged.

Don Starr, former head of THE TRIBUNE'S New York bureau, is now in Australia, arranging publication of The Overseas Tribune for service men. His struggle to bring American news to the Pacific troops is drawing to a successful close.

Frank Sturdy, aviation editor, first heard the crash of big guns when the North Pacific fleet shelled the Jap island of Matsuwa recently. Sturdy, an accredited war correspondent, was finishing a lengthy Alaskan assignment when his chance came.

Frank Cipriani recently returned to Chicago from an assignment to Greenland and Iceland with the army air transport command. An accredited war correspondent, Cipriani serves with the Chicago staff between out of town and out of the country assignments.

Joseph Cerutti, like other Tribune men of the London bureau, went thru the black days of invasion threats, of day and nights blitz bombings, and the buzz bomb era. He now helps cover England under the scourge of the V-2.

From the beachheads of the Pacific to the beaches of Normandy, Gary Sheahan, noted Tribune artist, carried his pencils, crayons, and oils. Hundreds of families have glimpsed their sons at the front thru his sketches.

James E. Sloan, who for years edited copy from the battle fronts on THE TRIBUNE'S cable news desk, now is a reporter in the Tribune London bureau, covering diplomatic, political, and economic news, as well as the doings of parliament.

PEER VISIONS BRITISH CAPITAL MOVED ABROAD

LONDON, Dec. 7 (AP).—A suggestion that the British Isles may one day become a "Malta of the North sea" with the empire capital overseas was heard in the house of lords today.

Asserting "we should treat the British commonwealth of nations and empire as one unit before it is too late," Robert Bewicke-Copley said "in the not too distant future I can visualize this island becoming a Malta of the North sea. The proper approach to the problem is to move the population overseas to the raw materials and not vice versa.

"And besides it would avoid the strategic folly of placing all our eggs in one basket and of having our headquarters in the firing line as now."

NIMITZ TELLS OF PEARL HARBOR CARRIER SINKING

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Dec. 7.—The last of the six Japanese aircraft carriers which attacked Pearl Harbor three years ago lies at the bottom of the sea in the Philippines, Adm. Nimitz related here today.

He told how four of the carriers, the Kaga, Akagi, Soryo and Hiryu, were destroyed in the battle of Midway on June 4 and 5, 1942.

"To catch the Shokaku and the Suikaku, and thus repay the Jap one score of his coming retribution for Pearl Harbor, we had to do quite a bit of patient waiting and ceaseless stalking," he said. "Finally, in the first battle of the Philippines sea on June 19 and 20, this year, the Shokaku was sent to the bottom. It took nearly three years to bring the Suikaku to book. Our third fleet caught her northeast of Luzon. The sea is three miles deep where she lies on the bottom."

SUSPECT SEIZED IN KILLING OF 4 IN NEW JERSEY

Woodbridge, N. J., Dec. 7 (AP).—A six hour hunt by police ended tonight when the fugitive, a 24 year old laborer alleged to have shot and killed his father-in-law, two Carteret policemen, and a 14 year old Negro girl, and wounded another policeman, surrendered at Woodbridge police headquarters.

Police Chief Henry Harrington of Carteret, where the shooting occurred, identified the man as Danny Molnar. Dead were Deputy Chief Robert Shanley, Officer Walter Rushniak, Adam Rozanski, Molnar's father-in-law, and Alice Scott, 14, all of Carteret, who died in Perth Amboy General hospital. Officer Daniel Kasha was reported in serious condition at the hospital. The Scott girl was hit by a stray bullet during the chase.

Harrington said police had fired a field in which Molnar was believed to be hiding. Coroner Joseph V. Costello said Molnar had visited his estranged wife at his father-in-law's house and that a shooting affray began there.

TRIBUNE WRITER TELLS LESSONS OF PACIFIC WAR

Philippines Soon Will Be Retaken, Says Smith.

Speaking from the experience gained in 10 combat landings in which he took part, Harold P. Smith, Tribune war correspondent who returned recently from the Pacific theater, predicted in a talk yesterday that the superb teamwork of American military leaders and the courage of Yank soldiers soon will drive the Japanese out of the Philippines.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, introduced the speaker to the more than 500 members and guests who filled the main dining room of the Union League club.

In the audience were 11 marine veterans of many of the decisive battles in the Pacific area. Some had taken part in landings in which Smith participated, and some had suffered wounds.

What "Casualty" Means.

Attention turned to these wounded when Smith said:

"The word casualty doesn't sound so terrible in the communiques. What it means on the beach, tho, is lots of bodies strewn around on the ground, some of which were men you had been talking to only a few minutes before.

"It means little parties of litter bearers crawling out over open spaces where bullets are kicking up spurts of sand, finding the guy who's moaning or yelling 'corpsman,'" the speaker said. "The word casualty has a meaning all its own to the fellow who knows he may be one any moment."

Smith did not relate that he himself was a casualty in the fighting at Eniwetok, nor will he know until he reads this account that his office learned of the sequel—his refusal to allow his name to be submitted for the Purple Heart award.

Capt. William Cessna, a former Tribune employe now in the Pacific sent word to Chicago that Smith was caught in the explosion of a Jap mortar shell that seriously wounded a public relations officer and killed a photographer for Yank magazine.

Refused Purple Heart.

Smith suffered wounds to his right arm. The commanding officer of the battalion he was with intended to recommend him for the Purple Heart. It was only because of Smith's refusal to accept it that the recommendation didn't go in.

He had completed nine combat landings several months ago when word was sent he could return home on leave. He didn't arrive. It developed that he had known of the plans to invade the Philippines and preferred to stay for his 10th combat assignment.

His talk on his observations with the fighting forces during 15 months in the Pacific commended the strategy of army and navy leaders which cut years from the task of sweeping back into the Philippines. He praised the fighting men for raw courage that turned the bloody assault on Tarawa into a morale builder for the soldiers who followed.

PARTIAL TEXT OF TALK

A partial text of Smith's report on his observations follows:

"A glance at the map will show how our strategists planned and executed their return sweep to the Philippines, not by island to island hopping which some one has estimated might have taken 288 years, but by moving from area to area, neutralizing all enemy opposition behind them, using long range bombers to soften up the next place to be attacked.

"That explains how we were able, in little more than two years of our western offensives, to deny the enemy the use of the islands which for many years he had counted on so heavily to protect him from interference while he perfected his greater east Asia co-prosperity sphere, a sphere that is now beginning to assume the proportions of an eight ball.

Gilberts Campaign Vital.

"The Gilberts campaign was not only the first in the Central Pacific; it was also one of the most important. Specifically its most important battle was that of Tarawa, which I will discuss even tho I did not see it because I was busy at Makin, a hundred miles to the north.

"Tarawa was our first assault on a strongly defended coral atoll. An atoll is a string of islands and submerged reefs surrounding a lagoon. The lagoon usually has few passages. The islands are typically long and narrow, only a few feet above sea level. They generally are protected on both the sea and lagoon sides with coral barrier reefs or shelves extending outward sometimes as much as a thousand feet.

"They make good defensive positions, and Tarawa was expectional in that respect. We knew nothing much about how to attack a fortified atoll, so we had to learn. We learned at Tarawa, and we have had much occasion since to apply those lessons.

Pillboxes Close Together.

"The Jap had built into his Tarawa fortifications everything he knew about modern warfare. Guarding the likely landing beaches, he had a line of pillboxes and gun emplacements so close together that you could travel several hundred yards by leaping from one to the next. Behind were other pillboxes and shelters whose gun ports covered each other's entrances. All these positions were thickly roofed to withstand virtually anything but direct bomb or shell hits.

"Our marines attacked from the lagoon side, and when their boats hit the coral shelf several hundred feet from the beach they found there wasn't enough water. They jumped out and waded in against an indescribably murderous wall of fire from the emplacements our preparatory bombardment had failed to destroy.

Blow to Japs' Morale.

"For raw courage, that attack merits even the most extravagant praise in which it has been sung. The Japs had boasted that in Tarawa, a bastion several thousand miles out from their homeland, they had a fortress that couldn't be taken in a million years. The 2d marines took it in 76 hours. The enemy has never recovered from the psychological blow.

"At Tarawa we learned how to get the tops off Jap pillboxes to pour our own medicine inside. We learned what weapons are most effective against various construction materials. We learned how to negotiate barrier reefs under fire, where to concentrate our preparatory bombs and naval gunfire, the limitations of some assault craft, the unsuspected possibilities of others.

"That is why I regard the violent criticism of the heavy casualties at Tarawa as so much hogwash. Many of the marines and soldiers in subsequent landings are alive today only because of the things we learned about a new kind of fighting on the bloody sands of Betio Island in Tarawa atoll.

"Kwajalein and Eniwetok atolls, next on the Central Pacific schedule, were interesting operations for two reasons. One was that Eniwetok was a spur-of-the-moment attack, made with the leftover men and materials from Kwajalein. The Eniwetok campaign was planned and executed in three weeks.

"The second point of interest was that to get at Kwajalein and Eniwetok which are in the western part of the Marshalls group we steamed right past the group's most formidable fortifications, on Maloelap, Wotje, Mille, and Jaluit. That was in our very best by-passing tradition.

New Fighting on Saipan.

"Saipan, a very important island strategically, brought us to another new kind of fighting. Saipan is a mountainous island protected by a barrier reef several hundred yards out from the shore. There for the first time we transferred outside the reef from assault boats into amphibious tractors—alligators and amtracks are other names for them—and hit the beach that way.

"The amtracks crawl right up on shore and therefore let you keep your feet dry, but in other ways they weren't so hot. The long ground swells banged us down on the reef pretty hard. I was the last man aboard my amtrack and there wasn't room for me in the cockpit, so I roosted up in the stern like a duck on a rock, shifting uneasily on the hot plates of the engine compartment.

"Saipan was secured last July 9, 24 days after we landed. It fell so swiftly not only because of the fury of the combined attack of the 27th infantry and the 2d and 4th marine divisions but also because of the stupidity of the defenders. The island is ideal defensive terrain.

"But the Nip had set his biggest guns right out on the beach where our battleships could shoot at them point blank. He held heavy guard in the valleys and gullies leading up to the high hills, but he neglected to defend the ridges, up which our boys toiled in the insufferable subtropical summer sun. He omitted to provide auxiliary outlets from his caves, in which large groups of his soldiers were trapped hopelessly, to be dug out and killed at our leisure.

"The Japs' plans didn't call for completion of Saipan's defenses until late this year. We caught them in the midst of concrete pouring on their forts. North of Garapan we found three large guns on a railroad siding, still in their crates.

Americans' Chivalry Told.

"Here was the first time we came up against any considerable number of Japanese civilians, of whom there were about 23,000. A majority of them lived in the three towns on the west coast, Charan-Kanoa, Garapan, and Tanapag. The civilians stayed behind their own lines, retreating with their soldiers, and it was several days before we began to round them up in any great number.

"Even in the heat of battle our men didn't forget the chivalry they feel toward women and children. Sex is sex, even in war, and it was noticeable that the prettiest girls in the civilian detention areas got special treatment from our marines and soldiers.

"The kids, too, made out all right. They must have thought all the candy in the world was contained in our boys' rations. Where the older people were stolid and unresponsive, the kids made friends quickly and moved without fear or suspicion among our lads.

"In covering the Jap war you quickly get used to their soldier suicides, but in Saipan we had our first frightening experience with mass civilian self-destruction. I say frightening because there's something horrible about seeing noncombatant people whose lives you're trying to save deliberately throw them away.

"There were literally hundreds of civilian suicides on the north end of Saipan. They leaped over cliffs, drowned themselves in the ocean, destroyed themselves with hand grenades.

"Guam was an important conquest for us, not only because of its strategic importance but also for sentimental reasons. Its 23,000 Chamorro civilians, tho they are not even American citizens—they have the status merely of nonvoting nationals—resisted Japanese occupation thruout 31 months with a smouldering hatred of the enemy that did not ease his lot.

New Concept of Freedom.

"I've been asked what I consider my most memorable experience in this war. Near the top of the list is the recapture of Guam. The experience gave me a new concept of what this freedom of ours really is. It gave some point to the deaths I had seen my comrades die. It made me wish that I could wake some of those boys from their last long sleep and say: 'See, this is what you have done.'

"Palau's importance is entirely strategic. It is a handy air refueling stop as well as a base from which to keep near-by Nip fields neutralized. By occupying only two of the smaller islands, Peleliu and Angaur, we control all the others, including Babelthuap, where maybe as many as 40,000 Japs are now isolated.

"While Palau is at the far end of the Carolines chain, which stretches more than 1,500 miles across the mid-Pacific, it was the first of our Carolines invasions. Ulithi, from which we hold military sway over Jap held Yap, only 77 miles to the west, was our second conquest in that chain and the only one besides Palau. So far that has been our most spectacular demonstration of the by-passing technique.

Japs Lose Raw Materials.

"Our supremacy in Palau also deprives the enemy of valuable raw materials. Angaur, small as it is, was Japan's principal source of phosphate, a fertilizer she needs greatly in her overpopulated, highly cultivated homeland. Babelthuap has valuable deposits of bauxite ore, from which aluminum is obtained, as well as some coal and large guano deposits.

"During the first few days on Peleliu it was plenty hot everywhere. There I first heard and saw in flight a new type of projectile I still haven't been able to identify. It came low over our heads from the direction of the nose, and it didn't travel straight, but at an angle to its line of flight. It came over with a monstrous fluttering noise which made all of us duck involuntarily. Some one said it sounded as if it was full of loose straps.

"In one of those quick shifts of plan which are becoming commonplace as our strategists gain more experience and smoothness, the Philippines invasion was shoved up a full two months, and on Oct. 20 the greatest amphibious force ever assembled in the Pacific swooped down on Leyte. We kept the enemy off balance and had most of Leyte Island before he could make a determined stand.

Attack Possibilities Cited.

"And now, what of the immediate future in the Pacific? It is no secret that MacArthur intends to drive the Japs out of the Philippines—and if they keep coming at him as they have, he may well kill them all on Leyte. In due course the strategic island of Luzon will be back in our hands.

"When that happens we'll have the Japs in a bad spot. We'll be in position then to make any of several moves.

"We can attack Formosa, 200 miles across Luzon strait. We can drive for China, 400 miles across the South China sea. Or we can go direct to the Jap main islands, 1,000 miles to the northeast, and there conceivably establish a base from which to push the war on into Korea, Manchuria, or North China.

"We will be squarely astride the vital enemy supply line between his industries in the north and his East Indian legions, and our airplanes, war ships, and submarines can slash his shipping to shreds.

"Don't worry about the courage or resourcefulness or energy of our fighting men, for in those qualities they are the best in the world. On the third anniversary of the Pacific war, you ask how soon it will end. I say it's up to you."

BONG GETS 38TH JAP PLANE AND HIGHEST AWARD

Congressional Medal of Honor Given to Ace.

Bags Two More

A LEYTE, PHILIPPINES, AIR BASE, Dec. 7 (AP).—Maj. Richard I. Bong, America's premier air ace, racked up two more victories during the furious fighting over Leyte today, bringing his total of Japanese planes downed to 38. Bong, returning to action after several weeks of inactivity, bagged his two victims during the Japanese attack on the 77th United States infantry division landing near Ormoc.

[Maj. Bong's nearest competitor is the navy's Comdr. David McCampbell, who has downed 34 planes.]

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—Maj. Richard I. Bong, the 23 year old Poplar, Wis., farm boy who once said he would go nuts if he couldn't keep flying in combat, has been awarded the congressional medal of honor for shooting down eight Japanese planes between Oct. 10 and Nov. 15, the war department announced today.

The eight planes, knocked out of the air during a period when Maj. Bong was a gunnery inspector and not required to fly in combat brought his total bag to 36. Each of his victories was scored against the Japanese in aerial combat.

Highest Government Award.

The citation that went with the coveted medal—the government's highest award—said that Maj. Bong, altho assigned to duty as gunnery inspector and neither required nor expected to perform combat duty, "voluntarily and his own urgent request engaged in repeated combat missions, including unusually hazardous sorties over Balikpapan, Borneo, and in the Leyte area of the Philippines. . . . His aggressiveness and daring resulted in his shooting down eight enemy airplanes during this period."

Maj. Bong, while in the United States on leave last April after bagging his 27th plane and breaking the record of 26 planes established in World War I. by Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, said he was a poor shot, was back home "to learn something about shooting."

Has Score of Decorations.

The American ace previously had been awarded more than a score of decorations, including the distinguished service cross, the silver star with oak leaf cluster, the distinguished flying cross with four clusters and the air medal with clusters.

When Maj. Bong scored his 27th victory Capt. Rickenbacker cabled him congratulations and said he was sending him a case of Scotch whisky. Gen. Arnold, chief of the army air forces, sent him two cases of soft drinks, with the observation that he understood he wasn't a drinking man. Gen. MacArthur banned the gift of Scotch as "not appropriate recognition" and promoted Bong from captain to major.

CHIANG REJECTS RED PROPOSAL, OFFERS ANOTHER

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 7 (AP).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has rejected a proposal by the Chinese Communists to establish a "democratic coalition government" and has offered counter-proposals, the communist delegate, Gen. Chou En-lai, said today as he returned to Yenan.

Authoritative quarters said that the refusal of the government to enter into a formal coalition agreement did not mean that the Communists or other political elements outside the Kuomintang [Chinese national party] would be excluded from participation in the government

Chou carried with him the Chungking government's proposals for a settlement of the Communist-Kuomintang deadlock for consideration of the communist leaders in Yenan. Terms of these proposals were not announced.

THAT MAN BRITT RECEIVES HIS 3D TOP MEDAL

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Capt. Maurice L. Britt today became the first army man in the nation's history to receive his country's three highest combat awards in a single war.

Maj. Gen. Fred L. Walker, commandant of the Fort Benning, Ga., infantry school, pinned the distinguished service cross beside the medal of honor and the Silver Star on the uniform of the Lonoke, Ark., hero.

Britt, who was wounded four times and lost his right arm, was cited for "extraordinary heroism" in leading an attack which resulted in the seizure of an important crossing north of Campo Morto, Italy, on Jan. 26.

HIGH CASUALTIES FORCE YOUTHS 18 TO GO TO BATTLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—The army policy of withholding youths under 19 years of age from active battlefronts has been swept aside by the necessity of replacements in the infantry and armored forces, and boys under 19 now are being sent overseas, Undersecretary of War Patterson disclosed today.

In a Pearl Harbor anniversary day press conference, he told reporters that in Europe, "we are suffering severe casualties and are facing the grim prospect of more to come." He said our army and navy casualties on all fronts now total 552,018, with 121,363 killed.

Patterson said "there is no hard and fast rule based on age any more," but asserted that under no circumstances are any youths under 19 being sent abroad to serve in active sectors unless they have had the necessary physical hardening and sufficient training.

Eight Months of Training.

He said that generally a draftee receives eight months of training before he is assigned to an active sector and that a youth inducted at 18 would be at least 18 years and eight months old before he sees active service.

Interfere with Training.

He said the course of the war will determine how long this new policy will be followed. The move was dictated, he said, by the increased tempo of the war in Europe and the Pacific, which is requiring the bulk of our forces, coupled with the diminishing supply of draftees over 19.

Patterson said the army had avoided using 18 year olds in active fighting heretofore by withdrawing thousands of men from divisions in training in the United States but that now further withdrawals would seriously interfere with the completion of training.

Army casualties thru Nov. 22 were 474,898, an increase of 13,840 since last week's report which covered the period to Nov. 15. Navy casualties total 77,120, an increase of 1,228 since last week. The army figures are: Killed, 91,625; wounded, 268,099; missing, 58,926; prisoners, 56,248. Navy: Killed, 29,738; wounded, 33,469; missing, 9,427; prisoners, 4,486.

ARMY FIGHTER GROUP BAGS 600TH PLANE; CHICAGOAN GETS ONE

A LEYTE AIR BASE, Dec. 7 (AP).—The American 49th fighter plane group, top ranking army unit, swept past its 600th victory mark today, shooting down 15 Japanese planes in a day long battle on the west coast of Leyte.

Maj. Gerald Johnson, Eugene, Ore., set the pace by downing three Jap fighters when the enemy attempted to attack the American landing force south of Ormoc. This raised his total to 22.

George Grace, 6533 N. Campbell av., Chicago, a Thunderbolt pilot, shot down one plane.

WPB HEAD ASKS 'TEETH' IN LABOR CONTROL LAWS

Demands Penalties for Violators of Decrees.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP).—Chairman Krug of the war production board called upon congress today for penalties against employers and employes who ignore decrees channeling labor toward key war jobs.

A present shortage of 311,000 workers will be overcome this month by voluntary methods, he told the senate war investigating committee, but he cautioned:

If recurring shortages are to be prevented in key industries, the war man power commission must have statutory backing for its regulations preventing workers from leaving key industries and prohibiting civilian employers from hiring above fixed quotas.

Needs "More Teeth."

In a spirited exchange with Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] Krug testified that only 59 workers [net] had been added in tire manufacturing plants since last spring because the commission needed "more teeth."

"Why haven't they the teeth to do the job?" Ferguson demanded.

"Primarily because congress refused to vote a national service law," he said.

If the war agencies had the same control over workers as they have over the flow of materials, he said, "the man power problem would have been solved."

Continue Labor Recruiting.

The immediate deficiencies, Krug said, are being solved by such means as:

Nation-wide recruiting by organized labor; scaling down of civilian production in critical labor areas; plant-to-plant surveys looking to the establishment of financial and other "incentives" to workers to keep them on the job; and constant consultation among key war agencies.

The labor department reported, meantime, that the "quit rate" among workers in war plants dropped in October to 48 per 1,000, compared to 56 per 1,000 in August and September. The separation rate in October—those who quit, were fired, laid off, or left to join the fighting forces—was 64 out of every 1,000 factory workers, the lowest since November, 1943.

Service Act Sought.

Undersecretary of War Patterson told a news conference that Secretary Stimson's call last January for a national service art "remains the firm policy of the war department."

A special war production report stated that new crises will develop as long as fighting continues on any front.

"The Japanese campaign may bring forth an entirely new set of musts," said the report prepared by Vice Chairman H. G. Batcheller, the WPB's chief of operations.

The report analyzed each major shortage—including big guns and ammunition, trucks and tires, assault ships, communication wire, Super Fortresses, and A-26 "Invader" planes.

Batcheller urged that ceilings be imposed quickly on the number of workers in less essential war plants as well as in civilian factories.

He criticized selective service for "still cutting in on the labor supply" of critical foundries, saying 300 such shops contributing to tank, truck, and other production, especially around Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, and Milwaukee, need 16,000 workers.

Iowa Child Slain

[Acme Telephoto.]

JEAN JOYCE LASTRIETER.

Davenport, Ia., Dec. 7. — Davenport police are holding Robert Schlimmer, 20, who, Chief of Police Reed Phillips said, admitted killing Jean Joyce Lastrieter, 2, yesterday in his home by walking on her.

Phillips declared Schlimmer told officers that the child was crying and would not go to sleep so he placed her on the floor and walked on her. No charge has been filed.

Since the death of her mother, the child had been raised by an aunt, who had left the child in Schlimmer's custody, Phillips said.

STAY IN WAR JOB AND SAVE YANKS, COLONEL URGES

So many war workers are quitting Chicago ammunition and heavy artillery production plants that the army and navy are worried, Col. Dan A. Hardt, chairman of the army and war man power commission production urgency committee, said at a press conference yesterday.

Remarking that today has been proclaimed "Heavy Artillery" day in the sixth zone, which includes Chicago, Col. Hardt renewed an appeal for more workers for the production lines in these plants.

"This," said Col. Hardt, "is more than an appeal. It is a matter of life and death."

He pointed out that there are two ways of waging a war: The German system of sacrificing a lot of men to conserve supplies and the American system of using a lot of ammunition and losing fewer men.

"Individual workers now on critical jobs," continued Col. Hardt, "have the gravest responsibility of their lives. They must accept this responsibility and overcome any urge to leave their jobs for any reason other than sickness."

KUM BUM LAMA'S TRIAL IN FRAUD SET FOR JAN. 29

Trial of Hugh Greer Carruthers, 56, who terms himself a human engineer and lama of Kum Bum, on charges of mail fraud was set yesterday by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan for Jan. 29. Pleas of not guilty were entered for Carruthers and two co-defendants, Mary Morel, business manager, and Evelyn Kroell, 32, secretary of the Neological Foundation, of which Carruthers is director. Carruthers is accused of obtaining $300,000 thru mail fraud from investors for products he said he manufactured.

SEDITION TRIAL ENDS; NEW ONE IS UP TO BIDDLE

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—With nearly all the 26 defendants refusing to agree to a continuation of the prosecution under another judge the mass sedition trial, interrupted last week by the death of Justice Edward C. Eicher, came to an end today.

After polling the defendants Justice James M. Proctor declared a mistrial and dismissed the jurors, instructing each one "not to speak to any one about your impressions, or views or any conclusions you may have reached." Only one defendant, Prescott Dennett, consented to go on with the trial under another judge. Twenty-two declined and three refused to answer the court's question.

Thus ended for the time being at least the pending effort of the department of justice to prove that the defendants, including a collection of obscure anti-war, anti-semitic, and anti-communist propagandists, all opponents of the Roosevelt administration, had conspired to undermine the loyalty and morale of the army and navy and set up a Nazi form of government in the United States.

Three Indictments Procured.

In the course of this effort three indictments were procured, two of which were largely invalidated by the courts. The trial had consumed eight months when Justice Eicher died and was expected to last another year. More than 3 million words of testimony, comprising 18,000 pages, had been taken. Of the original 30 defendants, one had died and three had been severed from the mass trial.

Whether there will be another trial is for Atty. Gen. Biddle to decide. O. John Rogge, the government prosecutor, said today he will make a recommendation of a course of action to the attorney general, but he would not say what it would be.

The decorum of the proceedings today contrasted with the turbulence of the court sessions presided over by Justice Eicher, who came into collision with defense attorneys by shutting off their arguments and overruling their objections en masse. Justice Proctor had cut and dried the proceedings and forbade any remarks by counsel.

1,100 Trial Exhibits.

The justice wanted defendants to understand that it was for the court to decide whether a continuation of the trial is feasible, that an extended postponement would be necessary to allow the new judge to read 18,000 pages of testimony and examine 1,100 exhibits, some of them very voluminous, and that he did not know who the new judge would be. Calling for a categorical answer of yes or no to the question of continuation under these circumstances, the judge had the defendants polled, thru their counsel.

Albert W. Dilling answered "No on legal grounds" on behalf of his client and former wife, Elizabeth Dilling of Chicago, who was not present. Dilling explained after the session that the trial could not have been continued legally under another judge. He cited the ruling of the United States court of appeals in the Freeman case in 1915 that justice requires the presence of the same judge and jury thruout the trial of a criminal case.

The jury was then admitted and Justice Proctor stated that in view of the refusal of the defendants he was compelled to discontinue the case and declare a mistrial.

Dennis Protests Gag.

Lawrence Dennis, one of the defendants acting as his own counsel, took an exception to Justice Proctor's discharge of the jurors with an injunction sealing their lips.

"The court," Dennis said afterward, "had no legal right to enjoin silence upon the discharged jurors. Evidently the government was afraid the jurors would say that no case had been presented against the defendants in the eight months of the trial. I refused to agree to continuation of the trial under another judge because I had been advised that had I done so I would have condoned all the errors of Judge Eicher. I would have been willing if I could have reserved my exceptions to his rulings."

When the trial ended Rogge was in process of offering 4,000 exhibits to prove the alleged conspiracy. Dennis said that if the charges of conspiracy were susceptible of proof they could have been proved with a very few documents. Dennis said Rogge, unable to do this, had attempted to establish a historical thesis by a multiplicity of repetitious, often voluminous, exhibits. He said that had compelled him to adopt the same line for his defense.

Identical in Character.

"I had over 8,000 exhibits, card indexed and ready to tender in support of my historical thesis rebutting the prosecution's historical thesis," said Dennis. "My exhibits were identical in character to those the government offered. Before sustaining objection to each of my exhibits the judge would have been compelled to read each exhibit and listen to my argument for its admission. This would have taken years."

Dennis said the defense is fighting for acquittal, not for a record for appeal in case of conviction, for the reason that under local practice a convicted defendant must remain in jail until reversal of conviction on appeal.

"It would take at least two years to get the record printed and appropriate briefs and bills of exception prepared for appeal," said Dennis. "It is fairly certain that the war will be over and any convicted defendants pardoned or paroled long before convictions could be reversed on appeal."

$9,000, NOT $18,000, PAID ON TARNOWSKY HOME, COURT IS TOLD

Only lawyers were present in Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg's court yesterday for a hearing affecting the De Tarnowsky family difficulties. They brought out that Mrs. Alice Rand De Tarnowsky McIntosh, who is reported to be in California, sold her interest in her Barrington home to a real estate dealer for less than offered by her former husband, Capt. Alex De Tarnowsky, who is in France.

The buyer, Paul Plast, 30 N. La Salle st., has been enjoined from occupying the house. The hearing was on his petition to dissolve the injunction. He did not appear and Judge Feinberg let the order stand.

Plat's attorney, Henry Biossat, said Plast paid $9,000 for Mrs. de Tarnowsky's interest. Capt. De Tarnowsky's lawyer, Norman Becker, exclaimed: "We offered her $11,500 and we had understood Plast paid $18,000."

$610,241,000 SALES PUT BOND DRIVE PAST ITS CORPORATE GOAL

Chicago and Cook county have oversubscribed their corporate purchases of bonds in the current 6th war loan drive, Francis M. Knight, chairman of the city-county drive, said yesterday. At the close of business Tuesday, he said, the corporate sales totaled $610,241,000, or 101.6 per cent of the $600,564,000 corporate quota. A heavy oversubscription is probable, Knight said.

Individual bond sales total $121,008,000, or 51.3 per cent of the $235,596,000 quota. Increased buying will be necessary to meet this quota by the end of the month, Knight said. Overall sales for the city and county rose to $731,250,000, or 87.4 per cent of the combined quota of $836,160,000. Overall sales for the state, including Chicago and Cook county, total $892,300,000, or 86.3 per cent of the entire state quota of $1,034,000,000. Total national sales amount to $13,607,000,000, or 97 per cent of the grand quota of $14,000,000,000.

The third anniversay of Pearl Harbor stimulated Chicago sales. A. C. McArthur, president of the American Bataan clan of Maywood, in a special address, in the name of the Bataan heroes, said: "We ask you to reinforce our prayers with fighting action here on the home front. Buy 6th war loan bonds."

TRIBUNE WRITER TARGET IN GREEK NO MAN'S LAND

Cheered by Guerrillas; Then Fired On.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. 7.—A move by American correspondents to get a picture of the other side of this civil war—a story of left wing Greek guerrilla forces fighting Greek nationalists and British in the streets of Athens—ended in what might be termed high comedy today. But it would not have been so comical for two of us if three fanatical left wing snipers had been able to shoot just a bit straighter.

The first stage of our walking trip was uneventful. Without incident we penetrated deep within a section of the city held by forces of the Greek National Liberation front [EAM]. Trouble came when we attempted to cross one of Athen's main streets in No Man's land between the leftists and British patrols.

Riflemen Open Fire.

The first of our party crossed safely but three riflemen hidden in a near-by building opened fire when Reginald Ingraham of Time magazine and I made the attempt.

The move to reach the ELAS [EAM militia] lines began early this afternoon. Leaving the Gran Bretagne hotel, which has been converted into a fortress, we went thru deserted streets towerd the poorer section of the city. As we climbed the steep Athens roadways we could look down on an area around the Acropolis, which was the scene of fierce fighting. We watched royal air force Beaufighters diving and strafing with cannon fire and could see the flashing explosion of shells from British 25 pound guns firing into the area beyond the Acropolis.

Hailed by Civilians.

Despite the vicious fighting being waged around them, inhabitants of the district swarmed into the streets to welcome us as soon as they learned we were Americans. Shouting, "Long live Roosevelt," and "Long live America," they crowded around, unmindful of occasional close bullets. One old man proudly exhibited United States naturalization papers as he trudged beside me.

Near a principal intersection British machine gunners behind a wall warned us ELAS members were just ahead. We kept on, hoping the guerrillas could see the small American flags on our arms, and at the intersection we ran into the first ELAS outpost.

From a heavy concrete pillbox, apparently left behind by the Germans, shadowy figures watched us and 50 feet across the intersection the first ELAS soldier stepped up to question us. He carried a tommy gun and wore several bandoliers of cartridges with German hand grenades tucked into his belt.

Guerrillas Friendly.

Despite the ferocity with which ELAS guerrillas have fought the nationalists and the British, they were extremely friendly to us. Again cheers began and the farther we walked along the narrow streets the greater became the crowd following us happily.

Everywhere, it was evident the leftists intend to make a hard fight—heavily manned pillboxes, rooftop machine gun nests, and snipers crouched waiting behind hastily prepared breast works.

Organization was evident. Twice we saw well dressed men in civilian clothes carrying white bags with red crosses, obviously doctors to attend the wounded. Several priests beamed at us. Quite a few children were busy lugging what was apparently machine gun ammunition.

One ELAS member walked ahead with a white flag to keep overanxious guerrilas from shooting and this system worked fine until we attempted to cross Patissai road, a broad avenue with car tracks in the center.

The first of the correspondents crossed peacefully. Ingraham and I just reached the street when rifles cracked and bullets whined past. We ducked back to crouch behind a post which immediately became a target. Bullets pecked at it and the pavement.

Funny—in Movie.

It would have been funny in a movie. The white flag bearer walked back into the street and the shooting stopped. So once more we tried, got 10 feet from the post, and again the bullets whizzed around us. As we tumbled back toward the post we could see the flash of the rifles fired at us from a building. Then as the riflemen kept pecking at us we began a process of trying to fit our bodies behind a foot thick post with no parts showing. It was impossible but it kept us occupied.

Twice we readied ourselves for a spring to the safety of a wall 50 feet away but each time, just as we were ready to go, a bullet discouraged us. The third time we made it despite firing from hidden snipers.

A British jeep found us shortly after, picked us up, then dashed across the street to rescue the others. Then, with George Weller of the Chicago Daily News at the wheel and gunners ready for action, we ran the gantlet down the Pistissai road at 50 miles an hour, not slowing up until the tank guarded British headquarters building came into view.

Used All Ammunition.

The hidden snipers who worked us over never fired at the jeep. They must have used all their ammunition in those long, long five minutes.

One of the few Americans witnessing this civil war in Athens is Miss Patricia Hooper, 4729 Washington st., Downers Grove, Ill., a pretty girl who arrived here yesterday from Cairo as part of an allied relief unit for Greece.

Just two months out of the United States, she had an introduction to war immediately upon her arrival. With correspondents, she raced into the city from the airport in an armed British truck. All last night British artillery boomed outside her window and today she stood with us in the streets watching the cannon firing planes making low level attacks. With other relief personnel she is living in a hotel guarded by British troops.

Britain Accused of Creating Allied Disunity for Own Ends

BY PHILIP DODD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—In a blistering senate speech charging Great Britain with using the war to further her imperial aims, Sen. Ellender [D., La.] today accused that nation of taking the lead in creating disunity among the allies.

Sen. Ellender.

"Today, on the eve of victory in Europe over Germany," Ellender said, "Great Britain is taking the lead in causing disunity among the allies, not only by words, but by actual deeds.

"I am not surprised, because Great Britain is running true to form. She is a past master in the art of world politics and she has always been able to make weaker nations bow to her terms and to obtain the help of other nations to maintain her power."

Introduces Resolution.

Ellender introduced a resolution, intended, he said, as a warning to Great Britain. It would put the senate on record as regarding any bloc of nations for military purposes as inimical to international peace and security, unless such a grouping was in conjunction with a world security organization. The resolution was referred to the foreign relations committee.

The presence of British armies in Greece and Ethiopia and British meddling in the formation of an Italian government were cited by Ellender as examples of British attempts to influence other nations. He charged that many British decisions in the war have been based on political issues rather than military strategy.

"Several weeks ago," Ellender said, "the Russians had virtually driven the enemy from Greece. In spite of that, the British saw fit to send an army to obtain control of that helpless country. Today Great Britain is engaged, by force of arms, in dictating to the Greek people whom they shall select as their leader."

Diverted British Troops.

Ellender recalled that early in the war the British on two occasions were on the verge of driving the Germans from North Africa, yet sent half their forces to Greece. The reason, he said, was to fulfill a promise made by Prime Minister Churchill to King George of Greece, so that the British could enlist King George's aid at the peace table.

"My belief," said Ellender, "is that Great Britain will persist in that attitude of seeking to expand her vast empire and to form blocs of nations here and there all over the world so as to help her maintain her pre-war world-wide domination, unless we in America take a hand.

"With a navy larger than the combined navies of all other countries in the world, and with a respectable army, it would seem to me that we should be able to force the British to see the light!

Armies in Conquered Lands.

"Why should Great Britain maintain armies in reconquered Greece, in reconquered Ethiopia, and in other conquered territories, when those armies could be used to advantage against the western wall of Germany?" Ellender asked.

"Take a look at the map indicating the battle line in western Europe and you will note that the British occupy a few lines on the northern end of the line, while we are bearing the brunt of this holocaust of war.

"While we are shedding our precious blood, while we are dissipating our irreplaceable resources, the British are pursuing a course that is diametrically opposed to the objects for which we in America are fighting. We want to free people and permit them to govern themselves."

Ellender said he did not want any nation, large or small, to feel that it had to join in an alliance with the British, the Russians, or the United States to maintain peace.

FREE POLITICAL RULE FOR GREECE INDORSED BY U.S.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP).—For the second time in three days, the United States today spoke out for political freedom in a European country where Britain has intervened. This time it was Greece.

The action, by Secretary of State Stettinius put the United States on record to let the Greek people choose their own type of rule, regardless, in the words of Prime Minister Churchill, whether they "form a government of the right or left."

In thus enunciating again a policy that already has brought a clash with Foreign Secretary Eden of Britain over its application to Italy, Stettinius used words cautiously. Exactly what effect he desired them to have is a point he did not clarify.

Gives Views to Reporters.

The secretary of state's action took the form of giving reporters at his news conference a statement which he said was made in response to inquiries. He indicated that it was not being officially conveyed to the British government.

The British have hurled tanks and planes against the EAM's forces in Greece. The EAM is the left wing Greek national liberation front.

Stettinius, in stating American views on the Greek situation, went back to Churchill's speech in the house of commons last Tuesday. He quoted Churchill as having said:

"Whether the Greek people form themselves into a monarchy or republic is for their decision. Whether they form a government of the right or left is for their decision. These are entirely matters for them."

"In Full Agreement."

"With this statement," Stettinius said, "I am in full agreement.

"It is also our earnest hope," he added, "that the people and authorities of Greece and our British allies will work together in rebuilding that ravished country."

The British prime minister also had said that if necessary to prevent creation of a communist dictatorship in Greece he would put the British army into action. Stettinius was asked whether by indorsing one part he intended to imply an indorsement of the whole speech. He declined to comment.

At another point he was asked whether he condoned the use of British tanks and planes against the former Greek resistance forces which have refused to give up their arms at the order of the British supported Papandreou government. Stettinius said that his statement speaks for itself and he would not amplify.

SCHOOL TRADES CIGARETS FOR WASTE PAPER

You can get a package of your favorite brand of cigarets at the Kershaw school, 6435 Union av., in exchange for two bundles of wastepaper 15 inches high each. That's the announcement made by Michael Fortino, principal, in an effort to step up the wastepaper drive at the school.

"The proceeds from the sale of the paper will be used for educational purposes, welfare, and supplying service men's centers with smokes," Fortino said.

Fortino said he has more than 500 packages of cigarets he wants to give away in exchange for bundles of wastepaper. "It's easier than standing in line for a package," he pointed out, "and, besides, the wastepaper is needed.

"You have to be an adult to get the cigarets," he added.

DEBATE TODAY ON CHURCHILL'S GREEK POLICY

LONDON, Dec. 7 (AP).—Under fire at home and abroad for British intervention in Greek and Italian internal affairs, Prime Minister Churchill's government will defend its foreign policy tomorrow amid general expectation that it will argue that the ballot box—not bloodshed—must settle political differences in liberated lands.

It remained unknown whether Churchill himself, Foreign Secretary Eden, or both, would take part in the house of commons debate. The assignment was intensified by the declaration by Secretary of State Edward Stettinius, placing the United States on record in favor of complete freedom of political action for the people of Greece.

The Yorkshire Post reported that "Lord Halifax, Britain's ambassador in Washington, will have been instructed to leave Mr. Stettinius in no doubt of the unfavorable reaction" in Britain to his previous note on Britain's attitude toward Italy's Count Carlo Sforza. Meanwhile, protests against the use of British troops to quell Greek civil strife piled up from Labor and Liberal groups.

ROMULO TELLS HOW MacARTHUR STORMED LEYTE

BY LAURENCE BURD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—The house heard today, on the third anniversary of Pearl Harbor, a stirring first hand story of the invasion of Leyte and a message of deep gratitude from the Filipino people for America's drive to liberate them from Japan.

The message was delivered by Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, resident commissioner for the Philippines, who participated in the Leyte landings under Gen. MacArthur. Gen. Romulo fought with MacArthur's forces in the battle of Bataan and escaped just before the peninsula fell.

Tells of Courage.

His story, as told the house, was one of the Filipino people's unwavering faith in America and democracy thru nearly three years of humiliation and defeat, and of "the redemption of a pledge of honor given by an American and an honor fulfilled in the truest American tradition."

It is a story, too, he said, of the courage of American men, and of the epic part played by Filipino guerrillas in helping MacArthur's forces prepare for and carry thru successfully the Leyte invasion.

Gen. Romulo assured the house that our hold on Leyte is "secure" and that it marks "our first step toward inevitable, final victory."

The general was aboard the troopship, John Land, on the morning of Oct. 20 when MacArthur and his men struck.

"Around us in Leyte bay," he said, "were 600 other ships: troop carriers, battleships, destroyers, cruisers, rocket ships, a massed unit that at one time, on its way to this place, had covered nearly a thousand miles of sea. The sky overhead was blanketed with American planes, pouring down hell over the Japanese installations.

'Sonorous as Organ.'

"The naval bombardment was sonorous as an organ. It was just one solid, definite roar, and the rocket ships were laying lines of explosions like embroidery along the shore, blasting everything in their way. There would be the roar of explosion and the puff of smoke and the fires starting in the Japanese fortifications and the coconut palms.

"Among the Japanese hiding in there were the 16th division who had beaten us on Bataan.

"Waves of men kept pressing on, between the palms and flames and blasted rubble that had been the Japanese barricades, and they were not being thrown back anywhere as far as our glasses could see."

N. Y. GRAND JURY CHARGES LAXITY BY LEGISLATURE

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 7 [Special].—Citing a 100 per cent increase in legislative costs since 1924, a special grand jury today charged that pay rolls of the Republican controled legislature are padded with useless employes and asserted the body "has become a ready medium thru which political debts are paid."

It said that "certain practices connected with the legislative process, while perhaps not criminal, are so offensive to public morals and so inimical to the welfare of the state as to require special attention and ameliatory action."

The grand jury, which was appointed in December, 1943, by Gov. Dewey to investigate legislative expenditures, requested that its report containing five specific recommendations be given to Gov. Dewey, legislative leaders, and the state budget director to aid them in preparing the new state budget.

Recommendation of Jury.

The recommendations include:

"The legislature should make a complete survey to determine how many employes are needed to assure its proper functioning. The superfluous jobs should be abolished.

"The pay roll system should be modernized in accordance with sound accountancy practice.

"The legislature should simplify its pay roll system. Per diem employment should be changed to mean what that term usually implies—work of a casual and temporary nature—not a cover-up for regular employment.

"Basic safeguards should be established to prevent improper use of contingent funds. Itemized reports of contingent fund withdrawals should be made to the legislature annually. These reports should be made available to the public.

Put Salaries in Open.

"The legislature should make adequate salary arrangements with its skilled employes. This salary should not be scattered thru various pay rolls and under various subheadings. It should be provided for openly."

The grand jury interviewed 800 persons and is still hearing testimony which it said involves "allegations of criminal acts and improper conduct on the part of certain legislators and other persons."

It charged the people of the state are paying more than necessary for operation of the legislature because in "recent years the custom has become established of making appointments to meet the political and personal obligations of numerous members of the legislature."

Job Pressure Disclosed.

"Pressure has developed to open the pay rolls for the names of more and more employes," the jury reported. "The addition of names has provided little in the way of essential service. Many persons draw state salaries who are useless in helping carry out operations of the government."

The jury criticized the practice of employing part time workers who have outside jobs, charging "in numerous instances the state gets but a shabby share of its employe's attention and energies."

"HELLCAT's the Name for It!"

Maybe you've seen some of those GI's with Tank Destroyer emblems on their shoulders. They're a great bunch of guys—proud of their service—and for months they've been itching for the day when the hush-hush lid would be lifted so they could tell the world what it's all about.

We know how they've felt—for they've been training with Buick's baby—the M-18 Hellcat—dreamed up, developed and brought to production by Buick men, with the enthusiastic aid of Ordnance experts.

Then came the big day. The Hellcat went into action, with its 55-mile top speed and its heavy-slugging 76-mm. cannon.

Fresh from the fighting front, an official Army observer called it "the hottest thing in armored warfare," which was grand news to our ears.

But what really warmed our hearts was the flood of letters—thousands of them—which poured in from the men who've worked and trained and lived with this destroyer, once they learned that Buick builds the Hellcat.

Buick powers the Liberator too. And our mail has been heavy with letters from flyers, telling us how much faith they've come to feel in those great-powered, Buick-built, valve-in-head aircraft engines.

So pardon us, please, if we feel a bit proud about the way these boys write us. Such cheers as theirs are the finest reward anyone could ask or hope for.

"There isn't anything in the army that can compare with it"
"FOR SPEED, POWER AND FIGHTING ABILITY THE M-18 TAKES THE CAKE"
"Believe me, sirs, the things you say about these destroyers is absolutely true!"
"A Sweetheart to drive and work on —I have done both"
"I believe it's the most destructive and most maneuverable weapon in the army today"
"We of the Tank Destroyer believe them to be the answer to everything"
"You sure came out with a name that fits them"

AIR CONFERENCE ENDS; 33 BACK WORLD COUNCIL

31 Sign Permanent Pact; 16 for 5 Freedoms.

BY FRANK HUGHES.

The international civil aviation conference closed yesterday in two colorful, formal sessions in the flag decked grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel, with representatives of 51 of the 54 allied and neutral nations, who had been in session 37 straight days, signing up a final act which brought the meeting on postwar international flying to an end.

Thirty-three nations signed an agreement setting up a world aviation council and assembly for the interim period between the end of the war and the time a permanent global air organization can be formed and ratified. Thirty-one of them signed the permanent treaty, which will need formal ratification before it can be put into effect. It needed only acceptance by 26 of the governments represented here to start the interim organization.

16 Back Five Freedoms.

Two air transport agreements produced by the conference, which affect the vital issue of freedom of the air, did not fare quite so well. Twenty-five nations signed one draft which allows right of innocent passage over the territory of signatory nations and right to land for refueling and emergency purposes. A document listing five freedoms of the air, covering full commercial air rights in addition to the first two freedoms, was signed by 16 nations.

Great Britain, which kept the conference deadlocked for nearly three weeks with a persistent demand that competition be regulated by traffic quotas if commercial air freedom was allowed, signed the two freedoms document, but Philip Cunliffe-Lister, Viscount Swinton, chairman of the United Kingdom delegation, attached the reservation that "my signature to the agreement does not cover Newfoundland."

Reservation Unexpected.

This was a last minute reservation unexpected in American quarters. Adolf A. Berle Jr., chairman of the American delegation, had already drafted a speech lauding Great Britain's adoption of the two freedoms and saying that this meant to England "giving up a possible stranglehold on the Atlantic crossings, which must take off or land at Newfoundland, making it possible for planes from North America to transit the Atlantic ocean."

Berle read the Newfoundland reference anyhow, in spite of Lord Swinton's reservation. The British said unofficially that Newfoundland, altho it is now a crown colony, is expected to revert to dominion status after the war and that the United Kingdom government did not wish to bind a country which expects soon to have a government of its own. The British spokesman did not say why they could not give provisional acceptance of the freedoms for Newfoundland until such a time as it becomes a dominion.

Another unexpected event in the final plenary session of the conference was a motion from Norway to surrender her seat on the interim council to India.

British Position Stronger.

Cuba's delegate moved that his country be allowed to surrender its seat instead of Norway, and the motion was adopted. The representative from India proposed a "hearty vote of thanks to Cuba." The action had the effect of strengthening Great Britain's position on the interim council of the world aviation body, and weakening the western hemisphere block.

Berle, in his speech which closed the 37 day meeting, said: "We met in the 17th century in the air. We close in the 20th century in the air." He paid tribute to the work of the British and Canadian delegations.

"As a result of the work of these and many other men," he said, "when we leave this conference, we can say to our air men thruout the world, not that there is a legal and diplomatic wrangle ahead but that they can go out and fly their craft in peaceful service."

Documents to Be Open.

All of the documents to be presented for signature at the closing sessions will be held open for signing in Washington, and more nations may affix their seals. In some nations, all of the documents have to be ratified by legislatures or by government officials before they become effective, in spite of any signing done by the delegations here. A United States spokesman indicated that this government hopes to put all of the documents except the permanent air treaty into effect as executive agreements, without the necessity of senate ratification.

Delegations from Ethiopia, Liberia, and Luxemburg were the only ones that went home without signing anything, altho they will probably affix signature at least to the final act of the conference in Washington.

Man of the Year

Gov. Green (left) receiving "Man of the Year" award from Chauncey McCormick at Kappa Sigma fraternity dinner.

Gov. Green was presented with Kappa Sigma fraternity's "Man of the Year" award for "peerless leadership and outstanding achievement during the great World war" at a dinner last night in the University club. The award, an ebony plaque, was presented by Chauncey McCormick, son of William Grigsby McCormick, one of the founders of the Chicago alumni chapter of the fraternity.

The dinner, which also marked the 75th anniversary of the founding of the fraternity and the 50th for the Chicago chapter, was attended by 250 members from chapters thruout the nation.

The principal speaker was Dean Scott Goodnight of the University of Wisconsin, who reviewed the history of the fraternity. Gov. Green became affiliated with the fraternity while attending Wabash college.

HEAR U. S. TO END LOYALTY PROBES OF ITS EMPLOYES

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—The administration is secretly preparing to discontinue routine investigations into the loyalty of government employes, according to reports reaching Capitol hill today.

This disclosure comes as congress is about to lose the only agency—the house committee on un-American activities—which has been engaged in checking the subversive connections of those in trusted positions in the executive departments.

The committee reported some time ago that there were 1,124 federal officials and workers whose affiliations with communistic organizations indicated they placed loyalty to the soviet government before allegiance to the American flag.

Access to War Secrets.

The federal bureau of investigation since Pearl Harbor has uncovered more than 500 cases of subversive activity by government pay rollers, some of them in departments where they had access to military secrets.

Few employes have been removed, however, because of these investigations. When congress specifically singled out certain persons and forbade salary payments to them, these individuals turned up in another department.

The civil service commission is supposed to make an investigation of the past record of every person hired by the government with a view to determining if he or she is loyal to the United States. It is presently months behind in the vast task of probing the connections of the more than 3,000,000 persons on the pay roll.

Soon after the first of the year, when the congressional committee goes out of existence and its bulky files are buried in some Capital hill cellar, these investigations are to be ended, according to the report.

The army and navy will continue to make such inquiries and a few agencies of a quasi-military nature may keep up the practice but the loyalty of the vast majority of government workers will not be investigated.

Propaganda Posts.

The administration's viewpoint was recently outlined in the syndicated column of Lowell Mellett, former White House aid, who has held several federal propaganda posts close to the President.

Mellett wrote that the loyalty investigations were "ridiculous and costly" and labeled them "witch hunts." They were caused, he said, by the "continual clamor" of the house committee "which is about to end its miserable smear career."

OUTLINES PLAN TO PREVENT 2D 'PEARL HARBOR'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 7.—On the third anniversary of Pearl Harbor, Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, deputy director of the army's air technical service, outlined tonight what the army intends to do to prevent a repetition of that disaster.

The United States must have a first class air force, for any other class is worthless, he said in a speech prepared for delivery before the fifth annual convention of the National Aviation Trades association. And a first class air force, he continued, will not depend on the military force alone, but on the possession of modern facilities and airdromes and a healthy aircraft manufacturing industry.

Gen. Meyers said the air technical service command is planning a thoro experimental program to insure the continued superiority in design and production of both military and civil aircraft.

359,247 War Prisoners Now Confined in U. S.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP).—More than 24,000 German prisoners of war reached the United States last month. The war department reported today the total of all nationalities held as war prisoners in this country on Dec. 1 was 359,247. It was made up of 305,648 Germans, 51,156 Italians, and 2,443 Japanese. The country has 130 base camps for the prisoners, two less than on Nov. 1.

HOUSE APPROVES $3,000 INCREASE FOR CLERK HIRE

Total for Each Member Boosted to $9,500.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—It took four hours of warm debate and two roll call votes for the house to decide today that each of its members should get $3,000 a year more for clerk hire.

With some members protesting that the increase, totaling $657,000, would break the Little Steel wage formula and raid the treasury, and others contending that the added clerical hire was needed to help the war program, the chamber finally agreed to it by a vote of 202 to 88.

The bill, before becoming law, must pass the senate and be signed by the President. If enacted, it would take effect Jan. 1.

The measure would give each congressmen $9,500 instead of $6,500 for office help, and raise the maximum salary for any one clerk from the present $4,500 to $5,000.

Sabath Speeds Bill.

An attempt by Rep. Cochran [D., Mo.] to tack the proposal to a pending half billion dollar deficiency appropriation bill was ruled out of order yesterday, but he came roaring back today.

With Rep. Sabath [D., Ill.] cooperating, the bill was rushed this morning thru the accounts committee, headed by Cochran, and thru the rules committee, of which Sabath is chairman. Then it took a roll call vote to determine whether the measure could be considered immediately. It carried 208 to 90.

Many members who had not planned to be present for consideration of the deficiency measure rushed from their offices to jump into the debate about the clerks.

Boost Termed Unnecessary.

Rep. Knutson [R., Minn.] startled his colleagues by asserting that the increase was unnecessary and that he would not use the extra funds.

"We've shelved a half billion dollar bill to take up this peanut thing!" Knutson shouted. "It looks as if some members are worried about the treasury and want to get into it before others get theirs."

Then Knutson threw in a proposed amendment to require all members taking advantage of the increase to file affidavits that the money actually would go for clerical help.

This was too much for Speaker Rayburn [D., Tex.], who made one of his rare appearances in the house well to denounce Knutson's proposal as reflecting on the honesty of the people's representatives. The amendment was shouted down, as was one proposed by Rep. Sauthoff [R., Wis.] to prevent members from hiring any relatives as clerks.

"Smoking Out Woodchucks."

Sauthoff said he was trying to "smoke out some of the woodchucks that may be hiding in the woodpile of this bill."

Some comments during debate on the bill:

Murray [R., Wis.]—Why wasn't this proposed before instead of after the election? I'm against taking a 46 per cent increase for my office when millions of workers have had their wages frozen under the Little Steel formula.

O'Toole [D., N. Y.]—I'm for it. We're too cowardly about our own needs for fear a constituent will vote against it. No apologies are necessary for this.

¾ Cent Per Constituent.

Jennings [R., Tenn.]—The $3,000 will only cost my constituents three-fourths of a cent a year apiece. It's worth it.

Bender [R., O.]—The members of our service men want prompt replies when they call on us. This will help them.

Voorhis [D., Cal.]—Congress must be informed to help the war and the peace problems coming. This increase will serve that end.

COUNTY BUDGET MAKERS AIM AT 1944 BASE LEVY

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

Members of the Cook county board were confident yesterday that their 1945 appropriation bill would show no increase over 1944, and that the county's tax levy would be almost the same—some 14 million dollars.

Total expenditures, as estimated by Deputy Controler Richard J. Daley, are expected to approximate 24½ millions. Revenues from fees and other sources than taxation are fixed at about 10½ millions.

Several of the commissioners, including the finance chairman, Daniel Ryan, have insisted they will resist all pressure for adding county employes in the offices they control, or for granting pay raises. The pressure has been great along both lines, several department heads having asked substantial increases.

Judges' Report Awaited.

The success of the program depends in large measure upon the action of the judges of the Circuit court, who under Illinois law fix the number, but not the compensation, of employes in 13 fee offices. Their report is expected some time next week.

Included in the prospective spending is an item of $3,760,000 referred to as an existing deficit—it is for unpaid bills. Left for current spending is $20,900,000, almost the same as last year. Daley said that if this stands as the 1945 figure the county's credit will be reëstablished, and that there might be some salvage at the end of next year, instead of the familiar deficit.

Last year's budget was adopted by a vote of 10 Democrats, the five Republicans voting against the bill. There are now only nine Democrats, the seat of Commissioner Maurice Kavanagh having been vacant since his death in March. Therefore, at least one Republican member must vote yes if a budget is to be passed.

Choice Open to Board.

Most of the board members have contended the county cannot perform its necessary services and stay under the 8½ million dollar pegged levy allowed by the legislature.

The board has the choice of observing the peg or levying up to 28 cents on the $100 of assessed valuation. Since Assessor Clark went to full value assessments, instead of at 37 per cent of full, the 28 cent rate will produce up to 17 millions or more. The rate would produce much less than 8½ millions were the 37 per cent assessment factor in use.

VERDICT RULES OUT FINANCES IN HOSPITAL CARE

A recommendation that all emergency patients taken to hospitals receive proper treatment and be hospitalized, regardless of their financial status, was written into the coroner's jury's verdict of accidental death of burns in the case of Donna Jean Partridge, 4, of 6044 Carpenter st., yesterday. The child had been playing with matches and died in the County hospital at 5:50 p. m. Nov. 26 after being taken to the Englewood hospital at 9:30 a. m.

Coroner A. L. Brodie questioned the witnesses and to Dr. John J. Kraw, 26, intern at the Englewood hospital, said:

"We don't know whether this child's life could have been saved, but it should have had an equal chance."

Dr. Thomas G. Jones, chief of the medical staff of the Englewood hospital, said he thought Dr. Kraw erred in his judgment of the case in discussing finances with the mother.

Ald. Paul M. Sheridan [16th], in whose ward the child lived, introduced in city council Wednesday a resolution designed to require all hospitals to care for emergency cases and not to transfer cases without the written order of a physician.

SNATCHES PURSE CONTAINING $65.

Mrs. Mae Moore, 7359 Dante av., told police yesterday that a Negro snatched her purse containing $65 as she was walking in front of 1448 E. 74th st.

SOLDIER IS HELD FOR LETTING BOY TAKE HIS PLACE

Pvt. Jesse Motley, 25, the Negro soldier who tricked a 15 year old Negro boy into taking his place in the army five months ago, was held by military police in protective custody here yesterday, pending action by army authorities. Pvt. Motley, whose home is at 5608 South Park way, was arrested at the same time his "substitute," Guamoa Sepeda of 1319 W. 110th pl., was seized here while en route from Fort McClellan, Ala., to a port of embarkation.

Army officials said they are taking no action against Sepeda, a minor, who was released. His only offense, they added, was the deception he used to get into the army. The fraud was not discovered until Sepeda wrote friends that he was going overseas. His mother was notified and informed military authorities.

Since the "deal" was made July 29 at Fort Sheridan, where Sepeda traded his militiaman's uniform for Pvt. Motley's apparel, Sepeda had posed as Motley, paid Motley's A. W. O. L. deductions, and his allotment to Motley's mother, and even submitted to medical treatment for syphilis, which had been prescribed in Motley's case.

SENATE GROUP O. K.'S FREEZING OF SECURITY TAX

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—The senate finance committee today approved the bill to freeze social security taxes, which the house passed Tuesday despite administration opposition. The measure might come under senate consideration tomorrow, altho it is likely it may have to wait until next week.

The bill would keep social security taxes for 1945 at their present level of 1 per cent for employers and employes. This would prevent the automatic doubling of the rate on Jan. 1 under present social security legislation. A move is on foot in the senate to compromise with the administration by raising the rate to 1½ per cent.

4-H YOUNGSTERS' ANIMALS BRING RECORD PRICES

Bank Pays $1.75 Pound for Boy's Hog.

BY GAIL COMPTON.

A nation hungry for prime beef, pork, and lamb greedily snapped up the top quality animals of the Chicago Market Fat Stock show at the stock yards yesterday. Prices rose to record levels under the urging of the auctioneer, and 4-H club youngsters found dollars rolling into their pockets by the thousands.

Chunky Raymond Taylor, Kentland, Ind., who had to walk eight pound off his champion hog to make it eligible for the contest, slipped a fast one over on the buyers. Instead of the 299 pounds the animal weighed when it took the purple ribbon, it tipped the scales at 330 pounds when purchased at the record price of $1.75 a pound. The First National bank gave Raymond $577.50 for the animal, to be served in its employes' restaurant. The bank also shelled out $45 for every hundred pounds on the big black Angus steer belonging to Sarah Ann Hoffman of Ida Grove, Ia. Weighing 1,060 pounds, the animal brought its owner $477.

32 Steers for Sailors.

The Wrigley restaurant, in the Wrigley building, paid $1.50 a pound for the reserve junior champion hog and also bought some prime cattle and sheep at high prices.

The board of education bought 32 steers at prices ranging from $27 to $37 per hundred pounds for the sailors at the naval training school at 52d st. and Yates av. The board also purchased high quality animals for the school lunchrooms.

Restaurants, hotels, and clubs bid feverishly for the chunky animals as they paraded before the auctioneer. Many of the animals bought will be shipped out of town. New York, Florida, and many eastern and midwest states got shares of the prime meat.

66 Cents a Pound for Lambs.

The junior champion pen of lambs shown by Wayne Disch, Evansville, Wis., sold for 66 cents a pound and weighed 290 pounds. A record price of $3.75 a pound was paid by Montgomery Ward & Co. for the grand champion wether of the contest shown by the University of Kentucky. It weighed 91 pounds.

Buyers concentrated on the animals exhibited in the junior contest, for office of price administration ceilings did not apply to them, and the purchasers were eager to pay the farm boys and girls all the money possible. A new record was set for the junior steer sale prices; most of the animals sold around $28 a hundred pounds.

The reserve grand champion steer, shown by T. Richard Lacy, Kansas, Ill., was withdrawn from the sale after its owner decided to send the steer to Denver, Colo., to compete in a stock show there.

NEW ENGLANDER ELECTED HEAD OF FARM AGENTS

A. F. McDougall, Concord, Mass., was elected president of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents at the organization's annual meeting yesterday in the Morrison hotel. Other officers elected were Fred Ahrberg, Pawhuska, Okla., vice president, and W. H. Sill, Parkersburg, W. Va., secretary-treasurer. Certificates for outstanding service to agriculture were presented to 90 agents from 26 states at a meeting last night. All of the men had been agents for at least 10 years.

Cigaret Thieves Obtain 2,000 Cartons and Truck

Thieves took 2,000 cartons of cigarets, half a truck load, from the Piehl Transfer company's garage, 419 W. Superior st., and stole a truck to carry them away, it was reported to police yesterday. They left 2,000 cartons untouched.

U. OF C. TEACHER BEING TRIED ON MORALS CHARGE

An array of prominent musicians, writers, and educators appeared as character witnesses yesterday at the trial of Cecil Smith, 38, music instructor at the University of Chicago, on a charge of lewd behavior.

Smith entered a plea of not guilty to the charge before a jury of 10 women and two men was sworn in before Judge Oscar S. Caplan in Municipal court.

Annoyed Him, Sailor Says.

The complaining witness was Seaman Gilbert Dunn, 18, of Anderson, Ind., who asserted Smith annoyed him while he and three other sailors were watching a movie in the Clark theater early last Thursday morning.

Under examination by Assistant Corporation Counsel Harry A. Iseberg, Dunn said he and his companions were occupying seats four rows from the rear of the theater. Dunn said three or four seats on his right were vacant, and he placed his cap and overcoat on the seat immediately next to him.

Testifying that Smith made advances to him, Dunn said he told Smith: "I'll break every bone in your body if you don't get the hell out of here."

Chased and Caught.

Smith, he testified, jumped up and fled. One of Dunn's companions, John Lyons, 17, of Minneapolis, Minn., testified he chased Smith thru two alleys, grabbed him, and marched him back to the theater, where police placed the accused music teacher under arrest.

Dunn and Lyons testified Smith did not admit their accusations.

Their testimony was given as Smith's character witnesses waited to testify later that "his reputation for morality and chastity was excellent."

The witnesses, called by Defense Atty. Emmet Byrne, included Wilber S. Goldthwaite, music history teacher at the University of Chicago; Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, novelist; June Provines, former newspaper columnist; Richard P. McKeon, dean of the division of humanities at the University of Chicago; Dr. Marth L. Gassmann, psychiatrist at the University of Illinois; Mrs. Dorothy Hartshorne, wife of Charles Hartshorne, associate professor of philosophy at the University of Chicago; Mary Welch Dickinson, former singer, and Claudia Cassidy, Tribune music and drama critic.

The trial will continue today, when Smith is expected to take the stand.

ASKS 7 MILLION ADDITIONAL JOBS TO AVERT SLUMP

American industry and agriculture can insure a post-war decade free from depression by expanding current businesses and starting thousands of new commercial ventures, Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker corporation and chairman of the committee for economic development, told the Champion Farmers of America in the Stevens hotel last night.

"A post-war goal of 155 to 170 billion dollars in annual output of manufactured goods and services can be reached," he said, "provided America's 2 million employers are ready with bold and intelligent plans when it is time to start full scale production of civilian goods, and provided the economic climate is favorable to business expansion."

Hoffman said that there is general agreement among economists that an employment level in the immediate post-war period of 53 to 56 million civilian jobs will forestall a depression. Attainment of this employment level requires the creation of 7 to 10 million more peace time jobs than were available in 1940.

Hunter's famous "jumping horse" leaped from the pages of nation's leading magazines of that day—Collier's Weekly, Life, Judge and Puck—while in millions of American homes, "First over the bars" sporting prints were hung on the wall and ran a close second to the celebrated "Gibson Girl" pictures in popularity.

Hunter on French Billboards

Across the Atlantic, as well, the name and fame of Hunter were anything but unknown, due largely to the use of "mileage signs" that read "000 Miles To Hunter Whiskey" to advertise Hunter throughout the land of champagne—France. Thus Hunter's "jumping horse" anticipated the coming of a rival, the horseless carriage, and the future need of motorists for road signs.

Of course, the Hunter name and the excellence of the whiskey that carried the "jumping horse" trademark were only fond memories during the Prohibition era but with the advent of Repeal, Hunter again took its rightful place as one of America's finest whiskies.

Bottled both as a Baltimore rye and a Kentucky bourbon, Hunter won the same high praise from a new generation of whiskey connoisseurs as it received from good judges of whiskey back in the years when Lillian Russell was the toast of Broadway and the floor of the bar of the old Palmer House in Chicago was inlaid with silver dollars.

Today Hunter sounds the call to the finest whiskey ever to bear its name. It is blend of

ATLANTA FELONS FREE HOSTAGES AND END SIEGE

Are Placed in Solitary on Biddle's Order.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 7 [Special].—The three day mutiny of 25 convicts at Atlanta federal penitentiary ended this afternoon with their surrender to a newspaper man who negotiated—and kept—an agreement to publicize their grievances.

The dramatic submission of the insurgents, and their release of four guards they had held as hostages in a barricaded building, came after Morgan Blake, columnist for the Atlanta Journal and a Sunday school teacher, had acted in behalf of prison officials in assuring the convicts they would be given "a fair trial and no rough treatment."

Placed in Solitary.

Shortly after the revolt had been broken with these assurances, Atty. Gen. Biddle, whose representatives had commissioned Blake to speak for them, announced in Washington, D. C., that the 25 had been placed in solitary confinement and that they would be tried promptly and severely punished.

"I was much distressed by that announcement," Blake said tonight.

As head of the justice department, Biddle is responsible for conditions in federal prisons and the duties of director of the bureau of prisons are performed under his direction.

Doubts Their Sincerity.

Biddle expressed disbelief in the convicts' sincerity concerning their grievances. He said he believed the 25 intended to bring about a general insurrection of the penitentiary's 2,000 inmates and that they later thought up the complaints when the insurrection apparently had failed.

The revolt ended when five ringleaders gave up the keys of their stronghold after reading copies of Blake's paper in which the columnist had set forth their grievances in accordance with his pact with them.

"Boys, this is the anniversary of Pearl Harbor, an ideal day for us to surrender," declared their leader, George Hollingsworth, 23, of Shawnee, Okla.

Exodus Begins.

With that the exodus began from the five story segregation building which the convicts, some of them termed psychopathic cases, had held against authorities since 5 p. m. Monday when they overpowered four guards.

First out were the four hostages, unharmed but hungry and unshaven. Next came the five ring leaders, who turned over building and cell keys to Blake and Chief Steward George Sibbald. Then followed about 20 more convicts who had taken part in the revolt. And finally, upon their release from cells, came 81 other prisoners who had been in the building during the mutiny, but had taken no part in it.

As the four released guards emerged thru the door they suddenly accelerated their pace and moved quickly away as they noted the numerous high powered guns trained on the entrance by guards in wall towers. Blake and Sibbald also hurriedly moved from in front of the surrendering convicts in the event something went wrong with the peaceful plans, but there was no disorder.

Locked in Cells.

The 25 prisoners who took part in the rebellion were taken to the main prison building and locked in cells. The other prisoners, most of them new arrivals who were in the building only for preliminary quarantine, were taken to other parts of the prison.

Blake, a former sports writer who now devotes his time to writing a daily editorial column and teaching Sunday school, had been named by the convicts yesterday as a negotiator to whom they would talk. Blake had taught Sunday school at the prison and frequently had addressed the inmates in the past.

He went to the prison late yesterday and talked with the convicts for about 45 minutes thru a barred window.

The columnist revealed that the convicts, in their only reported threat of violence, had issued an ultimatum that unless they were fed by 5 p. m. yesterday, "they would throw a couple of German prisoners, fellow inmates, off the roof." After Blake's talk, prison officials sent in food to the convicts for the first time since the rebellion started, altho the four hostages had been fed at a window.

Call Nazis Offensive.

The convicts' grievances which Blake reported in his paper were their charges that they do not have proper medical supervision, religious services, recreational facilities or equality in prison wages, some objection to being quartered with Negroes and general indignation at being quartered with "Nazi saboteurs and spies."

"All the men are extremely indignant that they have to live with Nazi saboteurs and spies and have to listen to them exalt Hitler and denounce the American government," Blake said. "One of these Nazis was of the group landed in a submarine for the purpose of sabotage of this country. These Nazis are very offensive and well nigh unbearable, the prisoners say."

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Mrs. Edith Norris, Sigourney, Ia.]

THE QUESTION.

What is the most interesting experience you have had at the stock show?

WHERE ASKED.

Chicago Market Fat Stock show.

THE ANSWERS.

Charlotte Morris, Plano, Ill.—I entered a Hereford steer in the 900-1,050 class. My entry placed 14th out of 145 entries. It was interesting to watch them pick the junior champion. I was surprised at the size of the show this year. I've been here before, and the show looks twice as large as it did last year.

Jean Bruder, Seymour, Ill.—Each year I look forward to the stock show. The competition involved is always so exciting, and after seeing all the calves that were entered I can understand why I didn't win. Another thing I enjoy is meeting so many people. Every one is so friendly and willing to exchange ideas.

Wayne Yetter, Carthage, Ill.—The most interesting experience I had was seeing so many good looking cattle. I went over to look at the Shorthorns, and I never have seen anything like it. Those animals are nearly perfect! It's a thrilling treat to see all of these fat cattle gathered together in one bunch. A lot of tender steaks!

Robert Nordstrom, Atkinson, Ill.—Every one that came past the pen where I am keeping my entries stopped to talk with me. They asked me my name, where I got my calves, etc. I've learned a great deal about live stock shows. The cattle are all kept in such fine condition—brushed, powdered, and pampered like babies.

Marvin Kuipers, Danford, Ill.—Naturally the most exciting thing in this show for me is the fact that I won first in my class of heavyweight Angus steers. I entered two animals in the contest. My other one received 28th place. It's a thrill to win, not only for the sake of winning but to see what good sports the losers are.

Robert Morefield, Colfax, Ill.—It was a surprise to me that they let me show my entry. I didn't think that my calf was good enough, but it took 10th place. I'd like to take the calf back home with me, but I reckon we'll sell him. He should bring a good price because, even tho there are better looking ones, he's not bad.

DORSEYS FREED IN BRAWL TRIAL; ICAZA IS JAILED

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 7 (AP).—Superior Court Judge Arthur Crum dismissed today felonious assault charges against Bandleader Tommy Dorsey, his actress wife, Pat Dane, and their friend, Allen Smiley, bringing to an end the screwiest hodgepodge of jurisprudence this city has ever seen.

Still unanswered after eight hectic days of bewildering, conflicting testimony—counsel called some of it perjury—was this question: Who carved up Screen Actor Jon Hall's nose and cranium during a bloody fracas last August on the balcony of Dorsey's apartment?

Otherwise, all is right with the Dorsey world—and Smiley's, too. Antonio Icaza, the little Panamanian actor with patent leather hair and muddled memory, twice sentenced for illegal entry—altho he said he couldn't remember those brushes with the law—is in jail on suspicion of perjury. He told so many stories that even the prosecution tossed in the sponge.

THE ARMED POWER OF THE UNITED STATES.

Gen. Pershing wanted to march to Berlin and accept the surrender there. Gen. Haig, among other counselors, opposed it on military grounds. The British commander's reasons are still interesting. They were: The French army was fought out and worn out. The war had exhausted it. The American army was hardly entitled to such a name. It was unreliable. The British army was in its finest flower, but, unaided by dependable French and Americans, it would cross the Rhine at a risk unwarranted by any advantages to be gained by continuing the war.

The French seemed to agree with the British in one respect. When, in the final push against the German lines in France, the Americans went into the toughest terrain, it was also with the newest troops. The exigencies of the French and British had been such that the United States had to throw into the battle numbers of men who had been in uniform less than three months. Clemenceau complained to Foch that the Americans were going badly and were jeopardizing the entire movement. Foch endeavored to be considerate. He replied that the army from overseas was very new and had not found itself.

Thus the dangerous legend that the United States was not formidable in war was carried on by men who naturally wanted to increase their own stature. English commentaries on our Civil war had been hypercritical and patronizing. Sheridan, as an observer in the Franco-Prussian war, certainly saw nothing that would make his participation in the continental-scale maneuvers of '61-'64 seem like an amateurish experience with armed mobs. Yet the misconception of American power was both pernicious and persistent. The bad judgment it inspired has been costly.

In the other war the United States undertook to supply France and Great Britain with what they thought they needed most at any given time. First it was credit, food, mules, powder, and shells. Then it was merchant ships. Then, suddenly it was men, just men, men with their rifles, without heavy equipment. Our industries were not required to go into a general mobilization for war. We were unfortunate in airplane building. We did not have much time to do anything. Nevertheless, in spite of many mistakes, the American war effort should have been impressive. Between April, 1917, and November, 1918, an army of four million men was organized and two million landed in France. They gave victory to the allies, who in 1918 faced the defeat they were fated to meet in 1940.

The American navy rendered useful service, but it had no brilliant opportunities. The minor part it played did not show its qualities, just as the subordinate part our heavy industries had in production did not reveal their potential. The allies soon depreciated the share America had in their escape from impending defeat. The Germans, wishing to conceal or forget that they had suffered a military defeat, naturally ignored the part Americans had in it. The Japanese could see nothing in the American contribution which lessened their own vainglory or gave them a sense of caution. Their success in getting the Pacific islands for bases must have suggested to them that in a war with a nation so little concerned for its security as the United States it would not be hard to dictate peace in the White House.

For the good of all concerned, the misconceptions of the United States, whether entertained by friends or enemies, must by now be thoroly and, it is to be hoped, eternally blasted. American soldiers are carrying the war to Germany and Japan. In the Pacific the help they get from allies may be described as incidental. The Japanese capital is under the umbrella of our bombers. The Japanese navy has been defeated and humiliated. It was headed for our Pacific coast. Now it doesn't show in its own waters. The American fleet is the greatest in history. The American air force is the largest. The country is fighting two wars. Its enemies thought they were the invincible military powers of the world. They were chesty with their own self-glorification. They were the masters on two continents. Both know they are being whipped by American arms.

In both the Pacific and the western European campaigns there is no question who is pressing the attack home. The composition of the three army groups which are either in Germany or fighting near its border, as disclosed by a supreme headquarters' statement, shows 34 American armored and infantry divisions and two air borne, 11 British armored and infantry divisions and two air borne, six French divisions, three Canadian, one Polish, three brigades of Czechs, Dutch and Belgians, and one Polish air borne brigade. If those armies get to Berlin there will be no question who fought the way there.

American industry, not really tested in the other war, has performed a miracle of sustaining fighting fronts all over the world. American planes are in every sky, American tanks, trucks, and guns in every battle, and American food in every land. The reservoir of victory has been on this side of the Atlantic. American resources have met the greatest test of the greatest war.

Every nation now knows, or would be idiotic if it did not, that to provoke the United States into a war is to invite defeat. Calculations hereafter will take that certainty into account. It has been ignored before at the loser's own risk. The demonstrated fact is a potent factor which can be used for our own peace. It is a security element in our dealings with other nations.

The proved power of this nation is its bulwark. It is not a danger to any other people. The country which has the power does not covet the possessions of others. It is the clearest voice for freedom and it means what it says. The good fortune of the United States is to be safe. The good fortune of the world is that power and unquestionable intentions go together.

THE CREAM OF THE JEST.

De Maupassant himself could not have contrived a neater denouement than did Louis Renault, the French motor magnate, in willing the huge Billancourt works of the Renault Motor company to the plant's 40,000 workers. The De Gaulle provisional government had arrested Renault on a charge of collaborating with the Nazis, and when he died, Oct. 24, the De Gaullists nationalized the plant. Now it develops that his will gives the workers entire control without government participation.

M. Renault's exercise of Gallic irony may be regarded as proof that, in France, at least, humankind takes its patterns of behavior from fiction. The authors of France have always placed a high premium upon urbanity of wit, and M. Renault, regarding the rather desperate limitations imposed upon his choice of action, achieved a refinement of sardonic humor which must have carried him to a happy grave. The cream of the jest is that his will has posed a conundrum which the French, with their passion for dialectics and their addiction to legalism, will be able to debate almost endlessly. Can the government convert to the purposes of the state something that already belongs to the social community? That is the dilemma, my old, and is it not that it is a pretty one?

HOPE FOR THE REPUBLIC.

The senate on Wednesday expressed its disapproval of the manner in which the names of the new appointees to the state department had been presented for confirmation.

The veteran Sen. Connally was told, in effect, that the foreign relations committee which he heads had done a sloppy job in investigating the qualifications of the nominees, and to go back and try again. The senator angrily inquired if any member present failed to realize that Mr. Roosevelt was going to run his own foreign policy and to that Sen. Chandler retorted that he doesn't propose to vote for the ratification of a bunch of stooges.

Wall street, Harry Hopkins, and the eclipse of the Atlantic Charter all came in for further unkind words, all contributed by members of Mr. Roosevelt's own party. The Republicans sat back and listened, except for Sen. White, who supported Sen. Connally, and Sen. Danaher, who indorsed Mr. Grew, the nominee for undersecretary, with the statement that it would be a welcome novelty to have some one in the state department who knew the score.

Mr. Roosevelt will probably be able to swing patronage influence enough to get the nominations confirmed, despite the Wall street connections of some of the nominees and the unfitness of one of them, Archibald MacLeish. Nevertheless, the spirit displayed by the senate gives hope that the republic will endure.

It was significant that the protests came largely from Democrats. The New Deal party, after all, is composed of traditionally Democratic voters who are patriotic Americans. To them have been added eastern millionaires and the communist controled PAC. The latter cross party lines to make common cause with those in the Republican party who consider themselves the bottom stratum of the British aristocracy, and with the money grubbers who are seeking wealth in international trade conducted at the expense of American taxpayers.

The government has been turned over to these two small factions within the New Deal—the pro-Russian group and the pro-British group. It is to be hoped, and the scene in the senate on Tuesday gives ground for that hope, that the patriotic Democrats and the patriotic Republicans can find a common ground and save us all from the ruin which impends if the grip of these minorities on national policy is not destroyed.

The Wall street-Union square alliance, obviously, is one that cannot endure long. Mr. Roosevelt's Good Time Charlie foreign policy is falling apart. The Atlantic Charter is in the discard and the liberated peoples of Europe are finding that the campaign promises made to them are no more trustworthy than the campaign promises made to the American people during the last 12 years.

The majority of the citizens of Greece, Italy, France, and Belgium are obviously pro-Greek, pro-Italian, pro-French, and pro-Belgian, but they have no more to say about the current governments of their countries than the pro-Americans have to say about the government of the United States. The liberated regions are being turned into cockpits in which the partisans of Stalin and the partisans of the British empire are embattled.

The conflicts engendered there will soon be reflected within the New Deal. When those who would betray America fall out, Americans who love their own country can rejoice and hope to prosper.

AIRPORT HIGHWAY.

Gov. Green has made a constructive suggestion in proposing that a superhighway be constructed to follow the course of the abandoned Illinois and Michigan canal. The primary purpose would be to serve traffic on the Chicago-Joliet-Springfield-St. Louis route. Secondarily it would speed the trip from the loop to the airport. For years the trip by motor car to the airport has resulted in an unwarranted loss of time.

There will be no objection to use of the canal site from either city or state. It is already public property, and time and expense necessary to acquire another route by condemnation proceedings might be saved by putting it to use. A start has already been made in congress to declare the canal non-navigable within Cook county, and it is inconceivable that the federal government will put any objections in the way of the governor's plan.

Engineers are to conduct studies to determine whether the canal is preferable to the Archer avenue route, which would be, so far as the public is concerned, acceptable.

FIRST AID TO HACKS.

As the twilight of the cigaret deepens over the American landscape, let us pause to recall the influence of this form of smoking upon so-called literature. There have been more words wasted over cigarets in fiction than over any other subject except sex. Useless mention of the cigaret has been a vice of the hack writer ever since the habit began to spread in the 1890s.

* * *

The trivial act of lighting a cigaret has been a rubber stamp among fictioneers who had nothing to say and sought to make their verbiage impressive in length if not in content. Any reader will recall the familiar trick of style: "He lit a cigaret with trembling fingers," or with nonchalance, grimly, feverishly, or calmly. The heroine was supposed to react to this portentous deed with emotions that ran the gamut from A to B. Frequently, also, the villain quailed or sneered at this magic ceremony.

* * *

What are the hacks doing now to fill space, we wonder? We would not be surprised to find, in the next mystery story that wastes our time, a hero who rises to his big moment "with a petulant snap of his empty cigaret case."

* * *

There have been two operettas, at least, which bore the title, "Cigarette." One, staged in 1876 and kept alive for two decades or more, had music by Offenbach. The other, with music by J. Haydn Parry, was an item in the London theatrical season of 1892 and may have been exported to these shores.

* * *

Richard Henry Little, former editor of this column, is the hero of its favorite cigaret story. While curled up in a Press club chair he was accosted by Lucy Page Gaston, an anti-cigaret crusader. "Young man," said Lucy, "don't you know what smoking those wretched things will do to you?" "Yes, ma'am," answered Dick meekly, as he rose, uncurled to a height of seven feet minus. "They will stunt my growth."

THE KING IS DEAD.

(John Urban Nicolson, widely known as The King of the Black Isles, the name under which he published numerous volumes of poetry first printed in this column, died in Greenfield, N. H., late in October, aged 59 years. He had written little for some years before his death.)

Silent among bare boughs, birds of bright song
Veiled lusterless their eyes beneath cold rain,
Nor was there melody the whole day long,
Nor any movement save of sodden pain.
Then: "We have lived too long," one sighing said;
"Who can take flight again? The King is dead."

Beneath his call poor words rose up and sang
As tho on battlefields sore wounded men
Heard where one walked where conquering trumpets rang;
And feeling strength pour thru their limbs again
In gallant companies went unafraid,
Touched into knighthood by his accolade.
"Mournful they falter, those proud ranks of song;
The King is dead, and we have lived too long."

His voice called up remembrance of far scenes
Whereon eye never dwelt, yet knew full well;
Ancestral drums rang in quick-pulsing veins
And glamor gleamed in tawdry streets of hell.
On golden-towered Babylon once more
Hot suns burned blinding by her marshy shore;
"Emerald seas, and seas of agate, wandering under the sky Roar all forlorn; alas, that kings must die."

In freezing hovels witch-gaunt Paris stirred,
And hummed again her balladry of pride;
Long swelling melodies in torrent poured
Down winding channels turbulent or wide,
Thru jeweled stones or under pleasant shade,
And every eddy dashing music made.
"Now empty like white skulls their courses lie;
Songs may live on—alas that minstrels die."

Strongly he sang, but that gay voice is mute;
Rich were its echoes, but their sound is fled.
Dust gathers on his laurels, reft his lute;
"Sing once and then no more—the King is dead."

What Price Nostalgia?

What in blazes is the matter with this guy Roy Engel, who writes about the olden, golden days? What's the matter with these days?

You push a button and you are warm. You push another and cook your dinner. Push a third button; you have light. Push a fourth and the room is filled with music. Could you do that in those days about which he is always crying in his beer? You could not. We were not a nation of button-snappers then.

He writes about thigh slapping [Nov. 27]. What's so hot about that? Thighs have gone out of style, but if you have them, you get a two-way compressor girdle and squeeze them out of existence. If you have practically none to start with, you get a two-way compressor girdle and you squeeze what you don't have until it is less than nothing.

So hooray for these wonderful button-snapping days and down with this lachrymose Roy Engel.

Not at present. Letters and postcards are acceptable, but registered mail, money orders, air mail, and parcel post services are not available.

SELF-RELIANCE AN ASSET IN RECOVERY.

THE will to get well is half the battle. We have all observed severely injured persons who emerged right side up with care, because they manifested a coöperative spirit with the physicians, surgeons, and nurses who were trying to help them. These patients are fortunate in that they display a forward looking attitude. While they may be subject to momentary lapses, each day records improvement.

But every busy doctor will encounter now and then an individual who wants to be taken care of for the remainder of his life. Consciously or unconsciously, he will become a doubting Thomas. He says to himself and to all those who attempt to aid him, "I dare you to put me back on my feet." Perhaps he has a claim pending. We then notice a moral letdown. The corners of the mouth droop and the countenance assumes a doleful expression which reflects the disposition to resist every procedure designed to bring about recovery. He poisons himself with the thought that he will never be any better.

Let this situation continue for months and the victim may convince himself that there is no hope for him. Furthermore, should he go on the witness stand he will present a picture of discouragement. He may relate that he is beset with woes, aches, pains, and disabilities. He reasons that the more "miseries," the more sympathetic will the jury be. Happily, these people are the exception rather than the rule.

Psychiatrists recognize the types of personality which prefer to fall into invalidism rather than resume a place in society and become self-supporting. It is certainly contrary to public weal that unmerited redress shall be accorded. Occasionally a verdict will be rendered which is based upon superficial impressions, coupled with melodrama.

The American jury system is one of the bulwarks of our liberties and the responsibility for an accident may need to be assessed by a court possessing proper jurisdiction. There are many instances in which justice would be more certain if impartial experts were privileged to study the case, evaluate the temperament of the patient, and determine the degree of permanent disability. Many of our state compensation commissions have such advisers on call. Perhaps our courts could use them more frequently.

A case that came under my observation was that of a man who suffered a fall which resulted in the fracture of several ribs, including the bony projections of three vertebrae. A self-respecting home owner, his convalescence was speedy. In six weeks he was back at work, completely rehabilitated.

Another incident is that of a man eight years younger, who experienced a slight crack of one rib [wherein the fragments were not displaced]. Altho nature accomplished repair in jigtime, he refused to leave the house. Months have elapsed, but he is still wandering about the household, a burden to himself and his family, with a 500 page catalog of complaints.

What is the difference between these two chaps? One liked his job, rejoiced in his ability to keep it, and possessed a generous share of pride. The other is ambitionless and intends to fasten himself on some sort of dole. Such people must be thought of as constitutionally inadequate. Sooner or later some episode will remove them from an environment where they can get ahead.

HOLIDAY MEAL.

V. J. writes: On Thanksgiving I ate turkey and all the trimmings. Probably overate as most persons do on these occasions. The next morning when I awakened, I experienced a numbness in the fingertips of the right hand and the right side of my face felt as tho I had received a novocaine injection. Could overindulgence in food have brought on this condition?

REPLY.

Probably not. A nerve manifestation, perhaps the result of a slight arterial spasm within the brain. Your blood pressure may have risen.

DIGITATION.

S. A. W. writes: Some say the thumb is the first finger. Others claim the index finger is the first. Which is right?

REPLY.

Those who write musical exercises are responsible for this confusion. The thumb is a digit [a finger] and there are five. The index is really the second, or forefinger.

The First Class Can Start.

Seymour Korman writes from Strasbourg this week that Alsace at last is free to speak French again, and you can't help wondering how many Alsatians in that poor, battered little border province now can speak the French tongue with ease. Or have they cherished it, as we cherish the ballads handed down from grandmother to child, thru their many vicissitudes since 1870?

Alsace is hereditarily French, but for 52 of the 73 years since the Germans first conquered it in 1871, the French tongue has been banned. Only from 1919 until 1940, when the Germans marched in again, has Gallic limpidity been the mark of a free man.

The news that the German words for streets, strasse and platz, already are being replaced by the French rue and boulevard and place brings to mind with a rush of emotion Alphonse Daudet's "La Dernière Classe," one of the finest short stories ever written. Remember it?

The boy was late for school that warm spring morning of 1871 and was worried. On his way he saw a great crowd before the town hall looking at the bulletin board, but as for two years all the news had been bleak, he thought this was merely some more of the same and did not stop.

As he neared the school, he saw thru a window that his classmates already were at their desks and all terribly still. He had counted on being able to slip in tardily unnoticed in the general commotion, but now the teacher saw him. Instead of being outraged, the teacher was kindly.

Then the boy noticed that the teacher had on his fine green coat and his frilled shirt and his embroidered black cap that he wore on prize days and that the ordinarily empty back benches were full. The former mayor sat there, and the former postmaster, and many others, and all looked sad.

Then the teacher said, in gentle and grave tones, "My children, this is the last lesson I shall give you. The order has come from Berlin to teach only German in the schools of Alsace and Lorraine."

The boy was thunderstruck. Brokenly, remorsefully, he thought to himself that he hardly knew how to write, he should never learn any more, he must stop there, then.

It was then that the teacher called on the boy to recite. He had to give that dreadful rule of the participle. How terribly he wanted to be able to say it thru, very loud and very clear, without one mistake. But as usual he could not.

Instead of scolding the teacher said: "See how it is? Every day we have said to ourselves, 'Bah! I've plenty of time. I'll learn it tomorrow.' Now those fellows out there will have a right to say to you: 'How is it you pretend to be a Frenchman and yet you can neither speak nor write your own language?'"

And so he talked gently, reflectively, now of one thing, now of another. Then he spoke of the French language—of its beauty, its clarity, its logic.

". . . saying [wrote Daudet] . . . that we must guard it among us and never forget it because when a people are enslaved, as long as they hold fast to their language it is as if they had the key to their prison."

Then he opened a grammar and read the class its lesson. The boy was amazed at how well he understood it. It all seemed so easy.

Then the class had its writing lesson. They copied only two words, two words again and again—Alsace, France, Alsace, France. The room was so quiet the cooing of the pigeons could be heard, and the boy wondered, "Will they make them sing in German, even the pigeons?"

Then suddenly the clock struck 12. After that came the Angelus, then the sound of the Prussians' trumpets as they returned from drill. The teacher arose. He tried to talk but choked. Then he turned to the blackboard, took a piece of chalk, and wrote in the largest letters he had even written: "Vive la France!" Then he dismissed the school.

Perhaps some member of that class is there today.

REPUBLICANS AND LABOR.

Appleton, Wis., Dec. 4.—The analysis of the Republican defeat by Frank Derham, and your editorial, omit certain matters worth consideration.

No one will seriously dispute that many were anxious to support Tom Dewey for the nomination, but were anxious to secure his defeat in November. These political chameleons control the party in many localities, if not thruout the country. They control the party for the purpose of keeping it sterile by selecting incompetent leadership and rubber stamp candidates. They are assisted by a vicious slot machine press that claims to be nonpolitical, or independent of politics.

If the election had been held 10 days later, the New Deal candidate would have carried Wisconsin. What labor support the party had was deserting in great numbers. The Republican organization did about everything possible to drive labor out of the party. Early in the campaign party leaders secured pledges of support from conservative labor leaders and then refused to coöperate with them. The organization did not want to be victorious if it had to be liberal.

If the Republican organization is to be the nationalist political party, it is time for it to wake up to the fact that labor has perhaps a greater percentage of nationalists than any other group of citizens. The party has driven patriotic citizens to the leadership of foreign born radicals.

In this area discredited Willkie workers actually crowded the successful Dewey delegates from positions of influence within the party. There are too many businessmen's committees in this party, and no labor organizations. If the Republican party is going to remain an exclusive club it is perhaps destined to another 16 years of defeat, while the administration decides to pick up the remaining winning issues to reelect itself. To protect itself, labor must vote for the administration and watch it sell the country to Reds and millionaire internationalists of the Atlantic seaboard.

REHABILITATION.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—I am a patient in a veterans' rehabilitation center. This undertaking is still in an embryonic stage. There's much to be done yet, of course, just as in any new organization. However, the progress to date is wonderful, and I speak from experience.

The public isn't educated to the point as yet where it understands psychiatry; but it will be sooner or later. It will have to be if it's going to understand and help psychoneurotic veterans. That will have to be done for the good of our society, a part of which these veterans make up. I and others definitely do not feel that just because we are vets we should have "the world with a fence around it." We just want to be understood. We want to be helped to understand ourselves—so we can help ourselves. We'll take it from there.

The center has helped me so far, I know. I am confident I'll go out from here to a more happy, satisfied, and successful life. That's a much better feeling than of not wanting to go on with this life at all. I know!

GRATEFUL VETERAN.

NOTE ON THE MAN POWER SHORTAGE.

Riverside, Ill., Dec. 1.—It is very discouraging, now during the 6th bond drive, to come face to face with government waste. The other day there was a man in my office who said he had just quit his second job in a war plant because he can't stand taking money and giving no service in return for it.

He was an expediter in one of the large plants whose entire product is paid for by the government on a cost plus basis. He had nothing to do for days on end and finally told his superior that he could not stand it any longer and quit. He went into another plant and got a similar job at a higher salary and found he had absolutely nothing whatever to do and his superior told him to lie down on a bench and go to sleep. As he could not stand that, he quit that job also and now is out of a job looking for another one where he can feel that when he puts in his service and receives pay for it that he at least has done something worthy of that pay.

HENRY A. MILLER.

CIGARETS FOR PRISONERS OF WAR.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—I see in today's Tribune where the 300,000 odd prisoners of war who are being held in the United States are entitled to a carton [10 packs] of cigarets a week at 13 cents a pack.

On another page I see where our G. I.s in England are put on a ration basis on cigarets. Five packs a week to noncombatant troops and seven a week to combat troops and men in hospitals. If they want more they can pay 38 cents a pack for English brands.

Who is winning this war anyhow?

HENRY WILLIAMS.

HE FORGOT IT DEC. 7, 1941.

Westmont, Ill., Nov. 27.—Isn't it about time for the Hon. Claude Pepper to tell the army and navy his secret on how to bomb Japan off the map in two weeks with one arm tied behind them?

MABELLE S. ULLRICH.

LOYAL FOR 52 YEARS.

Oak Park, Ill., Nov. 17.—I have read The Chicago Tribune for 52 years, and all I have to say is, thank God for The Tribune.

GEO. R. KENT.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

Letters to this department must be signed with names and addresses of writers.

DIVIDING AN ESTATE.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—1. How soon after the death of a parent, who left real estate to be divided equally among his children, can one of the sons demand his share? 2. What would he have to do to force sale of the property?

D. R.

1. The Illinois statute allows nine months for creditors to file their claims. Distribution should be shortly after that.

2. Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree, any one of them is entitled to force a division or a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the proceeds of the sale.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SELLING MORTGAGED PROPERTY.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—We plan to sell our home, on which there is a mortgage held by a real estate firm. 1. Must the sale be made thru this firm, or [2] can we sell independently?

J. O.

1. No. 2. Yes.

The Store of the Christmas Spirit

December 8, 1944

Dear public...

The younger generation, paying its annual courtesy call on Santa, sometimes shakes that old gentleman up a bit. One four year old strutted up:
"Did my Dad make a deal with you?"
"Yes, my little man," a baffled Santa replied.
"You mean," gurgled the boy, "you fixed it? I get that train in my Dad's top drawer?"

MORAL: WHAT AN UP AND COMING GENERATION—

BUSINESS YIELDS TRAVEL RIGHTS OVER HOLIDAYS

Many business and industrial concerns thruout the country have canceled commercial travel and vacations between Dec. 15 and Jan. 8 and more than 200 business, religious, and other organizations have called off conventions so the railroads and their facilities may be left as much as possible at the disposal of soldiers and sailors during the coming holidays.

The office of defense transportation also said a general order has been issued allowing the railroads to put on additional trains and more sections or add cars to scheduled trains where necessary so the service men have every opportunity to go home for Christmas and New Year reunions.

KELLY INDORSES AIRPORT ROAD ON I-M CANAL ROUTE

Motor Club Head Praises Project's Safety.

BY ROBERT HOWARD.

Mayor Kelly said yesterday that the routing of a super-highway along the abandoned Illinois and Michigan canal would be a major step toward achieving "Chicago's destiny as the greatest city in the world." Others joined him in acclaiming the proposal for a southwest expressway connecting with the airport and downstate Illinois.

The mayor expressed gratification that Gov. Green has ordered state engineers to make an immediate survey of the canal, which long has been regarded as an ideal location for a super-highway that would avoid engineering difficulties and high construction and right of way costs.

"With the completion of this super-highway and of the proposed super-highways on the west and northwest sides, Chicago's surface traffic problems will be largely solved," Mayor Kelly told newsmen. "We hope that other expressways can be built, but those are the main routes.

Added Route into City.

"The canal highway will provide an added way of getting into Chicago, and that is one of the things we need. We are going to have the best and busiest airport, and we need the best possible way of getting to and from it quickly and safely. A super-highway along the canal would be a major step toward insuring Chicago's greatness.

"If we can get the traction and airport problems settled, there is nothing to stop Chicago from being the greatest city in the world."

An engineer, the mayor said a highway on the banks of the canal, which runs southwestward from Ashland av. and parallels the now active sanitary and ship canal, has the advantages of a depressed expressway. Such a route would raise property values and would be cheaper and more efficient than elevated roadways, he continued.

Hayes Emphasizes Safety.

All Illinois motorists will be enthusiastic about a super-highway along Archer av. and the canal, said Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, who emphasized its safety features.

"Motorists who drive to the southwestern section of the city and beyond to Joliet and Springfield over the Archer av. route must pass 129 intersections and obey more than a score of traffic lights between the loop and the airport at 63d st. and Cicero av.," Hayes said.

"Many of these intersections are unprotected by stop signs. Under the proposed plan, accidents would be reduced about 90 per cent."

Gov. Green, whose administration has accumulated a 110 million dollar surplus for post-war improvements, left to engineers the question of how far past the city limits the canal super-highway should be extended. At Cicero av. connections would be provided for airport traffic.

Extension of the super-highway to the downstream terminal of the canal at Peru was advocated by State Rep. J. Ward Smith [R., Ottawa], who said it is now a menace to health and that its parkway possibilities should be utilized. "La Salle county is the heart of the state's system of parks, and a direct route here is a necessity," Smith said.

Jail Terms for Perjury

Husband Testifies

Three women were sentenced to the county jail by Superior Judge John A. Sbarbaro yesterday for perjured testimony given at a divorce hearing in which one was plaintiff and the two others were her witnesses.

Mrs. Flora L. Theaker, 22, a taxi dancer, was sentenced to 30 days and her sister, Mrs. Rose Costa, 4240 N. Troy st., and Mrs. Wanda Brown, 3756 N. Troy, were sentenced to 10 days each for testifying that she had lived with them at different times after filing of her divorce bill July 3, 1942. The divorce was granted by Judge Sbarbaro Oct. 2, 1944.

Charles E. Theaker, 41, an insurance salesman, who said he still loved his wife, came to court yesterday with Atty. Henry E. Pieruccini to ask to have the decree set aside. Theaker said she had returned to his home, at 4750 Lake Park av., after starting her divorce suit.

Judge Sbarbaro called the three women before him and said, "This is rank perjury." He pronounced sentence, "as an example to others."

FIREBOAT NEED FOR WAR PLANT AREA EXPRESSED

Some hope that war production board priority rules might be relaxed in favor of the city's long projected program for two new fire boats was expressed yesterday by Fire Commissioner Corrigan. At the same time, he and Fire Marshal Mullaney discussed the pressing need for a modern fire boat in the Calumet district, now cared for by a makeshift fleet of fire fighting craft.

Corrigan and Mullaney said they felt their request for the new boats was related closely to war work in the Calumet area, which, with half a billion dollars worth of industry producing military supplies, is the most congested war plant community in the country. Much of this property lies along the Calumet river and, they said, can be protected most effectively by fire boats.

BISHOP ASSAILS MOVIE ON SOCIAL DISEASE FIGHT

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 7 (AP).—Bishop James A. Griffin of the Springfield Roman Catholic diocese declined today an invitation by the state health department to attend a preview of a motion picture dealing with prevention of venereal disease. He said Catholics objected to the film.

In a letter to Dr. George G. Taylor, chief of the state division of venereal disease control, the bishop said: "Your solicitude for the health of the taxpayers would be much more convincingly manifested if you arranged to show films dealing with the means of avoiding some leading lethal diseases. Have you ever planned to release to commercial theaters a film dealing with pneumonia?"

Dr. Taylor told a reporter the film was loaned by the United States public health service for state public health educational programs.

The bishop's letter was published in the current issue of the diocesan weekly newspaper, the Western Catholic. It identified the film as produced by Walter Wanger and entitled "To the People of the United States."

In 1865
A GREAT WHISKY FORMULA
was "swapped for a good saddle horse"

• That was 1865. Today a really great small distillery formula might be traded for a Derby winner, though that's doubtful.

For a small Kentucky distillery is an institution operated with pride and with satisfaction in its own individual product.

Our Old Poindexter, for example, is a Kentucky Straight Bourbon with a 40% small grain content. That means considerably more barley malt and rye, which assure your getting a rich, ripe, full-bodied drink.

All the way from grains to bottling, Old Poindexter costs us more to make. Jug yeast—the sour mash process—the low temperature fermentation—and other methods of long ago are costly. Yet you pay little more than the price of an ordinary whisky.

There's never been much Poindexter in the market. The output is limited. But there are small stocks in the best places awaiting men who understand and appreciate a great Kentucky Straight Bourbon.

Bazar's Funds to Go for Hard of Hearing Aid

BY JUDITH CASS.

As Christmas approaches, a number of organizations are busy with plans to make the day a happy one for children in institutions and hospitals and service men. Other groups have been equally occupied getting together unusual and attractive articles to tempt the Christmas shopper, and among these latter groups is the Chicago Society for the Hard of Hearing, which is holding its annual Christmas Bazar today and tomorrow in its headquarters at 410 S. Michigan av.

A hand crocheted afghan, a powder puff quilt spread, a large basket of special jams and jellies, quilted slippers, aprons, and holiday foodstuffs have been made by members and friends to be sold at the bazar. Proceeds are used to help the society carry on its work of education and rehabilitation. Some of the society's directors are Mrs. Donald S. Boynton, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, Mrs. Phillip Miller, Calvin Fentress, Edward L. Ryerson, and Philip R. Clarke.

The "Yule Workshop" which the five Winnetka garden clubs will open at 9 a. m. next Thursday in the Winnetka Woman's club will resemble an old fashioned quilting bee, for all Winnetkans have been invited to drop in to help make Christmas wreaths, tree decorations, and other items that will bring holiday cheer. The decorations, to be turned over to army and navy posts and hospitals, are being purchased with some of the nearly $1,800 which the clubs raised at a flower festival last May.

The board of directors of the Garden Club of Illinois, which is busy collecting holiday decorations and gifts to be distributed to service men's centers and army and navy hospitals thru the Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild, will hold its December meeting at 10:30 a. m. Monday in the Palmer House. Miss Elizabeth Howland, president, will preside.

Other Christmas Notes.

At its December luncheon meeting Monday in the Orrington hotel, Evanston, the Evanston Junior league will hear a description of how to make Christmas decorations, given by Mrs. J. Wilson McAllister, vice president of the Garden Club of Illinois. Now that the league has expanded into the seventh largest in the country, it has obtained the services of Miss Lucille Saris, who will be on duty five days a week in the clubrooms in the old Grosse Pointe lighthouse. Her duties formerly were handled by a volunteer, Mrs. Arwed Boitel, who just has moved to Mexico City with her husband and their two daughters.

It has become a tradition in the Kenwood Social Service club for Mrs. Ralph C. Johnson to have the Christmas meeting in her home. Planned for Monday, the guests will find the same old Bavarian epergne, filled with Christmas balls, placed in the center of the tea table. The usual refreshments, homemade schnecken and almond cakes, and coffee and tea, served with brandy and rum, respectively, will be offered. The Christmas tree will be stacked with gifts which friends bring for the Infant Welfare Thrift shop, 1555 E. 55th st., which the club conducts.

The Cordon will have a Christmas sale exhibition of paintings by club members opening today at tea time, from 4 to 6 p. m.

On the Calendar.

A luncheon meeting of the English-Speaking union at 12:15 p. m. today in the Blackstone, a tea at union headquarters this afternoon, and a dinner given by Wilfred H. Gallienne, British consul-general, and Mrs. Gallienne are on today's program for Dr. Stefanus Francois Naude Gie, minister of the Union of South Africa to the United States, and Mrs. Gie. Dr. Gie will speak on "Glimpses of South Africa" at the luncheon, for which Mrs. Orville J. Taylor will serve as hostess. Mrs. Sewell Avery will be the tea hostess.

Miss Naomi Donnelley will give

Thru the Looking Glass

There aren't so many of those luxurious sets of beauty aids, all keyed to a beautiful perfume, as there were in the days when papers and silk and stoppers and such were abundant, but there are a few on the market that are well worth hunting down.

There's one, for instance, an ensemble built around one of the most popular of the perfumes we know. It's old and adored, quite French in its character as well as its name. This year the house that makes it has contrived a sumptuous chest, covered in pink and gold embossed paper [and even lined with satin!] in which it has set seven exciting items, all in the same fragrance.

The perfume that inspired it all is there, of course, in an attractive flacon. Then there are toilet water to match, an atomizer, sachet powder, face powder, a can of talc, and, as a final touch, a lipstick in an ivory and pink case. For the woman who likes this fragrance—and she numbers thousands—this set is a windfall of glamor aids she can use and luxuriate in. The whole set costs $11, plus tax.

The face powder in this set is just about as famous and as popular as the perfume that scents it. Male shoppers needn't fear when they choose this—we've never known a woman who didn't like it. And the toilet water is a grand scenting agent; its use supplements that of the perfume, which is so precious it's always used more sparingly.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 7.—Walter Pidgeon gets the coveted role of Richard Harding Davis in "Yama Yama Girl" and Ginger Rogers wants to play Bessie McCoy, Arthur Hornblow, producer, wants her, too, if it can be arranged—and I hope it can. . . . Lana Turner's new haircut is a Napoleonic bob. Too bad their centuries never met. "Nappie" might have written "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." . . . Because of her commitment in "Without Love," Katie Hepburn will forfeit the snows of Hartford, Conn., for a Christmas here. . . . Soon as Hoagy Carmichael got his nose on the screen, R. K. O. did a hurry-up rewrite on "Johnny Angel." He plays a wise-cracking cab driver. . . . "June Bride" will star Diana Lynn. Picture is to be made first, then George Abbott will do it as a play. That's a turnabout if I ever saw one.

So You'll Know the Whole Story.

I haven't seen it, but I'm told that after magazine critics got a load of "National Velvet" they cheered. I'm not surprised, nor am I surprised that the star is little Elizabeth Taylor. The story of how she came there is interesting. You'll hear many versions. Here's the real lowdown: Some years ago, she was taken to Metro. It couldn't make up its mind. She was introduced by Cheever Cowdin to Universal, and it signed her. That angered Metro. It seemed to anger Universal, too. Because she was picked by a top executive, she got nothing to do. Her option was left lying. Then those of us who knew her started working. The difficult thing was to overcome Metro's prejudice, which is ticklish, always. Over there they still remember how they lost Deanna Durbin. Just about the time we were putting our plan into action, Elizabeth's father was walking his beat as an air raid warden in Beverly Hills with two other guys. One of them said, "I'm going mad. I've got a kid in 'Lassie' but she isn't what I want. I just don't know where to look for the right type." Other guy said, "Well Taylor here has a daughter that's out of this world," and described her. First man who spoke was Sam Marx, Metro producer, who said to Taylor, "Will you bring her to the studio tomorrow?" She was brought, she played in "Lassie." Then they thought of her for "Velvet" but she was too little and too young. So for two years they've let her grow into the part. In the meantime she learned to ride, fell in love with the horse, everybody fell in love with her. She didn't play "Velvet"—she lived "Velvet." And her mother played the crippled girl in Channing Pollock's play "The Fool" many years ago.

So Bob Gets His Chance.

Bob Sully signed with Hal Wallis. He's in "Love Letters." I met Bob a year and a half ago at Warners. He was seeing the lot with his mother and Jack Warner's sister-in-law, Rose Charmis. When introduced to him, I said, "Hey! You ought to be in pictures." "Not me—I'm in the steel business." "Well, as long as you're here, why not make a test?" He did, and now it's Hal Wallis who's got him—not Warner Brothers. . . . Pat Knowles helped me carry my groceries. Tells me he's signed a termer with Paramount. He was set for a play in New York when recalled for retakes on "Kitty." Now goes into "Masquerade in Mexico." He's the guy who got nowhere because he looked so much like Errol Flynn. Now he looks like Pat Knowles.

Role in Double Harness.

No chance for Elyse Knox to get out of the war. She's doing "Bataan to Japan" with her husband, Tom Harmon, as technical advisor, if army okays his deal. His book, "Pilots Also Pray," makes mighty nice reading. . . . All you have to do is to be part of the picture business and the red carpet's rolled out for you. Kathryn McTaggert, secretary to Johnny Beck of International Pictures, is now known as the Greer Garson of Perry, Ia. The town turned out for her. They even kept the Country club open to throw her a party. . . . The Travis Bantons are back from the big town, where the James Pendletons and John Frederics virtually fought to rush them. . . . Betty Hutton's stint in "Duffy's Tavern" is a travesty on "Lady in The Dark." She'll wear a watch chain dragging on the floor—she could skip rope with it. A psychiatrist asks her about her love life and she says, "Sorry, I never had a man." . . . Larry Stevens returned to the scene of his crime, Cocoanut Grove, for Freddie Martin's opening, which brought out the Phil Harrises, Rudy Vallee, Johnny Mercers, John Cotis, and Jimmy McHugh with Eugenie Baird. It was at the Grove that a Jack Benny spy first heard Stevens sing "Stardust." . . . Hedy Lamarr has been made so comfortable because of her coming vital statistic that she'll live at Metro in a new dressing room all done up in Christmas colors while doing "Her Highness and The Bellboy." She'll have more fun than she ever had on that lot—but should we call it fun?

Film Attempts New Twist on Old Ghost Tale

"THE CANTERVILLE GHOST."

A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, directed by Jules Dassin, starring Charles Laughton, Robert Young, and Margaret O'Brien, with William Gargan, Reginald Owen, Rags Ragland, and Una O'Connor, and presented at the Chicago theater.

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

"The Canterville Ghost" is "after," as they say in Hollywood, a "hylo-idealistic romance" by Oscar Wilde of the same title. The original is a not too subtle satire, in Wilde's most elegant prose, of rich Americans who buy English manor houses and attempt to lay ancestral ghosts with patented American nostrums.

That doesn't give a modern movie maker much to go on, and nothing sacred is violated when, instead of an American ambassador and his family, it's a lusty platoon of G. I.s from the Rangers who take over Canterville Chase and encounter a transparent nocturnal roamer who looks like Charles Laughton as Henry VIII., but is only Charles Laughton in a similar outfit he has never been able to change since he disgraced the family on the field of honor back in 1624, and for punishment by an outraged father was walled up in a niche of the castle and left to haunt succeeding generations.

By 1943 the ghost is pretty tired of haunting, gibbering, wearing the same suit for 300 years, and spouting Elizabethan English that's hard for people to understand. But when the G. I.s move in he is just as gracious about it, in his way, as is the current mistress of the mansion, Lady Jessica de Canterville [Margaret O'Brien], who is 6, going on 7. Lady Jessica, tho young, has been brought up in a proper English manner and can balance a teacup and curtsey like a little queen.

She quite captivates the G. I.s, who, however, are not so taken with the weary ghost, especially when direct fire from a tommy gun only causes him to sulk, and a hard boiled C. O. the next day suspects it was a crap game that kept the boys up all night and acts accordingly.

But one of the G. I.s, Pvt. Cuffy Williams [Robert Young], takes his young hostess and calls on the not so blithe spirit and discovers why the poor ghost has to keep on working long past the retirement age. It's because of a curse: He can't go to his eternal rest until some Canterville frees him with an act of bravery—and every male Canterville for three centuries has had a wide streak of yellow in him. Then, on the back of Pvt. Williams' neck, the ghost discovers the Canterville birthmark.

That makes Cuffy feel pretty good, tho it doesn't go so well with the other G. I.s. It doesn't go so well with Cuffy, either, on a Commando raid the next day, when the family weakness goes into action and Cuffy doesn't. Of course there's a twist whereby Cuffy regains his honor and the ghost is laid forever. But long before that you may have decided, as we did, that ghosts should be really funny or else.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—Handmade wooden jeeps and khaki clad G. I. Joes and WACs made of clay are the best selling Christmas gifts in the toy shops here. Mothers stand in line to pay 397 francs [$7.94] for tiny wooden American trucks and cars complete with extra tire, a white star, and a name such as "Chin Up," "Rarin' to Go," or "Nothing Can Beat Us."

Au Printemps, a department store, sells an average of 5,000 toy jeeps daily. The store has a window display of miniature American soldiers parading in Alsace-Lorraine with peasant dolls in brightly colored costumes waving flags from toy houses.

Arrays of tiny aluminum soldiers in fierce battle are displayed. These were handmade with clumsy tools, as there was neither electricity nor machines to fabricate them.

Because of the paper shortage stores have dispensed with wrapping, and copies of children's books have been reduced in size.

Most French toys are made of wood or cardboard. Even the wheels of skates, toy wagons, and automobiles are of wood because of the scarcity of metals. Blocks and toy farmyard animals, houses, and furniture are fashioned of cardboard.

Dolls are stuffed with straw or rags and covered with velvet or artificial silks. The heads are made of clay. Most of them were fabricated when there was a scarcity of electricity and materials and hence were made by hand.

Galeries Lafayette, a leading department store, has a window display of clay dolls attached to descending white silk parachutes. In their hands, stretching toward a big, bewhiskered Santa Claus, are placards inviting the public to help supply Christmas gifts for the thousands of homeless war orphans.

The manager of the toy department of Aux Trois Quartiers, a popular store, said: "We've never had a busier season. Customers buy anything and pay top prices for the simplest cardboard toys. After jeeps and soldiers, the best sellers are Mickey Mouses and Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Substitute.

The story was a long time coming our way, especially as it concerns one of our town's favorite physicians. His secretary being on vacation, he hired an intrepid soul who, tho nonplussed somewhat by the medical terms of the doctor's correspondence, felt she was doing handsomely until a letter was returned because of an incorrect address. Speedily she typed a new envelope, tore open the old [to insert the letter before the boss caught her at it], and noticed a postscript in the doctor's handwriting at the bottom of the page.

"As you have, no doubt, gathered by now," said the postscript, "my secretary is on vacation. I haven't bothered to mark this up—knew you'd understand."

Now the substitute steno is berating herself for not adding her postscript to the boss' postscript, the wording of which can be left to any lively imagination.

Big Business Women.

Potential white collar girls at Jones Commercial High school gave a fashion show last night in the loop to show proper business attire. The sizes worn [for those with minds for figures] were 11, 12, 13, 14, and one size 15.

Dyed in the Wool.

I'm wondering whether there isn't a change in employment. A few months ago almost any one could find a job; now a woman with gray hair has a harder time getting an office position.

When the war is over, are we going back to the dyed-in-the-wool days when many business women—and business men—dyed their hair to keep their jobs? Twenty years ago it was not uncommon to see floorwalkers, bank clerks, etc., with unnaturally glossy, brown locks, so it wasn't just the women who cheated [on their looks] with a purpose!

CLARE.

Hush, little salesgirl,
Don't you cry,

NEAL.

Brother, Can You Spare . . .

It was a crowded Michigan av. bus going south. The driver pulled over to the curb and announced, "This bus isn't going to move until you people who sneaked in pay your fares." Silence. The bus waited. The passengers shifted weight from one foot to the other, uneasily. Then money for five fares was passed thru the crowd to the driver. What goes on! NOSEY PARKER'S UNCLE.

So You Want to Be a Columnist.

In 1854, Fanny Fern began a newspaper column which she edited for 14 years. This "unparalleled feminine exploit" so enthralled a kindred feminist that it threw her into these superlatives: "Behold! From that time to this she has never failed one week to produce the stipulated article on time! Think, my reader, what that fact proves! What habits, what system, what thoughtfulness, what business integrity, what super-woman punctuality, and O, Minerva-Hygeia—what health! . . . the Brontes did themselves and their sex great honor, but did not ever furnish an article every week for 14 years."—Culled from "The Feminine Fifties."

Orchestra Hits Peak in Music by Beethoven

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Desire Defauw, conductor. Presented at Orchestra hall Thursday evening, Dec. 7, 1944, and scheduled for repetition Friday afternoon. The program:

Overture, "Coriolanus".....Beethoven
Symphony No. 4, B-flat major...Beethoven
Symphony No. 3, E-flat major, "Eroica".....Beethoven

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra did some of the best playing of the still young season in Orchestra hall last night when Désiré Defauw chose the "Coriolanus" overture and the Third and Fourth symphonies for the second of his Beethoven programs. It sounded less like a stageful of instruments and more like an orchestra. There was a sense of pace and momentum, a feeling of rhythmic vitality, sometimes even of volatility. This may have been simply because the orchestra had decided to pull itself together. It may have been because Mr. Defauw had sharply toned down his tendency to over-conduct. It may even have been because the Boston orchestra comes visiting tonight and put the men on their mettle. Whatever happened, please, dear orchestra, keep it up.

Altho the "Coriolanus" went along without mishap, the best of the concert was the Fourth Symphony. The one, you remember, that Robert Schumann called "a slender Greek maiden between two Norse giants." Frankly, I don't know why, but it's a nice idea. Last night not all the delicate transitions came off expertly, but on the whole the performance had a lightness of texture that spurned the shallow, and a shadowy delicacy of instrumentation and mood held in buoyant balance. It seemed to me by far the best Beethoven the orchestra has played under Mr. Defauw's direction, and one of the most interesting exhibitions of skill he has given Chicago. It was unforced, interesting, enjoyable music.

Altho it, too, had some beautiful playing, the mighty "Eroica" was not so fortunate in its ultimate effect. The first movement went well, if you have no objection to hearing it as little more than a brisk, slashing introduction. The scherzo skimmed along gaily save for unhappy blurts in the horns confronted with those passages in the trio that always make you wonder if Beethoven hated horn players. The theme of the finale was exquisitely stated by the strings, and the variation for first violins and flute had a bewitched air about it, but that was the best of this "Eroica" and it is not quite enough for the great Beethoven.

The funeral march, for instance, had its moments, but they were too far apart. There was no sustained drama to give meaning to its somber splendor. And the finale lacked the clarity of structure and the magnificence of tone to reach its true expression. This was Beethoven cut down to mortal size, and that isn't the way I like Beethoven. It deserves scale and scope and an imaginative performance that releases its soaring magnificence. I don't want Beethoven cut down to my measurements. I want Beethoven that in great performance can make me reach up, momentarily, to the stars.

INSTALMENT XXIII.

A TARGET.

A man pushed thru the swing doors and came back to the poker table. He was dressed in cheap and soiled clothes a sheepherder would have disdained. His unprepossessing face was seamed with wrinkles. Close-set eyes, small and shifty, slid from one to another of those at the table. The thin-lipped twisted mouth hinted at cruelty.

"Lo, Jug," Uhlmann grunted. "I sent for you because I thought you'd like to know an old friend of yours was in town tonight."

"If Webb is here, why aren't you hunting him down," Packard demanded angrily.

The laugh of Hawkins was a taunt. "Dunno about the other boys, Jug, but I haven't lost this young fellow. Me, I kinda like his nerve. It will suit me fine if he makes a clean getaway."

Packard turned an ugly look on him. "An escaped murderer, isn't he—with a price on his head?"

Hawkins looked around the table coolly, his gaze on each of those present in turn. It came to rest at last on the mine owner. "Murderer is a nasty word, Jug. I like killer better." "Just a prejudice I have. Maybe some of these boys share it. But I never heard that Giles Lemmon was any plaster saint."

"Webb had a fair trial and was convicted," Packard retorted.

"The kid had bad luck. Far as I recollect none of us got as far as a court room."

Packard brushed aside any discussion of moral values. "I'll add another two hundred dollars reward for this fellow's scalp, dead or alive."

"I'd like that four hundred dollars," Uhlmann said.

"Where was this fellow seen last?" Packard demanded.

They gave him both facts and surmises.

"You had him cornered, and you let him slip away," Jug accused.

"He's right around here somewheres," Sholte chipped in. "He couldn't of got away. We've got watchers posted in front and back."

"Ranger knows where he's at," Uhlmann supplied venomously. "I'd bet 50 plunks against a dollar Mex."

"But none of you had the guts to tell him so," Packard snarled. "You let him bluff you off."

"Nobody is holding you here, Jug," Morris said. "You go tell him."

"Don't think I won't," he flung back harshly. "Where's his room at?"

They told him. He turned and walked heavily out of the place.

"The little cuss is going to put it up to Ranger," Hawkins commented. He was surprised. Packard had the reputation of getting his results less directly.

The mine owner stumped up the stairs of the Tucson hotel, walked down the corridor, and knocked at the door indicated. A voice said, "Who is it?"

Packard did not answer. He opened the door and walked into the room. The lamp was not lit, but he could see that Ranger was not alone. Two other figures bulked in the darkness.

A bracket lamp in the corridor lit the face of the self-invited guest. "What brought you here, Packard?" asked the cattleman.

The intruder's small eyes peered at the man on the bed then shifted to the one by the window. Coming day was beginning to lift the darkness. Packard took two or three steps toward the man by the casement.

"Hold it Jug," warned the sitting man lightly. He was nursing a .45 in his lap.

Packard paid no attention. He had not expected to find Bob Webb in the stockman's room. But he had recognized Fraser and had to certify his conviction that the third man present was Webb.

"You're Webb," he said after a moment.

"Sloan is the name to you," Bob corrected.

"You'd better give up and come with me without any fuss. All I got to do is shout and——"

"No," Ranger cut in sternly. "Temporarily Mr. Sloan is my guest. You'll accept that fact."

"Or go out in smoke before yore friends arrive, Jug," Fraser added genially.

Packard whirled on Ranger. "You know what you're doing, don't you? Aiding and abetting the escape of a criminal wanted by the law. Do that, and you'll go join Webb at Yuma, John."

"You haven't proved that Sloan is Webb," the cattleman differed.

"You know he is. I can bring witnesses up to swear to him. Uhlmann for one."

"But you are not going to," Fraser said gently.

"You can't keep me. I'm going down right now to tell the boys you've got this murderer here."

Ranger confronted him as he made for the door. "I didn't invite you here, but since you came without being asked you'll stay. If you open your mouth to cry out I'll throttle you."

"You'll go to the pen for this," Packard gulped out.

Fraser brought a chair to the mine owner. "Sit," he ordered.

Jug glared at him. He had been top dog for so long that it came hard on him to obey. "If I don't go back the boys will come looking for me."

"So they will," Fraser chuckled, "and find you tied up here nice and comfortable."

"You'll never get away," Packard prophesied spitefully. "We've got men back and front to check you."

Fraser pushed him back into the chair. "Have to use the sheets to tie him," he said.

"We won't tie him. Time to go. A friend is leaving two horses at the hitch rack for us. We'll take Packard with us and see how he likes being shot at."

Stan Fraser stared at Bob. "Take him with us?" he repeated.

"Far as the horses. For his friends to make a target of, if they feel that way."

"Sure," cried Fraser joyfully. "Jug has a kind heart. He will protect us like we were brothers."

"I won't go a step of the way," the mine owner announced shrilly.

Sandra opened the door connecting with the next room. "Is everything all right?" she asked anxiously.

"Everything is fine," Bob answered. "We're just leaving. Sorry we barged in on you and yore father this way and forced you to hide us."

"Good-by, Mr. Sloan," she said and shook hands with him. "I hope this silly mistake about you being that man Webb will be cleared up."

Civil Officers' Jobs in Invaded Territory Told

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The training being given civil affairs officers for work in the invaded countries was explained yesterday to the Northwestern University Associates by Prof. Rollin B. Posey, director of the course. Prof. Posey spoke at a meeting of the group in the Chicago club.

Prof. Posey told of the necessity of students' mastering the Japanese language in six months, and of gaining an intimate knowledge of people, law, courts, education, ways of thinking, and banking and finance, so that the civil affairs officer may take full charge of an area in the name of the commanding general of the invasion.

The civil affairs officer, Prof. Posey said, goes in with the first invasion wave. His first responsibility is to get civilians out of the way, prevent espionage, and establish order "in such a way that without knowing it, the civilian population is actually utilized as an aid to our military operations."

Chief difficulty encountered in mastering Japanese conversation is that language's strange idiom, Prof. Posey explained. He gave as an example the Japanese way of saying, "Sit down." Japanese say, "hip bending, please give." Written Japanese with its 80,000 idiographs, or conventionalized sign language, was borrowed from the Chinese language, he said.

Prof. Posey said candidates for civil affairs schools originally were selected on the basis of their civilian experience. Later, military experience was coupled with civilian experience, and he added that schools now are made up of top flight business executives, public utility engineers, city managers, governors, public health physicians, and others of proven executive ability.

"The civilian affairs officer," said Prof. Posey, "is of importance in building the peace. It is he who effects the transition from war to peace. His work is on a par with the peace that is written. Whether we sow the seeds of future war, or instead, lay a foundation for firm peace, will depend essentially upon the civilian affairs officer."

Left-overs are regarded as a nuisance by many cooks. It's true they require storage and extra dish washing eventually, but often leftover food is the inspiration for a special dish or even an unusual menu.

There are many menu makers who actually plan left-overs to provide for a later meal, but it is impractical to cook large amounts of some kinds of foods. Vegetable left-overs, for instance, are impractical because of the vitamin loss and deterioration of flavor and texture. However, with even the most careful food planning, leftover servings of many foods, including vegetables, turn up occasionally either to be discarded [an extravagant thought!] or camouflaged and served anew.

A good design for menu planning is to take inventory of the refrigerator each morning and make a list of the food odds and ends. It's surprising how often lunch and dinner menus miraculously shape themselves around leftover dishes.

Snip this list of left-over suggestions and keep it in a handy place. It'll serve as a reminder for the disposal of that smidgin of cheese and tag end of fish or fowl.

ALL OUT—NOW!

A front-line fighter sees his duty—and does it. We can't be up there with him, but we can make our weight felt, just the same. So far the team of us and him has been clicking well. Our War Bonds—his fighting spirit.

But we haven't finished the fight—yet. There are more battles to be won. More lives will be lost. We can shorten all of those battles—save some of those lives—by buying War Bonds! This is our duty as Americans—and our privilege. Let's do it now!

This support of the 6th War Loan Drive is contributed by the makers of Sani-Flush and Mal-O.

To make up this deficit, and produce the materials of war we must have, every drop of your used kitchen fats is still needed.

To make these hands do this...

Tired, Mr. Perkins?

Tired doesn't half express it . . . Mr. Perkins is practically exhausted. What grocer isn't at this time of night? For even when the grocer locks his door . . . after nine hours on the jump . . . he isn't through. There are still bills to be O.K.'d, ration points and cash receipts to be balanced, price ceilings to be figured, shelves to be checked and dozens of other chores.

Your grocer deserves a lot of credit for the cheerful way he carries on. He . . . as well as his helpers . . . deserve all the cooperation you can give them. By shopping early in the week and early in the day . . . by serving yourself whenever possible . . . and by having your money and ration points ready when you check out, you can make things a lot easier for the folks at the grocery. And they'll be everlastingly grateful to you.

Overattention Invites Child to Misbehave

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

I want to follow up a recent subject, which was that misbehavior is often only a sign that your child is changing because he's growing, with one that is closely related.

When your ideal of perfection for your little boy or girl [or your older ones either] makes you pay attention to and correct every little thing he does which you do not approve of, you are only making the matter worse. In fact, watching every act of your child almost incites him to misbehave.

Parts of a letter which illustrate the point follow:

"I have a little boy, 3 years old, and he has a bad temper. If he plays with a toy and it does not go the way he wants it to go, he takes the toy and throws it across the room. I tell him that it is not a nice thing to do, and that if he does it too much he will have no more. He tells me his daddy or his aunt will buy him some more. They all have him spoiled. He has so many toys I do not know what to do with them all.

"I have tried to punish him by spanking him or putting him to bed, but it does no good. The same thing happens when he is told to eat.

"People tell me the child cannot help it, that he has a temper because his father and I have bad tempers, too. Do you think that this is true?"

For all this confusion the remedy I prescribed was as follows:

For one thing you must have cooperation from your little boy's father and his aunt. You must all try to follow the advice I am going to give you.

To begin with, this small boy is receiving too much attention. Instead of being always the center of attention, he needs to be treated to a kind of wholesome neglect.

Next, he should not be argued with. Also he should not constantly be made the recipient of toys and presents. Spanking and scolding should stop; they do no good at all.

His temper is probably just childish tantrums and will disappear with wise management. Ignore it completely, for a while at least. His behavior at the table again is due to an excess of attention.

A change of attitude on the part of his grownups is about all this little boy needs. A little reading on child management and a lot of thinking is what the adults should do.

Mizrachi Women Plan Regional Drive to Get 10,000 New Members

At a midwest regional conference of the Mizrachi Women's organization yesterday in the Hamilton hotel delegates approved plans for a regional drive for 10,000 new members. Present at the meeting were some 350 representatives of the organization, which supports settlements and other projects in Palestine where native and refugee children receive care and vocational training.

Mrs. Samuel Goldstein, national president, who came from New York to conduct the meeting, announced that the annual budget of the national organization calls for $750,000 to meet emergency needs created by the war. Mrs. Abraham Danzig of Rockford, Ill., chairman of the region and conference chairman, disclosed that chapters of this area have sent more than $50,000 to the national treasury for Palestinian projects. The region will undertake to raise $100,000 for the national budget.

Mrs. Nathan Ebin, chairman of one of the Palestinian children's settlements, also was here from New York for the meeting. Mrs. Milton Shalowitz is chairman of the Chicago council.

Sequins Give New Stockings Added Glamor

BY REA SEEGER.

Sequins on your stockings! It's something new and daring. Even tho the hosiery is of rayon or cotton, the festive effect will make an impression. And after this holiday showing, don't say the hosiery makers are dull and unimaginative.

You have to see them to believe it all, but the newest stockings do flaunt the shimmer and glitter of sequins. The sun-tan shade is considerably lightened with emerald green sequins worked in a sentimental bow knot design on one pair, glittering black sequins make very decorative side clox in another, and gold sequins are embroidered in the heels and toes of others destined for evening and in dance sandals of gold, silver, or bright satins.

This stunt is certainly new and exciting. Never before in fashion history have lowly cotton stockings rated such glitter and dazzle. They are the stockings that will make what the dancing crowd call "super." Two or three in a gift box will provide all the glamor needed for a perfect ankle and the most glamorous evening gown.

If you sniff at sequins, try hand painted hosiery in the same collection. Garlands of tiny flowers are painted to form ankle bracelets, side clox, and decorative toes and heels. The paint job is done delicately with pastels, and the results are an eyeful no matter from what level. And they're not half as wacky as they sound. Prices are modest for such sensational decorations.

This hosiery gift promotion is a slick idea for stockings for the career girl, for the college girl, for mother, in fact, for all women. So if you have problem people to please, and want to click with the just right kind of stockings, use this clever new promotion idea. Every kind of a question or problem will be solved instantly.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	2 diamonds	Double	2 hearts
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

Some time ago it was pointed out that the penalty double of overcalls by opponents at the low levels was the most lucrative source of income at the contract table. I also suggested at that time that when your partner opens the bidding and your right hand opponent overcalls with two in a minor suit, if you feel that your hand calls for some action and you are not quite certain what to bid, very frequently a double on suspicion will pay handsome dividends.

Today I appear to contradict myself because my advice to South would have been not to double the two diamond overcall. In point of fact, however, I am not contradicting myself. Today's situation is somewhat different from those that preceded it. If I thought the opponents would play the hand at diamonds, I would double and would be perfectly willing to give the opposition half their money back.

But, here is the hitch. It is almost inconceivable that this hand will be permitted to play at diamonds. Either West or North will not be able to stand for it. If North should not stand for it South will be unhappy to place such a dummy on the table. If West escapes, there is the danger that North will double, again making South unhappy.

In other words, the two diamond bid is too good to be true. It can't last, and since it is virtually impossible to collect the profit, the best procedure is to pass.

In the actual hand, South doubled. West naturally escaped to two hearts which North doubled, and who could blame him? South was now at a loss. He knew the result might be disastrous but he feared to return to two spades, with only two small trumps, and certainly could not try one of the minor suits. So he hoped against hope and passed. The fulfillment of the doubled contract by West was routine.

The moral is, do not double anything that you know in advance isn't going to stay doubled.

The usual weekly quiz will appear tomorrow.

Sally Requests Furniture for Needy Family

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

A case worker has requested our aid in helping a family prepare for the homecoming of an invalid. There are four children in the family, 4 year old twins and two older girls. One of the latter has been in a convalescent home because of arthritis. The father has been unemployed for a long period, and altho he is now working, the needs of the family are numerous, and it has been necessary for them to buy heating equipment. Their home is barren, and they would like very much to have living room furniture, kitchen chairs, and, in particular, a comfortable lounge chair for the invalid who hopes to be home for Christmas.

Mrs. H. T. sends the following appeal:

"Dear Miss Brown:

"My son wrote me a letter from somewhere in France asking if it would be possible to get him a crystal radio set. He told me that it would bring lots of pleasure if he and his group could listen to music. I have asked so many people, but there does not seem to be any one who still has a crystal set. I shall be very grateful if you can help him."

Miss Shannon Will Become Bride Sunday

When Ensign James Brorsen of the navy returned to this country on a 30 day leave last week, he and his fiancee, Miss Barbara Shannon, began immediately to make plans for their wedding, which will take place at 4 p. m. Sunday in the chapel of the Winnetka Congregational church. A reception will follow at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Ford in Winnetka, with whom she lives. Miss Shannon is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cutler Shannon of Rye, N. Y.

Miss Shannon will have her sister, Mrs. Cheves Walling, of Upper Montclair, N. J., as her matron of honor, and Miss Suzanne Ford, a cousin of the bride with whom she made her debut a year ago, will act as maid of honor. Another cousin, Miss Edrita Ford, and Miss Susan Atteridge of Evanston will be bridesmaids. Mr. Walling will serve as best man, and ushering will be Eugene Ford, Harger Rollo, and the bride's brother, Eugene Shannon.

Since Ensign Brorsen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willard A. Brorsen, probably will be unable to come from their home in Oakland, Cal., for the ceremony, he and his bride will have a short visit with them when he reports to the west coast at the end of his leave.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Nixon and their younger son, Carver, are in Toledo, O., for the marriage today of another son, Lt. Robert G. Nixon of the army, and Miss Patricia Anne Fowler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ival Gale Fowler of Toledo. The ceremony will take place at 4:30 p. m. in the rectory of Gesu church, with a dinner following for the families in the Toledo club and later a reception in the Fowler home. Lt. Nixon, who attended the Todd school and Lake Forest college, is stationed at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds.

At home on leave but without his bride of early October is Capt. Stanford Meigs of the army air transport command, son of Mrs. Ethel Harmon Meigs of Evanston and of Merrill C. Meigs of Chicago. Capt. Meigs and former Section Officer Brenda M. Clarke of the WAAF were married in Cairo, Egypt, where both were stationed. Before coming here Capt. Meigs and his bride visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. Clarke, in London. Young Mrs. Meigs, who was educated in England and Switzerland, will come to Chicago after the war. Capt. Meigs has two brothers, Harmon, a lieutenant in the navy, stationed in Washington, D. C., after serving in the Solomons and Guadalcanal campaigns, and Merrill Jr., a seaman 2d class in the navy, now in England.

A fascinating collection of velvet party dresses for children from 1 to 3 and older sisters from 3 to 6 is available in a Chicago store. The color range for the younger group is in every conceivable pastel shade, while the older girls have a choice of royal blue, wine, red, brown, and American Beauty.

The luscious ice cream colored velvet dress at left for a child from 1 to 3 has a full skirt, tiny bodice embroidered across the front, Peter Pan collar edged with white plaited net and minute puffed sleeves. A narrow belt ties across the back at the high waistline.

Rich American Beauty velvet fashions the party dress in center for the child from 3 to 6. The skirt is slightly full, and the simple bodice has three horizontal tucks couched in matching silk thread. The white turn-over collar is edged with white lace. The puff sleeves are banded with a narrow cuff. The dress fastens in the back and ties with a belt at the waistline.

Another gala dress for the miss from 1 to 3, at right, has two pockets edged with white net on the skirt, vertical tucks in the bodice, and a turn-over velvet collar edged with plaited net. The puff sleeves are bound with the material, and the dress fastens in back.

a tea for the visitors Sunday afternoon, limiting her guests to members of the faculties of Chicago universities in recognition of the fact that Dr. Gle won distinction as a historian and professor before turning to diplomacy.

Mrs. David Crawford is entertaining at luncheon at the University club today for two new members of the board of the Lighthouse for the Blind, Mrs. Merrill C. Meigs and Mrs. Janet H. Hennebery. A subscription drive for funds just has been launched. It will be augmented by a benefit cocktail party and fashion show in February.

Members of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations and their guests will hear a luncheon address by Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, at 12:15 p. m. today in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House. He will speak on "An Oil Policy for the United States."

Here and There.

Lt. and Mrs. Harvey Mason, who have returned to Northbrook on leave from his navy duties, are visiting the William T. Reeds and will be among their guests at a cocktail party new members of the Kenilworth Center of the Infant Welfare society are giving from 5 to 8 p. m. today in the Drake. The Gordon Ewings are entertaining at the party for her father, R. Gilbert Cornish, who is celebrating his birthday today, and will take him later to hear Koussevitzky and the Boston Symphony orchestra in Orchestra hall. Some of the center members have curtailed their smoking for several weeks in order to donate packages of cigarets to be given away during the evening.

The Frank R. Mortimers, who have been settled for some months in their new house in Crilly court, are entertaining at cocktails from 5 to 7 p. m. tomorrow. The party will be a housewarming.

The senior class at the Girls' Latin school will present "Quality Street" tonight and tomorrow night in the school gymnasium. Miss Emily Goehst is directing the play.

Ruffled Front

Designed to grace the slim figure and to glorify the mature silhouette, this distinguished afternoon frock uses ruffles in a vestee effect and around the base of the bell sleeves. The skirt paneling achieves a pencil-slim look. Style No. 3659 is designed for sizes 12 to 48. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch fabric and 4 yards of lace trim.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The winter fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents, 12 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

MAJ. GRIFFITH, BIG TEN COMMISSIONER, DIES

DE PAUL, ILLINI MEET STRONG FIVES TONIGHT

Wyoming, Sailors Stadium Foes.

Double header basketball programs in the Chicago Stadium open tonight with two games which will equal any presentation this winter. Tonight's pairings are Illinois and Great Lakes and De Paul and the University of Wyoming. De Paul and Wyoming will open the program at 8:15 p. m.

The Bluejackets, beginning a fourth season of competition, are aiming for their 100th victory tonight as opposed to 11 defeats. They also seek to square their contests with Illinois. The Illini won in the Stadium two years ago and divided with Great Lakes in two games last season, losing in the Stadium and winning in Champaign. The teams play again tomorrow evening at Great Lakes.

De Paul Stars Return.

Coach Ray Meyer of De Paul has three of last year's quintet which whipped Ohio State, Western conference champion, and participated in the New York invitational tournament. They are George Mikan, 6 foot 9 inch center, who received national honors last year, and Gene Stump and Whitey Kachan. Jack Dean, regular forward last season, is a member of the Great Lakes squad.

Wyoming, national collegiate champion in 1943, will match Mikan with their star, George Nostrand, who also is 6 feet 9 inches. Since De Paul's attack centers around Mikan, the Blue Demons' fifth consecutive victory will depend largely on the Mikan-Nostrand duel.

Illini Count of Youngsters.

Walter Kirk and Howard Judson are the only Illinois regulars, but Coach Doug Mills has a fine group of Illinois freshmen to round out a squad which may finish high in the conference, despite Ohio State's veterans, who are title defenders. These youngsters include Walt Kersulis, East St. Louis; John Orr, Taylorville; Jack Burmaster, Elgin, and Paul Schnackenberg, South Shore High school, Chicago. All were named on the all-state high school quintet last year. Wally Mroz, leading scorer in the Chicago City league a year ago, from Wells High, is another topnotch freshman.

Great Lakes has an entirely new cast for the campaign, in which 39 games already have been scheduled. The Bluejackets won the opening game from Glenview, 54 to 50, which possibly indicates that this year's cast is less experienced and certainly points to the need of additional work to produce a smooth attack.

In addition to Dean, who scored 267 points for De Paul last year as a freshman, Great Lakes has three other Chicagoans on the squad which faces Illinois. They are Gordon Gillespie, Tony Kaufmann, and Herb Ball.

Their get-togethers seldom half so gay.
But, O, the old friends! With their faults and virtue,

Peace at Last.

Filling no smallest portion of my needs
And leaving only languorous distress.
Lead Thou my halting footsteps on the way
And I shall not grow weak and faint of soul;
Guide me thru mist and shadow day by day
Till I at last have reached the longed-for goal;
And tho the stones be crimson with my blood

Johnny Small, Chicago switchboard company executive, last night took over the lead at the quarter mark in the finals of the fourth All-Star Match Game Bowling tournament by running out a Petersen point total of 75.36. John needed it to outdistance Adam Plunge, the south side Chicago toolmaker, who finished with 75.33 for the first day of the match play chore which will run thru Sunday night.

Right behind the two Chicagoans was Therman Gibson of Detroit, who had led the total pin qualifiers thru the 36 game total pin preliminaries with a count of 7,264. Yesterday Gibson came thru with a smashing series of 965, based on four games of 206, 225, and rapid brace of 267s in his last two efforts.

Small Rolls 279 Game.

Small had the hottest game of the tournament which is being conducted in the Auditorium service men's center under the sponsorship of the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America. In his opening duel against Buddy Bomar, the former Texan who now manages the Marigold arcade and is one of the five seeded entrants in this world series of tenpins, Small blasted out the high game of the party. It was a brilliant 279, which missed a perfect game only because the 8 pin failed to drop in the fifth frame.

Today, at noon, the 16 outstanding bowlers of the nation who constitute the most talented field ever to come into the man-to-man battle again will go to work on each other. Interest in the competition reached a peak last night with a near full house cheering the contestants. Many of them plan to return for the double header of matinee and evening matches today, especially since there are now a few local boys who seem to be intent on winning the title.

Day Fifth, Krumske Sixth.

Sinke still was very much in the picture with a point total of 74.48, giving him fourth position, in front of Ned Day of West Allis, Wis., winner of last year's title, and Paul Krumske of Chicago's Meister Braus, who only a few days ago took Ned's championship away from him in a challenge match. Ned goes into today's round with a point aggregate of 74.45, against Krumske's 74.11, no small part of his average being due to a three game conquest of Paul in one of their four game blocks.

How It Is Done.

If you are a trifle confused about the way the main event of bowling is being handled, let's explain it. The final round robin of match game competition is being determined thru the Petersen point system. Sixteen men, including the five who were seeded into the finals off of their work in last year's tourney—Krumske, Day, Bomar, Rudy Pugel of Milwaukee, and Connie Schwoegler of Madison, Wis.—will argue with each other thru Sunday night's finish.

Thru the Petersen point system each bowler is credited with one point for each 50 pins he knocks down and a point for each game he takes within a series of four games. He is credited with a half a point, or the equivalent of 25 pins, if a game results in a total—pin tie. He also receives a point if he wins the lesser number of games, but still outscores his opponent in total pins.

Schedule for today:

12 noon—Gibson vs. Plunge; Kissoff vs. Day; Schwoegler vs. Bujack; Wilman vs. Sixty.

1:20 p. m.—Sinke vs. Burton; Ward vs. Krumske; Varipapa vs. Bomar Small vs. Pugel.

2:40—Small vs. Wilman; Bujack vs. Plunge; Sixty vs. Kissoff; Gibson vs. Schwoegler.

4:00—Ward vs. Varipapa; Krumske vs. Bomar; Burton vs. Pugel; Sinke vs. Day.

6:20—Burton vs. Bujack; Pugel vs. Varipapa; Sinke vs. Sixty; Bomar vs. Ward.

7:40—Kissoff vs. Wilman; Day vs. Schwoegler; Gibson vs. Small; Plunge vs. Krumske.

9:00—Bomar vs. Sinke; Bujack vs. Sixty; Pugel vs. Ward; Varipapa vs. Burton.

10:20—Krumske vs. Small; Plunge vs. Kissoff; Wilman vs. Schwoegler; Day vs. Gibson.

Columbus, O., Dec. 7 [Special].—Leslie Horvath, winner of the 1944 Heisman football award, star back and sparkplug of this year's Ohio State football team, Western conference champions, today was voted by his teammates the most valuable player on this year's squad.

With the selection, Horvath is placed in nomination for The Chicago Tribune's Silver Football award, made annually to the most valuable player in the Big Nine.

Played Under Three Coaches.

Horvath has played under three Ohio State coaches in his four years a regular, first the late Francis Schmidt, then Paul Brown, and this year Carroll Widdoes. He was a regular in 1940, 1941, and on the championship 1942 Ohio team.

A member of the army specialized training program in 1943, from which, incidentally, he holds an honorable discharge, he was forced to halt football activities during that year. After his discharge in August of 1944 he joined the squad under Widdoes.

Averaged 5.57 Yards Per Try.

Horvath was 23 on Sept. 18. He is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 167 pounds. He is a senior in the dental college at Ohio State and will be graduated in June. Horvath expects to get married in the same month to Miss June Weinhardt, 22 year old brunette and schoolmate from Les' home town of Parma, O., a suburb of Cleveland.

During the season's nine games Horvath carried the ball 163 times and gained 924 yards for an average of 5.57 yards. He scored 72 points on 12 touchdowns and passed 32 times, completing 14, for a total gain of 344 yards. Four tosses resulted in touchdowns.

Horvath led the Ohio squad in actual playing time despite the fact that he competed only eight minutes against Pittsburgh. He piled up 401½ minutes out of a possible 540 minutes for the season. When he

Maj. Griffith Eulogized by Associates

Athletic leaders of the Western conference and the nation, informed last night of the death of Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the conference, joined in praise of his years of leadership in sports and in messages of sympathy to his family. Some of these follow:

L. W. ST. JOHN, director of athletics at Ohio State university and dean of Western conference leaders—The Western conference has lost a great leader. I have been associated with Maj. Griffith for more than a score of years. His keen judgment, his honesty of purpose, and above all his desire to serve gave him a place in collegiate sports which we cannot fill. Ohio State, and my colleagues in the conference, extend sincere sympathy to his widow and son.

KENNETH L. WILSON, director of athletics at Northwestern university—Maj. Griffith's death comes as a great shock to all of us. He was in fine spirits and was looking forward to continuing his work for the conference. I have known Maj. Griffith since my undergraduate days and his place as a leader of men is unquestioned.

DR. KARL LEIB, Western conference faculty representative from the University of Iowa—It was my great pleasure to be associated with Maj. Griffith in conference activities for many years. We respected his judgment and admired his tact. I express for my confreres and the university our deep sense of loss.

THE REV. JOHN J. CAVANAUGH, C. S. C., chairman faculty board of control of athletics at the University of Notre Dame—Notre Dame extends its deepest and most sincere sympathy to Mrs. Griffith and the family in the death of a most distinguished character and an outstanding leader in intercollegiate athletics. His associations with Notre Dame have been invaluable for many years and we greatly mourn his loss.

HARRY STUHLDREHER, director of athletics and football coach at the University of Wisconsin—Maj. Griffith's death ends a splendid career of service. It is a shock to all of us who left him an hour before he died. The high standards of intercollegiate sport in the conference will be a monument to his indefatigable efforts. We all will miss his leadership.

LOU LITTLE, Columbia university—Maj. Griffith's death is a blow to all competitive athletics. He was a fine leader and a true friend. With all the other coaches whom he knew so well, and who admired him so much, I feel a deep personal loss.

HOPPE WINS IN 20 INNINGS FOR WORLD RECORD

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Willie Hoppe, defending champion who suffered his third tournament defeat in four years last night, came back tonight to set a world championship three cushion billiard record by scoring 50 points in 20 innings to defeat Andrew Ponzi, 50 to 20.

The previous 50 point inning record was 23, held jointly by Johnny Layton of St. Louis and Jay Bozeman of Vallejo, Cal.

Hoppe had two high runs of eight each, while Ponzi's best was six, as the latter absorbed his fourth straight defeat and Hoppe won his third match in four starts.

HOPPE—381 023 116 128 210 601 04—50
PONZI—120 200 000 004 300 601 1—20

Ralph Greenleaf of Detroit and Bozeman won their fourth games in the afternoon round to tie for the tournament lead.

Welker Cochran of San Francisco moved into the first place tie by defeating John Fitzpatrick of Los Angeles, 50 to 28, in 29 innings in an evening match.

BIG TEN SETS UP SCHEDULES IN INDOOR SPORTS

The directors of athletics of the Western conference, in their meeting yesterday in the Sherman hotel approved the dates for conference meets in track, swimming, and wrestling.

The conference indoor track meet will be held March 10 in the University of Chicago fieldhouse. On the same date the conference swimmers and wrestlers will compete for league titles at Northwestern university. The conference decided not to hold competition in gymnastics and fencing this winter.

The conference outdoor track meet also was set at yesterday's meeting. It will be held for a second consecutive year at the University of Illinois on May 26.

Tennis, Golf Meetings Today.

Other important track dates, agreed on yesterday, include Chicago relays, March 17 in the Chicago Stadium; Purdue relays, March 24, and the Seahawks relays in Iowa City, Ia., March 31.

Individual schedules for conference schools also were drawn yesterday in wrestling, swimming, baseball, and track. Tennis and golf coaches will meet today at 10 o'clock for the same purpose.

The national collegiate swimming meet was set tentatively for the University of Michigan March 30 and 31. The N. C. A. A. football coaches' executive committee will meet in Columbus, O., Sunday to determine the location of the national convention. If the association meets, New York or New Orleans is the likely site. In the latter event, the convention will be held at the time of the Sugar bowl game.

Books Army and Navy.

H. O. [Fritz] Crisler, director of athletics and football coach at Michigan, yesterday announced that the Wolverines would meet Army and Navy in 1945. Army will be played in New York Oct. 13 and the Navy game is scheduled Nov. 10 in Baltimore. Each of the academies has signed a two year contract. Army will play Michigan in Ann Arbor in 1946 and Navy's return game probably will be scheduled in 1947.

Michigan met Pennsylvania in Philadelphia last fall and the concluding game of this series is scheduled in Ann Arbor Sept. 29 or Oct. 20, 1945.

HAWKS TO GET WILF FIELDS FOR SUNDAY GAME

Wilf Fields, right defenseman acquired by the Blackhawks from the Montreal Canadiens on a lend-lease basis for this year, will report to the Hawks for Sunday's game in New York, President Bill Tobin reported by phone from Montreal yesterday.

ATHLETIC CHIEF OF CONFERENCE FOR 22 YEARS

Passes Just After Re-Election.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Maj. John L. Griffith, 67, commissioner of athletics for the Western conference for 22 years, died early last night in his office in the Sherman hotel. Maj. Griffith, who had been offered a five year renewal of his contract at a meeting of the directors yesterday morning, was on his way to attend a dinner of the directors and faculty representatives at the University club.

Maj. Griffith attended the afternoon session of the directors in the conference suite on the third floor of the Sherman hotel and left just before his secretary closed the rooms at 5:30 p. m. He then visited briefly with L. W. St. John, director of athletics for Ohio State university, a long time friend, and with other officials. Mr. St. John and Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, Northwestern's director of athletics, waited for Maj. Griffith in the lobby of the hotel while he stopped in his office. When he failed to appear they went to the suite and found him on the floor.

An inhalator squad from the Chicago fire department was unable to revive him. The body is at the funeral parlor at 1460 Sherman av., Evanston.

Receives Congratulations.

While Maj. Griffith had not been in the best of health—he suffered a heart attack five years ago—he apparently had recovered and at yesterday's meeting was his usual jovial self. He had left the office suite yesterday morning while the directors discussed renewal of his contract, which was to expire next June. He returned to receive the offer of renewal for five years and later was congratulated by directors, coaches, and newspaper men, with whom he was extremely popular.

Officials of the conference received word immediately last evening of Maj. Griffith's death and they joined in expressions of appreciation of his years of service. Player, coach, and educator before World War I., a veteran of that conflict, Maj. Griffith became commissioner of athletics for the Western conference in 1922. He was arbiter of disputes, policy director, and calm advisor for the association which became the leader in intercollegiate athletics.

On Fitness Committee.

His office was clearing house for conference matters and as the conference made intercollegiate history and was copied by other collegiate associations Maj. Griffith's national reputation in sports grew apace. At his death he was a member of the national committee on physical fitness of the war man power committee.

Maj. Griffith was founder of the Athletic Journal, a magazine for coaches and players, which reached thousands from high schools to universities. He was arbiter, years ago, between the National Collegiate association and the Amateur Athletic union, when policy conflicted.

Boosts War Time Sports.

After Maj. Griffith became commissioner for the conference in 1922 his policies and those of his associates soon were copied in other sections of the country and only recently the Pacific Coast conference adopted a managerial setup identical with that of the Western conference. The conference led in the fight against proselyting, recruiting, and other problems of amateur sports.

Maj. Griffith's insistence that college sports should be continued during this war was second to none and under his leadership collegiate athletics were maintained. The recent Western conference football season, with an increase in attendance of more than 300,000 above 1943, is evidence of Maj. Griffith's correct estimate of public support.

He was born in Mount Carroll, Ill., Aug. 20, 1877, and was graduated from Mount Carroll High school at the age of 16. In 1898 he was graduated from Warren, [Ill.] academy and in 1902 received a bachelor of arts degree from Beloit college in Wisconsin. He participated in four sports, football, baseball, basketball, and track at Beloit.

That fall he accepted a position as athletic director at Yankton, S.

TALENT HUNTERS SETTING TRAPS FOR CUB CHIEFS

Every One Hopes to Land a Catcher or Two.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Vice President Jim Gallagher of the Cubs, with Owner-President P. K. Wrigley alongside to applaud his technique, will be the man of the hour at the major league meetings in New York next week if he survives the 22 hour a day buffeting he has been receiving in the minor league convention here.

Gallagher, starting his fifth year as administrative head of the Cubs—he launched his executive career at the minor league convention in Atlanta four years ago by giving Cincinnati $25,000, Outfielder Jim Gleeson, and Shortstop Bobby Mattick for Shortstop Billy Meyers, who retired to become a locomotive fireman on the Pennsy—is being greatly sought because the Cubs have 41 men on their own roster and control the destinies of between 200 and 300 players.

Everybody Wants Catchers.

As head of this greatest of ivory empires, Gallagher has supplanted Branch Rickey as the biggest talent shepherd in organized baseball. The Cardinal chain, which Rickey bossed before he became president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, still is far flung, as they say, but the Cardinals, as world champions, are pursuing a sit tight attitude this winter while the Brooklyn chain is somewhat moth-eaten, as reflected by the Dodgers' flow of beardless inadequates last season.

Almost everybody is crying for catchers, catchers who at least can throw well enough to get the ball back to the pitcher. Gallagher has five such on his Cub roster alone and no major league outfit ever carries more than three receivers into the regular league season.

Livingston Is Head Man.

The Cub catching roster now is composed of Mickey Livingston and Paul Gillespie, army dischargees; Dewey Williams, purchased for $25,000 last midseason from Toronto; Joe Stephenson, a purchase from Jersey City; and Leonard Rice, drafted from Syracuse the first of last month.

The conference between Managers Jim Dykes and Lou Boudreau, of the White Sox and Cleveland Indians, respectively, involving possible swaps in which Jim Bagby, Roy Cullenbine, and Oris Hockett of the Indians, and Bill Dietrich, Guy Curtright, and Mike Tresh have been repeatedly mentioned, will carry over to major league meeting in New York.

C.Y.O. Boxing Kings to Fight in Kansas City

BY FRANK MASTRO.

The eight open class boxers, who captured championships in Ashland auditorium on Wednesday in the finals of the fourth war time amateur tournament sponsored by the Catholic Youth organization, will be rewarded with a trip to Kansas City, Mo., next month, it was announced yesterday by the Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, founder and director of the organization.

Sightseeing will be the chief item of interest for the boys, but they also will take care of a little matter of an intercity match with the best fighters in Kansas City. The date is Jan. 4.

Tony [Kim] Urabe, 20 year old American-Japanese of 4554 Oakenwald av., was the only one of the 1944 C. Y. O. title holders [eight novices also won championships] to suffer an injury duri..g the spirited fighting.

Urabe suffered a cut eye in his victory over Paul Yee of the Chinese Catholic mission, but the injury will be healed in time for the impending intercity match, Dr. W. Lloyd Kenny, examining physician for the C. Y. O., said. Tony's achievement enabled Holy Name cathedral to salvage a tie with St. Mel High school for the team trophy.

CUBS BOOK SIX SPRING BATTLES AGAINST REDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 7.—The Cubs today announced a schedule of six exhibition games to be played with the Cincinnati Reds next April. This brought the spring calendar to 10 games with a probable two game series to be booked with the Detroit Tigers in Evansville and a possible pair with the St. Louis Browns, American league champions in Cape Girardeau, Mo.

The Reds-Cub series will open at Camp Knox, Ky., on April 6 after which the teams will move up to Louisville for contests on April 7 and 8, then proceed to French Lick, where they will play on April 9, 10, and 11. The Cubs then will break camp and will open against the White Sox in Comiskey park in a four game home and home series.

Maj. Griffith, Big 10 Chief, Dies Suddenly

D., college, where he remained until 1905, when he transferred to Morningside college in Iowa to become athletic director as well as coach of all sports. From Morningside he went to Drake university in 1908, where in addition to serving as athletic director and coach of all sports he was dean of men for two years, and acting president of the university for one.

Seeking some means of keeping track men interested early in the season, he struck upon the idea of an outdoor carnival similar to indoor meets he had seen in other cities and on April 23, 1910, held the first of these meets that were to be once famous as the Drake relays, one of the country's leading track events.

At the outbreak of the war he resigned at Drake and entered the army, being stationed at Camp Dodge, where he was made division athletic officer in charge of recreational activities of 30,000 men. He also served at Camp Pike, Camp Funston and Camp Gordon. In January, 1919, he was raised from the rank of captain to that of major and placed in command of physical education and bayonet instruction for the entire army, with headquarters in Washington.

Past President of Rotary.

After his discharge in 1919 Maj. Griffith joined the staff of the University of Illinois as an instructor in the school of coaching. While there he began publication of the Athletic Journal.

He led the fight to obtain a greater voice for colleges and universities in the administrative councils of the American Olympic committee, of which he was a member, and sought for years to bring about an agreement between major league baseball and collegiate athletic authorities that would eliminate the raiding of campuses by big league scouts.

In recent years he became actively interested in the suppression of subversive practices. He was national vice president of the Paul Reveres, an organization to "promote patriotism, to advance Americanism and to combat radicalism." He was national president of the Rotary club in 1934 and 1935, served as a director of the Executives' club, and was a former president of the National Collegiate Athletic association.

He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Alice Kelly Griffith, whom he married in 1904, and one son, Lt. John L. Griffith Jr. The home was at 717 Walden rd., Winnetka.

9 DAY, $80,000 HORSE SHOW TO OPEN TOMORROW

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Most of the 435 horses which will compete for nine evenings and five afternoons in the Chicago Horse show at the Coliseum are in their stalls and everything is in readiness for this nationally important event which will open at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

Paul Butler, president of the association, yesterday purchased $80,000 in war bonds to be distributed to class, stake, and championship place winners and all details have been attended to with the exception of the laying of the ring covering of sand, clay, and tanbark, a chore that will keep a crew busy all night from midnight on.

Two of the principal attractions will reach Chicago this morning. They are Flight Officer Gene Autry, the singing cowboy, and his trick horse, Champion. They will entertain the Coliseum crowds as their contributions to the Community and War Fund, which will receive the net proceeds of the show.

Of the 435 horses entered, the Chicago metropolitan area accounts for 165, topped by John F. Cuneo's Hawthorn farm of Libertyville, with 24; James L. Younghusband of Barrington, 16; Mrs. A. C. Thompson's Happy Way farm of Maywood, 12, and the H. Leslie Atlass Sunny Ridge farm of Wheaton, 8. Mackey and Bardin of Park Ridge have entered 5; Oak Hill farm of La Grange, 4; and Harold E. FINDING A BRAKE A BACK BREAKING JOB FOR DRIVERS

8,000 Coast Off Safety Lanes Into Dilemma.

Many of the more than 8,000 motorists whose cars have failed to pass the safety lane tests since the recent drive to bring safety stickers up to date have learned of another plague besides the cigaret shortage. Brake cables, for instance, in certain makes of cars are about as hard to find as a pair of nylons. Trying to find replacements for headlamp reflectors on older models leads to an expedition that would weary an antique hunter.

Another thing they have learned is that the city's garages are as bustling as a hospital during an epidemic. And speaking of hospitals, when the heretofore trusty old bus is driven in, the mechanic peers under the hood, examines the car thoroly and, after consulting his chart, lets you know when his time and the operating room are available. That is usually two or three weeks hence.

Rejections Average 32 Per Cent.

Rejections on the safety lanes are averaging about 32 per cent, Edward Gorman, acting public vehicle commissioner, said yesterday. Principal causes for failure to pass inspection, he said, are brake trouble and weak or improperly adjusted headlights.

Gorman explained motorists had come to his office with letters from auto dealers and garage men certifying that needed parts were not available. When it pertained to brake trouble, he said, the motorist was told to lay up his car.

Several persons have been able to find the needed parts by shopping in out of the way districts or getting repairs done at small alley garages when they were unsuccessful at the larger establishments, he said.

More Taxing Than Shopping.

Judging from their tales, he said, some of the quests have been more taxing than Christmas shopping. Officials of firms dealing in automotive parts said that much of the supply was scarce partly because of war demands. When the army demands are met, civilian supplies are drained, one said. There is a scarcity of high grade storage batteries, another said, and certain parts of the hydraulic brake systems have been almost unobtainable.

Another jobber described the supply situation as "spotty." Various firms have stores of only certain parts.

ATTY. GOLDSTEIN FACES NEW QUIZ OVER $1,000 FEE

Allman Rejects First Report on Case.

Commissioner Allman took direct action yesterday in the police department's investigation of William Goldstein, one time lawyer for the late William R. [Bill] Skidmore, gambling boss, in connection with a police court case originating in the Cragin police district.

The commissioner rejected a preliminary report on the inquiry and ordered a deeper investigation. Goldstein's activity also is being scrutinized in the same case by the Chicago Bar association.

The case goes back to Sept. 6 when Joseph Pacyna, 52, of 2052 Lorel av., was arrested for alleged incest by Policemen George M. Swiecicki and Leo Anderson of the Cragin station. Pacyna retained Goldstein as his attorney, was released on bail, and later freed in court.

Tells of $1,000 Fee.

Subsequently Pacyna complained to Commissioner Allman that Goldstein had charged him $1,000 for his police court services, and after his dismissal had come to his home in an effort to collect $75 for a professional bail bond. Pacyna said he believed that the $1,000 fee was not only enough but exorbitant, and refused to pay the $75. He quoted Goldstein as saying, "Don't be a hero, or you will wind up on a one way ride."

Pacyna said further that he had engaged Atty. Goldstein thru Policeman Swiecicki, who had arrested him. Swiecicki, he said, told him, "You need a lawyer." He agreed, he said, and soon afterward Goldstein appeared.

Goldstein, questioned by Police Inspector Edwin J. Daly, admitted getting a $1,000 fee from Pacyna, but denied seeking the $75 bail fee, and the alleged "ride" threat.

Admits Visit to Home.

He did visit Pacyna in his home, he said, but only to see how he was getting along. Goldstein denied being retained thru Policeman Swiecicki; some one telephoned him, but he didn't know who, he said.

Policeman Swiecicki also denied to Inspector Daly that he had retained Goldstein for Pacyna. In his report to Commissioner Allman, Inspector Daly recommended further inquiry, and especially a search for one Leo La Porte, a Madison st. casual, who occupied a cell with Pacyna, and who might be able to confirm or deny parts of Pacyna's story. Allman marked the report "not approved," and ordered a wider inquiry. His interest largely centers on alleged police roles in the case. The bar association's interest is said to concern the $1,000 fee.

U. S. FILES NEW ANSWER IN CASE OF BILL JOHNSON

United States Atty. Woll charged yesterday that the bureau of internal revenue forced Theodore Goldstein to pay income taxes on receipts from the Albany Park Bank building, 3424 Lawrence av., despite the fact that Goldstein was only the record title holder to the property.

Woll made this assertion in an answer in federal District court to the plea of William R. [Big Bill] Johnson, former Chicago gambling czar, for a new trial for income tax evasion. Johnson has charged that Goldstein's father, Atty. William Goldstein, gave perjured testimony concerning ownership of the property at the trial. He has cited Theodore's income tax returns as a basis for his motion.

The government's reply, however, asserts that two revenue officials, Edward H. Schulz, a zone supervisor and Stanley A. Wodrick, a deputy collector, prevailed upon the elder Goldstein, as agent for his son while the latter was in the army, to file the returns. In affidavits attached to the answer, Theodore denies that he has or had any interest in the property other than that of title holder of record. The government alleges Johnson owns the property. Judge John P. Barnes will hear arguments in the matter next Monday.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

WALKOUT CLOSES 3 PAPERS; READ COMICS OVER AIR

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 7 (AP).—Publication of the morning Globe-Democrat was suspended for tonight when striking pressroom employés unanimously voted to continue until tomorrow, at least, a "recess" which has tied up all three metropolitan newspapers.

Already deprived of almost half of their movie entertainment thru the closing of 49 theaters, St. Louisans also went without the two afternoon papers, the Post-Dispatch and Star-Times.

The three papers missed their editions when members of the Paper Handlers, Flymen, Sheet Straighteners, and Stockmen's union, local 616 [AFL] went into "recess" and failed to report for work, pending renewal of their contract.

Radio station KSD, owned by the Post-Dispatch, and KXOK, the Star-Times station, canceled regular programs to read news and editorials and describe comics from proof-sheets.

The theater closings stem from refusal of union projectionists to run films of seven major film exchanges whose employes are on strike.

N. A. M. STARTS DRIVE TO SAVE U. S. FROM REDS

Calls for Political Reconversion.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 7.—A campaign to save the United States from its Communists and crackpots was announced today by the National Association of Manufacturers. Announcement of the plan was applauded by 4,000 industrialists attending the annual convention in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel as essential to the preservation of free enterprise in this country.

W. B. Weisenburger.

A political reconversion was described by speakers as a prerequisite to a post-war industrial reconversion without totalitarianism. The program is to be a campaign to educate America to appreciate its heritages of freedom and opportunity. It is to be a sustained counterattack against the left wingers such as was lacking in the recent Presidential campaign after the Republican nominee, Gov. Dewey of New York, adopted some of the New Deal philosophy.

Plan Broad Program.

The industrialists, while diligently producing arms, declared that they would not permit the domestic Reds to nullify the fruits of victory over Germany and Japan. In newspaper advertising, in mass meetings, and in employer-employe contacts the NAM is going to promise jobs and a higher standard of living without regimentation. It will compete with the promises of leftist politicians so the public will be informed in deciding the future of America.

"There have been a lot of people elected to public office, again, and again, and again, more on their good intentions than their brilliant achievements," said Walter B. Weisenburger, vice president of NAM, in telling the convention of the forthcoming campaign. "Business men can take some leaves from the politicians' note book, even tho they don't subscribe to the whole volume. Instead of smiling derisively at the politicians' art of pleasing the public, let's ape it.

"This nation today is face to face with an ideological struggle begun in economic depression and intensified by war. It is about to decide the destiny of traditional freedoms for generations to come.

U. S. Is Only Hope.

"The United States, if we hold fast to our traditions, is quite likely to be the only beacon of democracy in a sea of collectivist states. It would be a tragedy if this country, having conquered the arms of our enemies, should be conquered by the ideas of those enemies. This must not happen in America.

"Americans are asking management, 'What do you propose to do to give us jobs, opportunity, economic security, and better living? If your fellows in industry can help them get these things better than anybody else—and you can—they'll remarry private enterprise and stop flirting with collectivism. But if government spending and loss of liberty offer the only apparent road to jobs and security, they'll take it."

Linwood I. Noyes, president of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, told the manufacturers that their campaign will be a tougher and a more important selling job than selling goods.

Urges Sounder Program.

"The most effective way to counteract the crackpotism of the past decade," he said, "is to offer something more sound and more workable. Industry has a sound program, but industry must sell its program.

"The American people desire security and freedom above all else, and, unless they believe that capital offers this to them, they will follow the will o' the wisp offered by the quacks. Today I believe the majority of Americans desire to retain the capitalistic system, but, unless assured by leaders of industry that with its retention will be included freedom, opportunity, employment, and security, they will not follow long. Any one who cannot see the trend is blind indeed.

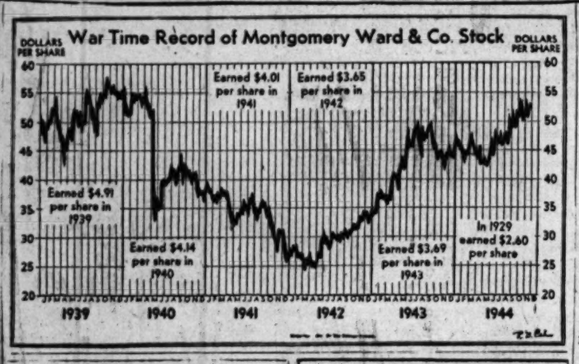
"Like patriotism, capitalism must enjoy the confidence of the rank and file. It must keep alive this confidence that it must have for continuance of our economic system—that system under which, and only under which, we can live as free Americans.

Must Have Right Program.

"It is more difficult to sell an idea than a product, and in this case more important. The story must be skillfully and truthfully put together, dramatically and continuously presented. With the right program, you can confidently rest your case with the American people."

Robert M. Gaylord, president of the NAM, in an address before a luncheon meeting, repeated the theme that America is likely to be "an island of free enterprise in a world of collectivistic governments" when the war is ended. He mentioned the inroads upon freedom accepted by newly liberated France and the "British acceptance of collectivistic principles in the name of security." Gaylord particularly attacked the cartel system of international trade advocated by Great Britain.

"Giving away the products of American labor and management to foreign countries in order 'to increase their purchasing power'," he said, "is nothing more than an international make-work program and is as foolhardy as domestic boondoggling."



Workers Quit G. E. Factory in 2d Walkout

Schenectady, N. Y., Dec. 7 (AP).—Several thousand employes of General Electric company's Schenectady plant left their jobs this afternoon without giving any reason. The action followed a walkout yesterday of 200 toolmakers an hour before quitting time. They returned to work this morning at the request of Leo Jandreau, business agent of Local 301, CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers.

The men who left their jobs yesterday returned after passing a resolution asking the national war labor board to send a representative to Schenectady to expedite settlement of a wage base rate. They had quit to protest what they termed "an unfair ruling by the WLB" and an "unfair stand by the company."

Trailer Output Halted.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 7 (AP).—A fourth strike in six weeks stalled production of army truck trailers at Fruehauf Trailer company today and 1,400 persons were idle. Welders and others walked out yesterday to protest the hiring of a new supervisor and the strike spread thru the plant.

Edward Purdy, president of Local 99, CIO United Automobile Workers, said the union had not been properly notified of the hiring or of a retiming of operations which he said was apparently being done by the new supervisor. A company spokesman said the strike violated grievance procedure of its contract with the union.

Unions Win Wage Schedules.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP)—The war labor board today ordered the country's five largest meat packers to supply unions with complete schedules of job classifications and pay rates which the CIO Packinghouse Workers contend had previously been denied them. The board is considering 38 demands of the CIO union, together with similar issues raised by the AFL Amalgamated Meat Cutters, and an independent union at Swift & Co.

The order applies to the CIO and AFL unions at Swift, Armour, Cudahy, Wilson, and Morrell plants and involves approximately 135,000 workers. It gives the companies 15 days to furnish the unions a copy of the wage schedules in each plant, department by department, including job classifications, descriptions, and requirements, with wage rates and incentive provisions.

ELECTRIC IRON SUPPLIES FAIL TO SHOW GAIN

The supply of electric irons in Chicago is no larger today than it was two months ago, despite spot authorizations for their manufacture, department stores said yesterday.

One store reported that a shipment due to arrive since Nov. 15 had not been received, altho expected momentarily. Spokesmen for two stores said that they had received no irons since October and did not know when they would get any. Others said they receive small quantities, perhaps 12 or 18, from time to time, which are sold first come, first served.

One large store said it was accepting orders and filling them as irons arrive without putting them on display, but that the orders were far in excess of the number of irons available.

People and Events

Harry C. Schaack.

Harry C. Schaack, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, yesterday was nominated for reelection, heading the regular slate of candidates for 1945. Richard F. Uhlmann is slated for first vice president and Adam J. Riffel for second vice president. Candidates for directors are Carl E. Bostrom, J. Hollis Griffin, L. J. Lee, C. W. Elmer, and John S. Morris.

Houlder Hudgins, president of Sloane-Blabon corporation, manufacturer of hard surface floor coverings, announced the resignations of Bror Dahlberg, chairman of the board, and Hector J. Dowd as a director. William F. C. Ewing, first vice president and treasurer of Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet company, will succeed Dahlberg and Robert P. Ridges will replace Dowd.

Continental Casualty company yesterday announced the election of Norman Hoag, vice president, to the board of directors. He has been with the company since 1933 and prior to that was associated with Union Indemnity company.

W. A. Jimison, advertising and sales promotion manager of the Chicago milk division of the Borden company, has been elected president of the Chicago Advertising Managers' club.

N. B. Fry, assistant traffic manager of United Air Lines, has been elected president of the Air Traffic Conference of America, a division of the Air Transport association.

F. H. Kilberry, president of Atlas Imperial Diesel Engine company, has been elected vice president of the Diesel Engine Manufacturers' association.

BATTLE ON YORK ICE MACHINERY PLAN IS OPENED

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 7 (AP).—Three preferred stockholders of the York Ice Machinery corporation began a legal fight today to set aside the corporation's court approved recapitalization plan.

On their petition the Third United States Circuit Court of appeals ordered the company to show cause tomorrow why the court's approval of the plan should not be set aside.

The petitioners, Charles A. Hoteenstein, Carl Schmoyer, and Andrew Fekety, alleged that the company "repudiated, contradicted, and impeached" the evidence of the value of its assets after the Circuit court affirmed confirmation of the plan by the federal District court for Delaware. Instead of assets worth between 7 and 16 million dollars as claimed during hearings on the plan, at later hearings to determine the value of the preferred stock the company presented evidence showing it was worth only $3,944,000 as a "going concern," the plaintiffs said.

Mid-City Bank Increases Surplus, Votes Dividends

Directors of the Mid-City National bank voted yesterday to increase the surplus from $400,000 to $500,000. Two dividends of $1 each were declared, one payable Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 21 and the other payable April 2 to stock of record March 21.

Senate Faces Filibuster on Seaway Pact

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—The senate tonight faced a filibuster against the omnibus rivers and harbors bill as Sen. Aiken [R., Vt.] continued his efforts to force consideration of the proposed St. Lawrence river seaway and power project as an amendment to the rivers and harbors measure.

Aiken continued to hold the floor today, yielding only for the consideration of emergency legislation and for speeches by other proponents of the St. Lawrence project. Drastic measures were being considered tonight by St. Lawrence opponents to force the Vermonter to abandon his stand and enable congress to finish up its business and adjourn.

Consider Conference Deal.

One step proposed by senate leaders would be to take the flood control bill, passed last week by the senate, into conference with the house with the understanding that Vermont projects, inserted at Aiken's behest, would be eliminated. Sen. Overton [D., La.], sponsor of the flood control bill, admitted tonight such a plan was being considered, but denied he had suggested it.

When Aiken took the floor yesterday he announced he would offer the St. Lawrence proposal as an amendment to the rivers and harbors bill, but he has not yet taken that step. Overton told reporters tonight that when Aiken does offer his amendment, a motion could be made to table the measure. Because such a motion is not debatable under senate rules, debate on the St. Lawrence plan would be cut off and the senate could act on the rivers and harbors bill.

Indorsed by Barbers.

By continuing to speak on the merits of the St. Lawrence project Aiken hopes to force Overton to accept the St. Lawrence amendment to insure passage of the rivers and harbors bill before adjournment.

He kept the floor today by reading into the record scores of letters in support of the St. Lawrence plan, including indorsements from the barbers' union in Chelsea, Mass.; the bartenders union in Hibbing, Minn., and a bookbinders union in New Orleans, La. He announced he had 700 such communications.

Aiken yielded the floor today for speeches by Senators Vandenberg [R., Mich.] and Shipstead [R., Minn.] who advocated the seaway as an aid to western agriculture and industrial development.

CLUB TO BORROW FROM MEMBERS, PAY MORTGAGE

The Chicago club yesterday disclosed in a statement filed with the securities and exchange commission that the holder of a first mortgage indebtedness of $2,603,399 had agreed to accept in full settlement if paid by Dec. 31, 1944, $1,800,000 plus interest at 3 per cent on $2,603,399 from Nov. 23 to the date of settlement.

To meet this offer the club will sell $800,000 in debentures to members at par, without interest, William McCormick Blair, president, said. At maturity in 1965 each $1,000 debenture will be redeemed at $1,500, Blair said.

In addition the club has obtained a tentative commitment for a new mortgage loan of 1 million dollars at 4 per cent from Aetna Life Insurance company. The Chicago club has a membership of 1,094 and a clubhouse at the southwest corner of Michigan av. and Van Buren st. There are no stockholders.

HOG PRICES FALL 5 TO 25 CENTS ON BIGGER RECEIPTS

Hog prices broke 5 to 25 cents at the stock yards yesterday as farmers increased selling of spring pigs to the heaviest volume for a Thursday since July. The average dipped 15 cents to $13.90 a hundred pounds, within 10 cents of the lowest since July. However, the price was above any corresponding December day since 1919.

Early buyers gave $14.10 for a few selected 190 to 240 pound new crop hogs, but most of the principal buyers filled their orders later, paying $13.90 and $13.95 for good to choice 190 to 300 pound hogs.

Action slowed some in the cattle alleys, but the clearance was complete at mostly steady prices.

Lamb prices were unchanged again with the top $14.40.

SUPPLY CEILING ON NEWSPRINT TO BE ENFORCED

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP).—The ceilings on publishers' supplies of newsprint will be retained and "rigidly enforced," Col. J. Hale Steinman, director of the WPB printing and publishing division, said today. Earlier hopes of relaxing the inventory rules were dashed by increasing military demands for paper, he said.

Publishers must bring their inventories down to the permitted tonnage by Dec. 31, Col. Steinman said, by reducing their December orders upon United States and Canadian paper mills if necessary. The permitted inventory is 40 days supply in the north, east and central states and 65 days supply in southern and western states.

Two Savings Groups Cut Interest Rate to 1½ Pct.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 7 [Special].—The Philadelphia Saving Fund society and the Western Saving Fund society, also of Philadelphia, today announced that interest on deposits would be cut from 2 per cent to 1½ per cent on Jan. 1. Reasons given were that the return on government bonds is low and that the war has curtailed building, major source of investments for the societies' funds.

PREDICT GAINS IN LUBRICATOR USE ON FARMS

Result of Broader Mechanization.

BY HERSCHEL PATTERSON.

The mechanization of farms, accelerated by war time man power shortages, will widen substantially the use of farm lubrication units after the war, it was predicted yesterday. The war also has created a large demand for industrial lubricating systems, it was said.

J. S. Knowlson.

War experience has helped develop refinements in lubricating systems and accessories which will benefit users after the war. Industrial applications of the systems are both automatic and manual, with the amount of lubricant that goes to the bearings in machinery automatically controled.

Large Farm Use Expected.

J. S. Knowlson, president of Stewart-Warner corporation, large producer of lubricating systems and other automotive and general industrial products, said he expected a substantial increase in sales of lubricating equipment to farm users.

"As the larger farms become mechanized a bigger demand will appear," he asserted. "Grease gun sales to service stations and farm users will rise substantially."

Knowlson said his company plans to have its distributors conduct schools to teach lubrication to war veterans who expect to open their own businesses or service equipment of others.

"There are going to be many job opportunities in service industries after the war, of which lubrication is one," he predicted.

Pre-War Product Unchanged.

He said Stewart-Warner had not changed its output much because of the war; that the company was producing the same lubricating items as before the war, except that they were going into military vehicles, instead of civilian autos.

One new war developed item which the company will continue to make after the war is an airplane heater. This will be produced in addition to the auto heater, a pre-war product which he said would benefit from refinements resulting from development of the plane heater.

The rubber shortage fostered the development of a "sprung" wheel produced by the caster division. This wheel, used on small trucks in factories and elsewhere, softens the "bounce" caused by uneven surfaces. It was developed for special trucks used in the moving of bombs and ammunition.

Will Extend Television Output.

Knowlson said the company, which made a few television sets before the war, expects to incorporate war time developments in its post-war television sets.

Discussing general post-war operations of the company, he said:

"Altho many manufacturers expect a vast market for their products when peace comes, we are going to be pretty conservative in this business, and are not going into entirely new businesses. We hope to produce as economically as possible.

"Our automotive business will form a substantial part of our post-war sales, but it will be less than that of servicing industries thru our own distributing system."

COLGATE VOTES EXTRA DIVIDEND OF ONE DOLLAR

Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company yesterday declared an extra dividend of $1 bringing total 1944 payments to $1.75, compared with $1.50 in 1943 when a similar extra was paid. Mead, Johnson & Co. voted a $1.50 extra with its 75 cent quarterly.

New Vitreous Enamel Alloy Steel Developed by Inland

The Inland Steel company yesterday announced the creation of a new vitreous enameling alloy steel by its research laboratories which it described as a "revolutionary development." The company said it has solved a problem of many years and opened the way for more extensive use of vitreous enamel.

Because of its bright, easy to clean, and long wearing qualities, vitreous enamel is especially suitable for home equipment, including such items as refrigerators, washing machines, and kitchen appliances.

Permits Use of Color.

Various colors as well as white can be applied to the new steel, which has been called Inland Ti-Namel steel, without the prior application of a base or, ground coat enamel.

"The problem has been that when enamels were applied without a ground coat directly to standard enameling stocks of former days and fired, the resulting finishes have been found to be full of black specks, enamel pits, and enamel blisters," the company said. "This condition was caused by gases resulting from the reaction of carbon in the base metal with constituents in the enamel when at firing temperatures."

The company said that when the new steel is used white or light pastel cover coat vitreous enamels can be successfully applied directly to steel surfaces.

Lowers Cost; Lasts Longer.

"The remarkable part of the achievement lies in the fact that a thinner covering of enamel produces a better surface, less liable to chip and possessing longer surface life than the old, more costly multi-coat job," the company said. "The new enamel steel reduces enamel shop reoperation, edging, and scrap; permits a lower temperature and a shorter time for firing. It increases shop output, and lowers over-all enameling cost."

Inland said the new alloy steel was developed with the coöperation of the Titanium Alloy Manufacturing company and pending patent applications are owned jointly by the two companies. In the alloy process titanium—a metallic element frequently found in clay—is added to the steel in an amount dependent on the amount of carbon used.

Wheat Closes Higher When Shorts Cover

Short covering was the mainstay of grain markets yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Prices declined in early trading, but recovered later to close near the top. Wheat led the advance and ended ¾ to ⅞ cent a bushel higher. Corn was ⅛ cent higher to ⅛ lower. After being off about 1 cent early, rye finished unchanged to ⅝ cent higher. Oats closed ¼ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower and barley ⅛ to ¾ cent higher.

Buying of wheat futures was led by cash interests and firms with southwestern connections and was said to be to remove hedges against prospective sales of flour to the army. No figures on the quantity of flour were given, but it was understood mills were requested to make offers in 5,000 to 10,000 sack lots. At Kansas City December wheat advanced 1½ cents.

Operations Largely Professional.

Operations in oats, rye and barley were largely professional in character. After the close tenders on December contracts totaled 1,000 bushels of rye and 10,000 bushels of barley. Steamers carrying 171,000 bushels of Canadian rye and 135,000 bushels of oats docked at Chicago late Wednesday night with what may prove to be the last receipts by lake this season.

Announcement by the Commodity Credit corporation that 2 million bushels of corn had been purchased in the last few days at Chicago and St. Louis for shipment to Britain had little effect on prices of that grain. Reports from Washington, D. C., suggesting that up to 32 million bushels might be taken during the 1945 season were also ignored. Some of the grain may be obtained in Argentina, it was said.

Corn Stocks Cleared.

Large sales of corn by Chicago interests were said to have cleared the stock of grain that might have been available for delivery on December contracts. Thus, much grain will have to be dried to fill those contracts.

Farmers showed a little more disposition to sell corn for deferred shipment. Purchases totaled 150,000 bushels and brokers said large quantities were for sale at prices above current bids. At St. Louis No. 3 yellow sold at $1.16 or ¼ cent from the ceiling price.

WALGREEN CO. SALES INCREASE IN MONTH, YEAR

Walgreen company yesterday reported sales in November were $9,567,485, an increase of 1.4 per cent from a year ago. Eleven months' sales thru November totaled $106,747,675, up 5.4 per cent.

Spiegel, Inc., reported mail order sales were $4,104,296, a gain of 54.4 per cent. Eleven months' sales aggregated $31,004,336, up 18.26 per cent.

BONDS SWING HIGHER WITH RAILS; LEADERS GAIN UP TO 2 POINTS

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Concentrated demand in a large group of railroad issues lifted the bond market substantially in spots today. Leaders advanced major fractions to more than 2 points and altho there were scattered losers among the utilities and industrials, the two groups held a fully steady undertone.

Sales were boosted to $11,500,000 from $9,745,400 on Wednesday. The Associated Press rail average reached a new high for recent years, at 94.9, the third peak set this week. Nearly 50 individual issues ended up 1 to 3½ points, and Cotton Belt refunding 5s gained 4¾ at 78¾. New York Central refunding 5s improved 2⅜ points and its 4½s moved up 1⅞s, both on heavy turnover.

Other leaders included Northern Pacific 4½s, Pittsburgh and West Virginia 4½s, West Shore 4s, Wisconsin Central 4s, Katy 5s, three series of Missouri Pacific 5s, Morris and Essex 3½s and 4½s, Manati Sugar 4s, Maine Central 4½s, Illinois Central 4¾s, Monon 5s and 6s, and Central of Georgia 5s.

Antioquia 7s and Australia 5s were a little ahead in a mixed foreign market. Brisbane 5s lost more than 2 points.

SENATE STARTS BROAD PROBE OF CIGARET SUPPLY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7 (AP).—Chairman Mead [D., N. Y.] disclosed today the opening of a full fledged inquiry into the cigaret shortage by the senate war investigating committee.

He set a public hearing for next Wednesday, at which representatives of the National Association of Tobacco Distributors, the war department, manufacturers, the man power commission, and the war food administration will be questioned.

Mead said preliminary findings by staff investigators indicated that more cigarets are being manufactured than ever before, but that requirements of the services have almost doubled since last year. This has resulted in shortages in the civilian supply, he said, which may be expected to continue.

Air Line Halves Dividend Because of Stock Split

American Airlines yesterday announced that as a result of the approval of the plan to split common stock, two shares for one, stockholders would receive a $1 dividend for each share instead of the $2 declared on the old stock.

STOCKS PASS 7 YEAR PEAKS IN EXTENDED RISE

Rails, Industrials Lead Advance.

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—In its fourth consecutive session of million share trading the stock market's average today penetrated the seven year peak of last July by a fraction, altho many leaders failed to follow.

Selected rails and industrials were ahead from the start. Best prices were reduced in many instances at the close and losers were numerous.

Armament issues were propped by the outlook for a longer war. Some traders remained skeptical in view of the belief that adverse news might bring out a lot of stock at current levels. Individual situations supported favorites despite some year-end tax selling.

Market Is Broad.

The Associated Press 60 stock composite was up 0.2 point at 56.5, where it exceeded by 0.1 the July highest mark since 1937. The market was broad, 916 issues appearing; 497 were up, 209 down, and 210 unchanged. Transfers of 1,344,954 shares compared with 1,094,388 Wednesday.

Loew's was ahead 4¼ and Pan American Airways up 1, both at peaks for 1944 in the wake of stock splitup and refinancing programs adjudged beneficial to share owners. American Telephone and Northern Pacific also recorded new highs for the year.

Better Curb movers were Solar Aircraft, American Republics, Fansteel, Michigan Bumper, and Pantepec. Turnover was 408,095 shares, against 297,785 Wednesday.

CHICAGO STOCKS GAIN.

Prices rose on increased turnover of 47,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Volume leaders included New York Central, up ¾; Radio Corporation of America, up ⅝; Chicago corporation, down ⅛, and Asbestos Manufacturing, unchanged. Among seven stocks reaching 1944 peaks were Transcontinental and Western Air, up 1⅛, and Harvey Hubbell and Kentucky Utilities preferred, each up 1.

FIRST, GET FLEISCHMANN'S BOND

THEN DO THIS!

1
Place ½ level teaspoon of granulated sugar in Old Fashioned glass. Add 2 or 3 dashes of Angostura bitters, and just enough water to dissolve the sugar!

2
Muddle thoroughly. Add ice cubes and 1½ oz. of smooth, delicious Fleischmann's BOND! Then stir

3
Twist a strip of lemon peel over top and drop rind in drink! Garnish to suit with Maraschino cherry, a slice of orange, or a strip of pineapple!

New Industries Held Job Providers

Magnesium.

The war developed magnesium industry has a definite role in providing jobs for many veterans when peace returns, Edwin W. Rouse Jr., New York, chairman of the post-war planning committee of the Magnesium association, said yesterday, because it offers an "ultra light" metal not available commercially in quantity before.

At a meeting in the Stevens hotel the committee discussed ways for the industry to expand demand for its product after the war in order to provide new jobs and maintain present ones.

New Products Needed.

"The first thing that is going to happen is a depletion of inventories," Rouse said. "These must be filled and demand should provide a continuing high level of business for a time. Then will come a period of saturation, and to keep industry at a high level of production a high level of demand must be maintained.

"To have this big demand, desire must be established for things the public has not had before. That is where magnesium comes in. It can create that desire. Designers and engineers can start from scratch; the metal is easily machined, and can be worked to better advantage than most metals."

Chicago has more companies that are starting to recognize the desirable qualities of magnesium as a material for finished manufactured products than has any other city in the country, he said.

Television.

Television after the war will provide a new large source of employment and will stimulate consumption of consumer goods thru "personalized selling on a mass scale," Richard H. Hooper, president of the National Television council, told the Chicago Federated Advertising club yesterday in the Hotel Sherman.

Hooper, who in 1940 headed the television exposition at the New York world's fair, predicted that 4½ million new jobs would stem from the television industry after the war. These jobs will represent added employment and will not cut into the numbers already employed in the radio industry.

He said that annual television production will approximate 2½ to 3½ million sets after the war, and that by 1955 about 30 million sets will be in operation.

Ninety-Four Licenses Sought.

Ninety-four licenses to operate television stations have been applied for in 26 states, he said. He predicted that such applications would reach 150 by the end of the war. At present 40 television programs are broadcast every week over nine stations, he said, and are capable of reaching 22.8 per cent of the nation's population.

Recalling a Chinese proverb that one picture can tell a story better than 10,000 words, Hooper said television will do a tremendous selling job thru its "glamorous method of presentation." Department stores will be able to "take their products into the consumer's home."

Investors' Guide

L. & N. BONDS.

Please provide a report on Louisville and Nashville Railroad first and refunding 3¾ per cent bonds, 2003.—T. A.

Altho the company's first and refunding bonds of the three series outstanding are a mortgage or collateral lien on 4,663 miles of road and branches, nearly the entire system, they are a first claim on only a relatively small part. For that reason they are classed as a junior lien. Of a total funded debt of about 207 million dollars, 106 million is considered by analysts to have a prior lien.

Bituminous coal comprises a high proportion of the freight traffic and revenues are sensitive to changes in general industrial activity. Nevertheless, in only one year of the depression of the 1930s did the company fail to earn its fixed charges in full. In the three years 1941 thru 1943 the charges were earned more than three times annually, the 1943 ratio being 3.43. In the first nine months of 1944 it was 3.05.

Fixed charges have been reduced 21 per cent since 1930. Net working capital, amounting to $52,492,000 as of Sept. 30, has more than doubled since 1940. The 3¾s were recently quoted around 107, or 2 points above the call price other than for the sinking fund.
